37.2 Billion Limit Set On Spending As Tax Aid

Republican Budget Committee Ratifies Action Over Loud Democratic Protest

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 31.2-billion-dollar limit on spending, to make way for tax cuts and a 2.6 billion payment on the debt, yesterday was ratified by the GOP-dominated Legislative Budget Committee over loud Democratic protests.

Agreement on the 2½-billion cut in the President's budget signaled a general go ahead on all major legislation tied into fiscal policy.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee promptly slated Senate action next month on (1) European recovery legislation and (2) tax cuts.

Taft to Leave on Tour

Senate GOP Steersman Robert A. Taft (Ohio), about to leave on a week's Presidential stump tour through the West, told reporters he "hoped" both ERP and tax reduction will clear the Senate by April 1.

As green lights flashed across the Capitol, Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) scheduled tax hearings tentatively for February 23.

The House-passed 6½-billion dollar tax cuts are expected to be pared back to 4 to 4½ billion dollars.

These other measures received Policy Committee billing in the Senate: Budget ceiling, February 17; rent control extension, February 18, followed by legislation extending the second War Powers Act and Reorganization Plan No. 1, transferring USES to the Labor Department.

No Timetable Set

Taft said no timetable was definitely set on pending civil rights legislation (FEPC, antilynching and antipoll tax).

The 37.2-billion-dollar spending budget, ratified, 44 to 16, at the first full meeting of the legislative budget committee, did not set a tax-cut figure, but said:

"It is obvious that the taxpayers of this Nation should be relieved somewhat of the burden of wartime taxation."

Senator Styles Bridges (R., Ohio), chairman of the joint budget group, said the proposed ceiling on spending, coupled with an estimated increase in revenues to 47.3 billion dollars, would leave an estimated 10.1-billion-dollar surplus. He said there would be 7.5 billion dollars even after the proposed payment on the debt.

Said Bridges: "In the most conservative figures, no one can take issue with a 4 to 4½-billion-dollar tax cut."

Business and Labor Leaders At Odds on Home-Rule Bill

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington business and labor leaders were at odds yesterday on the Auchincloss-Ball home-rule bill. They gave these views to the joint congressional committee studying the bill:

John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade: "I would personally oppose pure home rule without national representation."

James A. Beattie, president of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce: "We are not in favor of half a loaf. National representation and local suffrage are inseparable."

Louis F. Frick, secretary of the Federation of Businessmen's Associations: "We don't feel it's a home-rule bill. We don't feel that nonresidents should be allowed to vote for councilmen or bonded indebtedness."

Labor Strong for Bill

J. C. Turner, representing the Washington Central Labor Union, AFL: "Our thousands of disfranchised workers wish to convey to your committee, in the strongest possible terms, their indorsement (of the home-rule bill)."

Mrs. Gertrude Evans, executive secretary, Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO: "We support the bill . . . To achieve democracy, the bill should be enlarged to eliminate existing segregation, to abolish the dual school system and to end discriminatory practices of the recreation board."

26 To Be Heard Today

Twenty-six witnesses are slated to testify in the home rule hearing today. The sessions, in the caucus room, Old House Office Building, will run from 10 a. m. to noon, and 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. Plans call for ending the hearings Tuesday, after all-day sessions that day and Monday.

The home-rule bill would replace the present appointed board of three District Commissioners by an elected 12-member council, and a city manager appointed by the council. The manager would run a streamlined city setup with 12 departments. An elected school

Eight GSI Strike Heads Take Oath

Company Refuses To Bargain Until Leaders of Parent Union Follow Suit

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Union leaders in the GSI cafeteria strike took the Taft-Hartley non-Communist oath yesterday.

Conspicuously absent from the list of eight complying officers of local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, was the name of President Richard A. Bancroft. The union announced he had resigned Wednesday.

The union's action, voted at a membership meeting Thursday night, had no immediate effect on the union's status under the Taft-Hartley Act, Government sources pointed out. The law requires that the non-Communist affidavits and financial statements be filed also by the parent union, United Public Workers of America (CIO), before the local can avail itself of NLRB facilities.

Both the NLRB and the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service said their facilities were still unavailable to the union.

No Possibility Seen

Officials of UPWA indicated there was no possibility the parent union's officers would file the affidavits.

In announcing the filing of the documents, Oliver T. Palmer, Local 471 business agent, said the action "was taken for one purpose only—to remove the false issue which union-busting GSI had raised."

"Now," Palmer said, "GSI can stop seeking excuses to evade their obligation to bargain."

But GSI's position was unchanged.

Before GSI will bargain with Local 471, said GSI personnel manager J. C. Niehuss, affidavits must be filed by both the local and by UPWA. Then, the local must win an NLRB election among those workers now on the GSI rolls, Niehuss stipulated.

Plans to Keep Workers

"The corporation does not intend to displace any of its 1300 present employes," Niehuss said. Most of these 1300 new workers were hired to replace strikers. The strike began January 5.

Filing of the affidavits followed by one day a statement from Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach that he wouldn't help settle the strike until the local filed the affidavits.

After a conference with Assistant Secretary John W. Gibson yes-

Flaxer Asked to Sign Affidavit or Resign

Detroit, Feb. 6 (AP).—Officers of Local 191, CIO United Public Workers, today called upon International President Abram Flaxer to file a Taft-Hartley law non-Communist affidavit or resign.

The local's executive board also asked that Flaxer go on record as against third party presidential aspirations of Henry A. Wallace, declaring he refrained from voting on that issue when the CIO executive board met January 21. Local 191, comprising employes of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Office here, is among the largest of 80 UPW locals in Michigan.

New Bill's Rent Boosts Automatic

Increases Based On Gains in Costs; Decontrol Allowed In Several Cities

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday began consideration of a rent bill that would give automatic raises to all landlords whose costs have increased, and which would provide for immediate and complete decontrol in several cities.

The measure, prepared by a subcommittee, appeared to have too few teeth to satisfy some members of the full group. They predicted it would be considerably revised.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), chairman of the committee, indicated no agreement had been reached and only a portion of the proposed measure had been discussed. He said further consideration of it would be suspended for the next week, when many members will be absent on Lincoln Day speechmaking.

To "Sleep On" Measure

"We've decided to sleep on this with our consciences and then come back a week from next Monday and make all decisions," he said.

Some terms of the bill were announced on Thursday. Additional provisions disclosed yesterday showed an even greater relaxing of rent controls.

Some of the newly reported provisions:

1. Rents are automatically increased by 50 per cent of any increases in landlords' operating costs. A top limit of a 15 per cent rent boost is fixed, however.

2. Rents are automatically decontrolled in any city or rent control area if the Census Bureau finds that there are vacancies of 1 per cent or more among all dwelling units, either for sale or for rent.

3. New leases, signed after the new rent control law becomes effective, are exempted from all controls, and rents may be fixed at any figure.

4. Local rent advisory boards would be given more authority.

Under previously announced terms of the bill, the controls would extend until April 30, 1949.

If tenants agreed with landlords on leases running eight months longer, to December 1949, the rents could be set at any level.

Future of Rent Control Put Up to High Court

By Dillard Stokes

Federal rent control—present and future—went on trial for its life in the Supreme Court yesterday.

On the nine judges depend both the controls we have now—which end on February 29—and the new ones Congress hopes to pass by then. Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman asked the court to give its ruling quickly, so that Congress and the people would know where they stood and what to do about it.

Federal Judge Paul Jones pronounced a death sentence on Government rent control in Cleveland last December 1. It was lawful as a war measure, said Jones, but the war was over. And when it ended, the power of Congress to con-

Corn and Wheat Lead New Decline in Prices Of Food Commodities

This Market Not Bottomless

Nothing Like '20-'21, or '29-'33 In Prospect, Is Writer's View

By J. A. Livingston

The break in commodity and stock markets simply proves that Americans don't want what they say they want. Immediately after prices tumbled in Chicago, Kansas City, New York and other commodity and stock market centers on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the wires hummed with the question: "Is this it—1920 or 1929?" The prospect sent a shiver through the entire economy.

Livingston

President Truman's remarks at his Thursday press conference didn't help to quiet pulses. He said that unless the price rise stopped, the country was headed for a crash. These were the strongest words he had yet used to describe the consequences of inflation.

A dose of deflation is just what the country has needed for some time—to price low-income earners back into the market for goods and services and to put a crimp in a wild and woolly notion that this was a five-year, one-way-street boom.

No new factor has entered the world supply-demand equation to explain the drop. True, the weather in France, Germany, the low countries, and the Scandinavian peninsula has been favorable to wheat and other grains. Last year's winter kill won't repeat. But this has been known. Cotton exports have run below expectations. But that also has been known.

What may well have happened is what always happens. Businessmen and speculators who bought because they expected prices to go higher suddenly became aware that prices may have approached a temporary if not permanent top. They wanted to get out while the getting was good. They sold. Once the market started down, a lot of others who had been thinking the same way followed.

Sell-off Understandable

The fear is that this decline will set in motion a train of internal business adjustments that might mark the beginning of a deflation spiral akin to 1920-21—or worse, 1929-33. Whenever prices start dropping, businessmen stop buying, cancel orders. They don't want to own goods in a falling market. At the same time plans for plant expansion are put back in the safe, individuals defer buying homes or new equipment. There's a wait-and-see attitude.

The sell-off came with shocking suddenness. Yet it's understandable. We're in a period of credit stringency—as has been noted in this column many times. Govern-

Total 3-Day Drop Sets Mark Since Before War; Experts Still Dumfounded

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Grain and other basic food commodities plunged again yesterday, the total decline for three days establishing a record drop since before the war.

As usual in such a sudden disturbance in prices, experts were caught without an explanation.

Their puzzlement was best expressed by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson last night, who remarked:

"It's too fast for me. I don't think a soul understands it."

Corn led the break, followed closely by wheat. Corn dropped the full limit of 8 cents a bushel at the opening of the Chicago Board of Trade, and never rallied. Some wheat contracts struggled to regain some lost ground during the day's trading, but finally settled back to the full 10-cent decline permitted in one day of trading.

Flour Drops 20 Cents More

Affecting the homekeeper's pocketbook most directly was the drop in wheat which brought with it an immediate drop in flour. For the third day in succession flour dropped 20 cents a hundred pounds—total decline of 60 cents in three days. Family patents—the kind used for home baking—were quoted at $7.30 in Minneapolis, against $7.90 Tuesday.

Last night contracts for future delivery of wheat were 42 to 50 cents a bushel under January highs. Corn was selling from 36 to 48 cents under 1948 peaks. May wheat closed at $2.56⅜; May corn at $2.23⅝.

Oats did not break the full limit of 6 cents a bushel—in fact some futures closed slightly above the Thursday close. But for most categories, oats were down from 14 to 28 cents below the season's top. Soybeans, at $3.62 for March deliveries, were 79 to 80½ cents under their 1948 peak.

Market observers at the Department of Agriculture looked at several factors for an explanation of the sudden drop.

Don't Want Publicity

Anderson saw a lack of strength in speculative buying when prices first slumped. Operators who might have been bidding on a decline were absent, due to recent attacks upon speculation. "People just don't want to have their names published as speculators," Anderson commented.

He added that the food conservation program also might have a definite effect.

Foreign Aid Cost Jumps 250 Million

State Department Contends Truman Estimate Too Low

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

World-wide foreign aid will cost the United States 250 million dollars more than President Truman's budget called for, the State Department estimated yesterday.

The new figure was an answer to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's request for a balance-sheet of all prospective American expenditures abroad, in Europe and elsewhere.

They showed that Congress would be asked to authorize $9,333,000,000 for the 15 months between April 1 of this year and June 30, 1949. This figure includes the proposed cost of the Marshall Plan but not the American contributions to the United Nations or its specialized agencies.

Aid to China Rises

Most of the increase over the President's budget figure is caused by an aid-to-China program almost twice as big as Secretary Marshall originally planned.

Largely because of Republican pressure, the proposed help to

Wounded Cop Shoots His Assailant

Drunken Prisoner Slashes at Officer; Both in Hospital

A Metropolitan Policeman yesterday shot and wounded a prisoner who slashed him seven times with a knife after an arrest for drunkeness.

The policeman, Pvt. Alton Thomas, 40, of 3570 11th st. nw., told The Washington Post "I tried to use my club when he suddenly whipped out that knife, but I soon saw there was no use in that. I shoved him away and shot him."

Wounded in the upper left chest, but not considered in a serious condition, is William Minor, 29, of 707 24th st. ne. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital; the policeman to Casualty.

Thomas said he saw the man get out of a car at 2d st. and Independence ave. sw., and stagger along the walk. "I asked him where he was going and he told me 'home.' I told him he was too drunk to go home and started to lead him to the call box at 2d and D sts.

"He wanted to know why the Police Department was picking on him and then started swearing."

Minor lashed out with the knife just as the policeman started to open the call box, Thomas said.

The shots brought Lawrence Proctor, 44, of 316 2d st. sw., out of his house. He found the policeman leaning against a tree, bleeding profusely from slashes on the head, face and neck; with Minor doubled over a low wire fence.

At Casualty Hospital, where the 200-pound policeman described himself as the "strong man of No. 4 Precinct," doctors said he lost "an enormous amount" of blood. Blade of the knife was broken off in the attack, they said.

A police guard was placed over Minor at Gallinger.

Policeman's Son Gets Writ to Stay In D. C. School

District Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday issued a restraining order to prevent dismissal of Herbert Clarence Young, jr., of 6413 Elliott st., Hyattsville, from Macfarland Junior High School here.

The student, son of a Metropolitan police detective, was ordered dismissed this week, along with 180 other out-of-town pupils who have failed to pay tuition fees. Hitherto, children of persons employed in the District or servicemen, residing outside the city, were permitted tuition-free schooling in the local schools.

Thirty-eight pupils have obtained a court injunction against dismissal on the question whether or not they "enrolled" in the local schools before July 25, 1947, the date free tuition was suspended. The new restraining order, obtained by Attorney Meyer Konin, alleges that the congressional act did not mean to end the tuition exemption for children of District government employes. Hearing on the injunctions will be held February 16.

Husbands Not Perfect, Master Informs Wife

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6 (AP).—New Jersey husbands aren't supposed to be perfect, according to a ruling by Chancery Advisory Master Robert Grosman.

"The law does not require or expect perfection on the part of either husband or wife," the advisyor master said. "Each party to a marriage must overlook a great many things. Such behavior comes under the 'for worse' part of the marriage contract."

Mother Bears Second Set Of Triplets in 8 Minutes Flat

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP).—A 40-year-old mother gave birth to her second set of triplets today in eight minutes flat.

A spokesman for the American Medical Association said chances of such a birth probably were one in a million.

Mrs. Margaret Walker felt a bit "groggy" but otherwise okay, Syracuse hospital attaches reported, and the triplets appeared healthy.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA journal, said the birth was "unusual," but added that other mothers had had more than one set of live triplets.

The father is Michael Walker, a repairman at the Solvay Process Co.

The Walkers now have nine children. The oldest is 16. Where they all will sleep in their four-room bedroom home is a question.

First to arrive today was a 6-pound boy, at 12:06 p. m.. A 5-pound 4½-ounce girl followed. The third, another girl, weighed in at 5 pounds 13½ ounces. The total weight was 17 pounds 2 ounces.

Mrs. Walker normally weighs about 135 pounds.

In addition to the first set of triplets—Peter, Paul and Patricia—born April 21, 1943, the Walkers have John, 16; Michael Joseph, 14, and James Patrick, 6.

Her doctor said he had known of the pending multiple birth "since the start."

The State department of health said chances of two sets of triplets in the same family would be one in 54 million.

Conferees Agree on U. S. Pension Bill

By Jerry Kluttz

The 10-man House-Senate conference late yesterday came to a final and unanimous agreement on the long-debated Civil Service retirement bill.

The conference report will be filed in both houses of Congress on Monday. Prompt and favorable action is anticipated.

Two major changes were made yesterday by the conferees at the suggestion of Senator Taft (R., Ohio), who managed the original bill in the Senate. They were:

That the maximum annuity payable be reduced from 90 to 80 per cent of average salary, but there is to be no limit on years of service that can be counted toward an annuity. The Senate bill placed a limit of 35 on years of service. It was wiped out.

The second change will permit an employe who has served at least 5 but less than 20 years of service to either withdraw his money from the fund with interest, or else elect to take a deferred annuity to start at age 62.

Taft estimated that these two changes will save the retirement fund about 25 million dollars a year. He had insisted that the cost be cut to insure favorable Senate action.

Briefly, the conference report would make these changes in the present retirement system:

1. An employe who is 55 and who has had at least 30 years of service could retire on an annuity reduced 3 per cent for each year he's under 60. An employe who is laid off after he has served 25 or more years could draw an annuity reduced by 3 per cent for each year he's under 60. No other change was made in present retirement ages.

2. The pensions of persons who will retire will be increased from

Krug Proposes States Enjoy Tidal Profits

Suggests 37½% Go To Build Public Works, 52½ to Reclamation

Secretary of Interior Krug proposed yesterday that the Federal Government let the States receive up to 90 per cent of revenues from oil-bearing tidelands.

Krug sent to Congress a draft of suggested legislation for development and conservation of tideland resources.

These tidelands are the underwater lands off the coasts of the States. Some have rich oil deposits.

The States long have claimed these lands, but the Supreme Court decided last June that the Federal Government has paramount interest in lands off California.

President Truman then instructed Krug to draw up a plan for Federal administration of its interest. The plan is what Krug has now submitted to Congress.

Krug proposed that a three-man commission be established to appraise existing oil leases in the tidelands.

As for the income, Krug proposed:

That the Federal Government pay 37½ per cent of it to the States within whose boundaries the activities take place. This sum could be used by the State for public works.

That the Government pay 52½ per cent of it into the reclamation funds of the tidewater States having such funds.

Krug recommended land rentals of 25 cents an acre for up to the fourth lease-year and not less than 50 cents an acre for every lease-year thereafter.

A royalty of not less than 12½ per cent of the value of oil or gas produced was recommended. He suggested a minimum royalty of $1 an acre a year, in place of rental, in off-structure leases.

Army Controls V-2 Rocket's Path At 70 Miles Up

White Sands, N. Mex., Feb. 6 (U.P.).—American scientists today succeeded in controlling the flight path of a German V-2 rocket at the White Sands proving ground here, the Army said tonight.

Maj. J. B. Dickey, Army public relations officer here, said the test was made with control equipment developed by a contractor for the Army's ordnance department. By means of an electronic guidance system, he reported, the V-2 was kept under control.

Dickey disclosed the rocket was maneuvered successfully in movement from left to right and up and down during its flight. It reached an altitude of approximately 70 miles, he said.

(At Washington, Army sources said the successful control of the V-2 rocket at White Sands, N. Mex., was probably the most important advance in guided missile development since the end of the war.)

British Agreed to Return It

Discovery of Letter Unsettles Status of Kitty Hawk Plane

The Wright brothers' plane that stirred the world in 1903 when it first carried man aloft once again is the center of controversy.

The plane, which first flew at Kitty Hawk in 1903, now reposes in London's Science Museum where Orville Wright sent it in 1928 after a dispute with the Smithsonian Institution here.

Later the Insitution and Wright were reconciled.

Apparently Orville Wright intended to return the plane to the United States after World War II was over and so informed the London museum in a letter written in 1943. The head of the museum replied early in 1944 that he would return the plane whenever Wright wanted it.

Orville Wright died January 30.

His will provided the plane would remain in the science museum "unless before my decease I personally in writing have asked its withdrawal."

Yesterday officials of the London museum said they were "very pleased that such a valuable exhibit should now become the property of the museum."

But last night a 1943 letter authorizing return of the plane from London was found in Orville Wrights effects at Dayton, Ohio.

The letter, sent to Col. E. E. B. Mackintosh, then director of the London Science Museum, said:

"I have decided to have the Kitty Hawk plane returned to America when transportation (due to the war) is less hazardous than board would have charge of schools and libraries. Major legislation passed by the council would have to clear through Congress: either House and the President would have power to veto council legislation.

To Poll 'Trade Groups'

In yesterday's hearing, both Reilly and Beattie announced that their organizations are to be polled to determine exact views of members on the home-rule bill.

Reilly told the committee the Board of Trade Directors, pending the poll, had agreed on this policy:

"Since 1916 the position of the Board of Trade has been to support the principle that residents of the District of Columbia should be represented in Congress and in the electoral college. In the lack of such representation it doubts any satisfactory solution of questions arising through operation of nonrepresentative government in Washington."

The policy statement then said the directors have "many doubts" about the value of the results which would be achieved by the proposed bill.

Want Official Plebiscite

The Board of Trade directors urged that no home-rule bill passed by Congress should take affect unless approved by an official plebiscite. They also said it would be premature to adopt the bill's present reorganization features affecting these agencies: Public Utilities Commission, Zoning Commission, Board of Tax Appeals, Board of Education, Board of Library Trustees, Recreation Board, and Unemployment Compensation Board. In line with this, the directors suggested treating the reorganization plan as separate legislation, leaving in th present bill only the minimum of reorganization essential to home rule, if enacted.

Wants Taxpayers on Council

Finally, the Trade Board statement said, "the directors feel that no elected official should qualify for local office who claims exemption from local taxation on the basis of his residence in a State."

Reilly was quizzed at length by committee members.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) sponsor of the home-rule bill, recalled the preliminary home-rule hearings last July, and said "we were very sorry that the Board of Trade didn't see fit to help us in our efforts."

Reilly replied that "about all we could have said at that time was that we favor national representation. We didn't think that would help very much."

To another question by Auchincloss, Reilly said "we're not against the home-rule bill as such; we feel the bill should be enlarged to include national representation, and anything short of that is not what the people of the District ought to have.

"We ought to have our own representatives in Congress and then study District needs; not have a qualified, limited local government and no one to represent us in Congress."

Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) asked Reilly if he is satisfied with the present District government.

"I think we have a very excellent form of government, one of the finest in the country," said Reilly.

Deane then asked about the home-rule bill's provision for long-term public borrowing here. Such loans would have to be approved by the city council, by referendum, and finally by Congress and the President.

Bonds Depend on Congress

Reilly said he did not believe the District could sell long-term bonds unless there was definite assurance of what Federal contribution Congress would make to the District. "You can't borrow money unless you know what Congress is going to do to make the bonds good," he said.

Later Auchincloss told Reilly he had been advised that the Board of Trade committee which studied the home-rule bill had reported favorably on it.

Reilly replied that Auchincloss has been misinformed. As the hearings ended, Harry N. Stull, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and a member of the Board of Trade committee, told reporters he felt Reilly had given an inaccurate impression. On this point, Col. William Press, executive secretary of the Board of Trade, made public the following text of the home-rule statement prepared by the board's committee on District government:

Committee's Statement

"Members of the committee feel that any form of self-government for the District which does not include national representation in Congress and participation in national elections, in accordance with policies of the Board of Trade of many years standing, would fall short of the objective of our full rights as American citizens. We strongly indorse the general principles upon which the Auchincloss bill has been constructed, although we differ among ourselves on many of its details."

Beattie said the Junior Board of Commerce directors were leaving their home-rule policy statement subject to amendment as a result of the membership poll. The statement said the directors favor the home-rule plan in the bill, with some exceptions, "but considers now and always that national representation is indispensable for the success of any form of representative government for the District."

Questions Constitutionality

The Junior Board also questioned the constitutionality of the legislative system in the bill, suggesting that District laws should be made by positive action of Congress.

The Junior Board also opposed letting the District float bonds, opposed an elected school board, and urged that both voters and candidates taking part in home rule be legally domiciled in the District. It joined with the Board of Trade in saying that home rule should take effect only if approved by an official referendum here.

Frick hit hard at the idea of letting Federal employes keeping home State residences vote here. Under questioning he said he was a part-time attorney, and has a job in the Federal Government. He said he had been born and raised in the District.

"Unfair to Bona Fide Residents"

"This bill would permit the approximately one third Federal employes who dwell within the District to cast their vote for the election of councilmen and to vote in favor of bonded indebtedness," Frick's statement said.

"This class of residents have no allegiance to the District, are not subject to income taxes, which in itself should be a bar to voting, and would be permitted to vote an indebtedness for which the property of the bona fide residents would be security.

"Another objectionable feature would be that many businessmen living in nearby Maryland or Virginia and who have large businesses and investments in the District would have no say in the incurring of local indebtedness, even though the Government employes who might pay no form of taxes here would be able to vote an obligation upon such businessmen's assets."

Labor Department Change

Turner testified that the Central Labor Union, while indorsing the bill, wants three separate three-member boards to be set up in the proposed District labor department. He said the boards should have a representative each for industry, labor and the public. The Boards would handle (1) minimum wages, industrial safety, and child labor; (2) unemployment compensation, and (3) workmen's compensation. Their members should be appointed for three-year terms by the proposed mayor with approval of the city council, he said. He also urged putting highways under the proposed department of public works instead of in a separate department.

In presenting the CIO statement, Mrs. Evans declared that "it is only by having officials responsive to the will of the people that we will have efficient government."

Cites Commission "Failures"

She said the Commissioners had failed to act on important city issues, including the high cost of living, labor problems, health conditions, and police brutality. She also urged that the bill include a proportional representation system of voting to insure a place for minority groups in the home rule setup.

feeding of vital grains to livestock, and with restrictions on nonessential uses, there should be an abundance of grain—plenty to take care of the Nation's legitimate needs."

Anderson apparently was aiming at the investigation into the need to cut down the use of grain by the Nation's distillers now under way before the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report.

Dr. Dennis A. FitzGerald, secretary general of the International Emergency Food Committee, testifying at that hearing yesterday, pictured an improved food situation throughout the world. Since last October, FitzGerald said, the amount of food available in this country for export has increased by about 20 million bushels.

FitzGerald reported that the wheat crop in both Argentina and Australia is proving better than earlier forecasts. At the same time winter weather in Europe is much more favorable to a good harvest next year than it was a year ago.

FitzGerald emphasized, however, that the food supplies in the world are far below even minimum requirements—that rations in most European countries are lower than a year ago.

Fear Greater Use

At the Department of Agriculture the fear was expressed that the sudden deadline in grain prices might lead to greater non-essential uses of grain. It was pointed out that the January 1 report of grain stocks on hand showed a decline of almost 600 million bushels of all grain since a year ago.

For three years the Nation has been consuming and exporting more grain than it has been producing.

The collapse of commodity prices was advanced by Elder Statesman Bernard M. Baruch, as a reason for asking to be excused from testifying before the Senate Banking subcommittee studying rationing and price controls. Baruch telegraphed Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) the evidence "superficial perhaps, but existing that commodities show a tendency to soften" would make the need for controls "less pressing."

In sympathy with grain prices the prices of most other commodities turned violently downward.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, wholesale butter dropped 3 to 4 cents a pound, bringing it down to 83 to 86 cents.

In Midwestern livestock markets hogs were from one fourth of a cent to a cent and a half a pound below Thursday's figures. Vegetable oils were down from 1 to 2 cents a pound.

the President," Ross said, "that there has been no change in the set-up here. There are three aides of equal rank. There is no top aide, no chief of Armed Forces aide."

He listed the three: General Vaughan, representing the Army; Capt. Robert L. Dennison, representing the Navy, and Col. Robert B. Landry, representing the Air Force.

Last night, when reporters contacted him, General Vaughan said, with a smile:

"I suppose it is as much of a misdemeanor to be premature as it is to be inaccurate."

The appointment of Colonel Landry, a survivor of the Pearl Harbor attack, was announced early yesterday. It was in recognition of the new status of the Air Force under the Armed Forces Unification Act.

A report got around that there was to be a new Army aide in addition to General Vaughan.

General Vaughan, appearing in the White House lobby, was asked about this. It was then that he told reporters that he was to be the head man, with the others ranking as assistants. From his statement, it was concluded that Col. Louis H. Renfrow would be the new Army aide.

In hauling General Vaughan down from his summit, however, Secretary Ross explained that Colonel Renfrow was to be only an assistant aide and would not rank with the others.

Bevin Plan Periled By Fear of Russia

If Atom War Comes

Navy Plans To Use Sub As Missile

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy announced last night that it will convert the 1570-ton fleet submarine Cusk into a guided-missile submersible.

Three other subs of the same type and four 2400-ton Gearing-class destroyers also will be rebuilt for special combat roles in a possible atomic war. They will serve as experimental prototypes for a probably radically different fighting fleet of the future.

One of the subs—the Perch—will be refitted as an underwater troop transport. It could carry more than 100 Marines on special missions—perhaps secret landings on enemy shores.

Two other submarines will be converted into experimental radar picket craft. They could be dispatched to enemy controlled waters to give advance warning of enemy bombers attacking the United States, our advance bases, or Fleet.

The destroyers will replace slower destroyer escorts in anti-submarine work when converted. Two of the very fast new vessels will be specially designed for "hunter-killer" duties, operating with carrier planes to run down enemy U-boats. The other two will be equipped for convoy work.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan announced Thursday that work had been suspended indefinitely on two large guided missile surface warships—the Kentucky and Hawaii. He said the action was taken because development of missiles for the craft was not far enough advanced and the money authorized for the project was needed for next year's shipbuilding program.

Navy spokesmen explained yesterday that armament for the guided missile submarine is of different type than that wanted for the Kentucky and Hawaii and is ready for installation on the Cusk.

The new type craft, it was said, will be able to approach a target secretly, surface to fire its rockets and then submerge and escape.

Unlike the nine-ship shipbuilding and conversion program announced by Sullivan Thursday—funds for which must be voted by Congress—work on the Cusk and seven other ships is ready to begin. Funds for the conversion were appropriated at the last session.

Conversion of the destroyers will consist of removing some of the guns and installing the latest type sound and radar detection gear. The USS Epperson and USS Basilone will be reclassified as destroyer escorts, and the USS Carpenter and USS Robert A. Owens as "hunt-killer" destroyers.

Submarines chosen for conversion to radar picket craft are the USS Requin and USS Spinax.

Scandinavians Shy From Positive Stand; Benelux Bargains

(From Press Dispatches)

London, Feb. 6.—Diplomatic observers said tonight Europe's fear of Soviet Russia is threatening to kill British Foreign Secretary Bevin's plan for a western European union.

Denmark yesterday took the same stand as Sweden against Scandinavian participation in any great power bloc, and a Norwegian source here predicted a similar statement from Oslo Saturday.

Their attitudes were not of non-cooperation but of noncommitment to any proposals which would bind them unalterably.

The Benelux nations—Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—appeared willing to come in only on their own terms — an equal voice with Britain, France and the United States in the western German settlement.

Accept Moscow Interpretation

British Minister of State Hector McNeil was in Brussels for talks with Benelux officials on the subject.

Danish Prime Minister Hans Hedooft two days ago told a Social Democratic party meeting "it will neither be in the interests of Denmark nor the whole of Scandinavia to deepen the unfortunately distinct contrasts between groups of great powers."

Despite British insistence the Bevin plan is not directed against Russia, it appeared Scandinavia was accepting Moscow's interpretation that the proposed union was a step toward war.

France and Britain are drawing up mutual defense treaties to cover Germany's western neighbors. The treaties would commit France, Britain and the Benelux countries to assist each other in event of German aggression. France sounded out the Benelux nations on the treaties January 21, but has received no reply.

May Ask U. S. to Intervene

Foreign office sources indicated Britain and France would seek U. S. aid to reach agreement with the Benelux powers and thus clear the way for the five-power pact as the nucleus of Bevin's western union.

A conference on Germany opens here February 20.

Britain and France will begin talks in Paris on February 17 to discuss cooperation among their colonies in connection with Bevin's plan.

French and Italian industrialists, concluding a four-day conference at Paris, announced they are in favor of "immediate" measures toward a customs union; as "the prelude to closer cooperation between their countries, Europe and the world at large."

Moscow radio today attacked British War Minister Emanuel Shinwell, left-wing cabinet member who hitherto has escaped Soviet criticism.

The broadcast said Shinwell "sanctioned the Bevin plan for splitting Europe and mustering a military and political bloc against the Soviet Union" and balkan countries.

The Moscow paper Izvestia said the new Russian-Romanian treaty of mutual defense was especially significant at a time when international reaction was trying to split off western Germany and include it in a military-political bloc.

Diplomatic quarters saw the treaty as the first step in a new Russian campaign to unite eastern Europe against the plans of the United States and Britain for the immediate future of western Europe.

Anglo-U. S.-Scandinavian War Pact Related in Soviet

Moscow, Feb. 6 (NYHT).—The Soviet press published today a Copenhagen newspaper allegation that the United States and Britain have concluded a secret military agreement with Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

According to the Copenhagen newspaper Folk, Britain is supplying the Scandinavian countries with jet fighter planes in exchange for an agreement whereby Scandinavian bases would be made available for American heavy bombers in the event of war.

Reds Ban U. S. Posters, Curb Assembly in Austrian Zone

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, Feb. 6 (NYHT).—The Soviet high command has imposed in its zone of occupation the most drastic curbs on the right of assembly and dissemination of information since the war, it was learned tonight.

The Russian military order, which warned violators that they "may expect stiffest punishment according to Soviet law," was placed in effect after United States relief mission posters were ordered removed from sight in eastern Austria.

The American posters showed that four fifths of Austrian bread is contributed by the United States and that money spent for loaves is used by the Austrian government for other internal aid projects.

The Russian order, said that as of January 28, "movie theater shows, public meetings and every parade or non-religious procession" will be permitted only with advance approval" from the Soviet town commander.

"Each person who intends to publish posters and announcements,' must request advance permission. If approval is refused, the order said, the entertainment, meeting or posting must be cancelled immediately, "with no exceptions."

Of 1163 American relief posters sent into eastern Austria Soviet authorities tore down 152, confiscated 496 before posting, and covered over with their own propaganda posters 284.

Letter Upsets Status of Plane

at present. Later I will let you know the time for its return."

Colonel Mackintosh replied in January, 1944, acknowledging receipt of Orville Wright's letter. He said:

"I am not surprised to learn of your decision [to have the plane returned]. The full recantation by the Smithsonian [of its claims for the Langley aerodrome] at long last, was so wholehearted and satisfactory . . . that I naturally began to feel that the precious plane would have to cross the Atlantic again. . . ."

Mackintosh discussed the then hazardous Atlantic but said he had no desire "to retain the plane longer than is necessary for purely practical purposes."

Last night Colonel Mackintosh again acknowledged he received the letter from Orville Wright and said he supposed the plane would be returned if Wright's letter "fits in with the terms of the will from a legal point of view." He is now retired.

Limit Set On Spending

and hold Republicans to their initial three-billion spending cut. Only five Democrats voted with 39 Republicans for the final report. They were Representatives Robert L. Doughton (N. C.), J. Vaughan Gary (Va.), John H. Kerr (N. C.), Albert Thomas (Tex.) and Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Colo.).

Twenty Democrats headed by Representative Clarence Cannon (Mo.) promptly filed a dissenting report terming any attempt to fix a spending ceiling at this time "obviously absurd and nothing short of an indefensible subterfuge."

Said the minority statement:

"We are unwilling to be parties to the adoption of an arbitrary recommendation which due to lack of information on which to base a justificable conclusion will be just as ineffectual, and fully as drastic a violation of the spirit of the law."

Moves to Increase Cut

During the closed session meeting Cannon moved to increase the cut to 3 billion dollars. He said he did it to put Senate Appropriations Chairman Bridges and House Appropriations Chairman John Taber, original proponents of the deeper cut, "on the spot." Cannon's motion was defeated 40 to 17. Taber later chided Democrats for supporting the larger cut while opposing the smaller one.

Representative Albert Gore (D., Tenn.) moved to make the proposed debt payment a pledge, and to increase the payment to five billion dollars. His motion failed, 44 to 17. As a substitute for Gore's motion, Representative Jamie L. Whitten (D., Miss.) proposed 10 per cent of annual revenues be applied against the debt. This also was rejected, 45 to 15.

Both Taber and Bridges argued the 37.2 ceiling did not mean congressional savings need be limited to 2½ billion dollars. Both contended Congress would actually have to cut more to keep within the ceiling, because of unbudgeted spending already approved as Administration additions to the President's own budget.

Foreign Aid Costs Increase 250 Million, Is Estimate

China has been boosted to about 570 million dollars. The estimate issued yesterday was the first official word of how big the request would be.

In sending the estimate to the Senate committee, Lewis W. Douglas, ambassador to Great Britain, emphasized that 570 million would be the "probable" amount, although he said it did not yet represent an official request approved by President Truman.

Douglas listed four main items of foreign expenditure which, he said, had already been outlined in the President's budget.

The first was $6,800,000,000 for the European Recovery Program.

The second was $1,400,000,000 for government and relief in the occupied areas.

The third was 133 million dollars for Philippine war damage rehabilitation and veterans' benefits. This amount already has been authorized by Congress.

The fourth was 750 million dollars for "other foreign aid." The total requested in the President's Budget thus amounts to $9,083,000,000.

The addition of 250 million dollars in the category of "other foreign aid" brings the new total to $9,333,000,000.

Douglas did not make a detailed breakdown of "other foreign aid" because, he explained, "it is not possible to determine the total of this item with finality at this time." The reason, he said, was that the various programs in this category had not yet been "cleared and screened" in the executive branch of the Government.

He did say, however, that this item included aid to China, military aid to Greece and Turkey, the Army's request for funds for Japanese and Korean reconstruction, funds for inter-American military cooperation and aid to Trieste.

"I shall, of course, be glad to furnish more detailed and definite figures later when I am in a position to do so," Douglas wrote. The letter came from him because Secretary Marshall has put him in charge of presenting the European Recovery Program to Congress.

Still other figures, expected over the weekend, will show the Senate committee approximately where and how the State Department proposes spending more than two billion dollars of Marshall Plan funds in the western hemisphere outside the United States.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Senate committee has been anxious to get these details because his committee will start drafting a bill Monday. He again showed yesterday that he was conscious of the need of getting an authorization bill approved by April 1, when existing funds expire.

"The time table of foreign aid is just as important as the fund totals," he told a reporter.

On the other side of the Capitol Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) retreated from previous statements that his House Foreign Affairs Committee might take until long after April 1 to report out a European Recovery Bill.

Eaton said he hoped to get a committee bill to the floor of the House by March 15, but he "couldn't predict."

Grain Price Drop Reflected Slowly

98c Wholesale

Dollar Butter Back; May Go Higher

That $1 a pound butter is around again, and may go still higher.

Local retail markets yesterday were expected to continue to follow rising wholesale prices which soared to 98 cents for top-grade butter in Baltimore. Home delivered butter here yesterday was priced variously between 99 cents and $1.03. A week ago it ranged between 97 and 99 cents.

Butter at local chain stores yesterday retailed generally at 95 and 96 cents a pound for best grade. At independents, it was nearer $1.

Last previous spell when buetter to the home sold consistently over the $1 a pound level was during the week beginning January 5. On January 13, it dropped generally 10 cents a pound.

Meats Sensitive To Changes but Bread Lags Behind

Bureau of Labor Statistics experts yesterday cautiously declined to say when the current drop of grain prices would be reflected in the consumers' cost of living.

The most they would vouchsafe is that the housewife can't expect to see cheaper bread tomorrow. It doesn't happen that fast.

They point out that the answer to the question: "How long does it take for a wholesale price change to show up in retail prices?" is, "It all depends,"—on the commodity and the season.

A drop in the wholesale price of cabbages in the morning produce market will show up in lower prices that afternoon or next day at the neighborhood grocery store. But a decline in grain on the commodity markets doesn't show up so soon—the product goes through many stages before it is bread on the shelf.

Meat Prices React Quickly

Retail meat price changes, some officials noted, seem to follow the wholesale pattern with a price lag of only two or three weeks. But meat is a perishable commodity and the same beef bought on the hoof is sold by the pound of hamburger in a relatively few days.

Examination of two previous periods where prices, particularly grain, dropped, shows that in general retail food price levels did not drop until five or six months later.

It also shows that a drop in the wholesale prices of grain does not necessarily mean a prompt decline, even at wholesale, of other food items. The evidence:

In 1920, grain dropped 50 per cent—the price was cut in half—between May and December. Retail prices of bread and cereal products did not drop sharply until November. Meat, at wholesale and retail, continued to rise until the seasonal factor hit the wholesale price in October, the retail rate the next month. Dairy products, wholesale and retail, rose until December, when they slumped sharply, counter to the seasonal trend.

Little Effect in 1937 Drop

There was also a decline in grain prices in 1937, with the index dropping from 119 in April to 69 in November. Retail prices of cereal products reflected practically nothing of it throughout the year. Livestock and meats continued to rise and did not fall off until the seasonal factor hit in the fall. Dairy products, wholesale and retail, rose throughout the year.

But another factor, particularly in the present situation, is the psychological one. Neither Government officials nor traders in the big markets would speculate about it. It could have more effect than all the rest put together. There could be built up a psychology of falling prices that would show itself quickly in the grocery store.

BLS analysts pointed out that, in general, falling wholesale prices do not show themselves as quickly in retail rates as do rising prices.

In a rising price situation, the retail marketer is inclined to lift his figures, thinking ahead to the cost of replacing the items sold.

In a falling market, the retailer still wants to recover the cost of his product, purchased before. He does not drop his price, ordinarily, until some competitor, having purchased at the lower levels, sells for a lower figure. Then competition forces everyone's prices down to that rate.

Move Studied For New Vote On Grain Curb

Democratic members of the House Banking Committee are considering a move to force reconsideration of the group's 12-to-9 "No" on extending the liquor distilling holiday.

In one informed quarter it was said a switch of sentiment is developing in the committee, with the strong possibility that a recount would show a majority for continued controls.

The move to force a recount was originally scheduled for next week, but may be delayed because of the exodus of GOP members for Lincoln Day dates. Proponents of extension want the full committee present.

Group's Report Awaited

Democratic talk of a retake of the followed announcement by Chairman Jesse P. Walcott (R., Wis.), anopponent of controls, that the matter in no event will come up in committee until the Senate-House joint economic unit makes its findings on the President's proposed order extending the controls through next October.

Wolcott, after talks with House Republican leaders, said he would determine at that time whether to reopen the question.

Reports circulated that the GOP leadership wants a change in the grain allocation formult, to put the greatest emphasis on use during the uncontrolled 1947 period, if the committee decides to reconsider.

A subcommittee of the joint economic committee meanwhile wound up public hearings on the President's proposed order. Chairman Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) said his group expected to have a report ready for the full committee Monday.

Before hearings closed, the joint group as told by A. P. Fenderson, assistant to the head of Publicker Industries, Inc. that if allocation quotas are not restored the amount of grain for distilling liquor will soon total ten million bushels a month. When the temporary holiday expired February 1, grain use in the industry was being held to 2½ million bushels a month.

Grain Export Charged

Fenderson charged that two of the Nation's "Big Four" whisky makers bought American grain during the recent distilling holiday and shipped it to Canada for use in plants there. He made the charge against Hiram Walker and Seagram's, two major competitors, and said it was "unfair to other American distillers."

Stephen C. Carey, former relief commissioner for the American Friends Society, told the group grain division in the United States to non-food uses was "widely publicized in Europe by certain interests seeking to sap America's influence."

Dr. Armand Hammer, president of the United Distillers of America, Inc., suggested restoring controls on a limited basis. He proposed distillers be held to three million bushels a month "until the next crop comes in."

Walter J. Mason, AFL legislative representative, urged Congress to do something to safeguard the welfare of distillery workers if controls are reimposed.

Newsmen Assail MacArthur Bar to Magazine Writer

Tokyo, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Tokyo Correspondents Club tonight issued a statement deploring General MacArthur's exclusion of a magazine correspondent from Japan without a hearing.

Compton Pakenham of Newsweek was excluded on the ground he was associated "with Japanese of deep-rooted feudalistic and militaristic tendencies."

The club said it was not defending "his activities, of which as a group we are not informed." The statement added, however, that "no evidence has been made public to substantiate the charges, and the action has been taken on an unsupported accusation."

The Army Department recently overruled MacArthur's policy of restricting correspondents' travel from his command.

The early Roman calendar had no January. The year began with March and had only 10 months.

Rent Control Life at Stake

trol local rents ended, too. So the 1947 rent law was against the Constitution.

Appeal Is Heard

From this judgment, the Justice Department filed the appeal that was heard yesterday.

While the men on the bench have changed from time to time, the court for 15 years has been torn by basic differences in their beliefs about the Constitution and the powers of the Congress. The split was thrown in a new and sharp relief by the clean-cut issues of the rent case.

From what they said at the hearing, it was plain that while the justices may very well uphold rent control, they will do so for different reasons. There may not be a majority behind any line of reasoning. The questions from the bench yesterday showed that the court will view the rent case from no less than four points of view.

Four Views Taken

And here they are:

The broad power view—of men like Justice Black, that in any crisis—war or no war—Congress has power to control rents or do anything else needful to serve the general welfare.

The limited power view—of men like Justice Frankfurter, who agree that Congress may control rents under the war power, while the war is going on and afterward to cushion the shift back to a peacetime economy, but who say, too, that there is no general welfare power, and that if Congress can't act under a war power it can't act at all.

The cautious view—of men like Justice Jackson, who agree with the Frankfurter school that Congress has power in wartime but—in 1947 and 1948—are found asking, with grave doubt, "what war power?" There was a war power, yes. But when does it, or did it, end?"

The practical view of Chief Justice Vinson who—as it seemed—saw the rent case as a job for the court to do, on the basis of its own facts and any sound rules that covered it, and was loath to go any further into the field of constitutional doctrine than he had to.

Sees Rights Invaded

Attorney Paul S. Knight of Cleveland told the justices that Federal Judge Jones was right about the power of Congress to control local rents having come to an end when President Truman said the shooting was over, more than a year ago.

Any move to control rents after that, said Knight, was an invasion of the power of the States, and was against the ninth and tenth terday, Schwellenbach said he had no comment. Schwellenbach entered the 33-day-old strike against 42 GSI cafeterias when President Truman asked him on January 20 to do what he could to settle it.

Local 471 officers who filed the non-Communist affidavits with the NLRB and finanical statements with the Labor Department were: Mrs. Rose Randolph, vice president; Mrs. Geneva Brown, financial secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth King, treasurer Palmer as business agent, and four trustees, Mrs. Audrey Yates, James Malone, James Jackson and Mrs. Ethel Frederick. The post of recording secretary has been vacant several months.

Palmer said an eletcion of officers was scheduled for February 23.

About 75 strikers appeared again yesterday at the office of Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming.

Greek Navy To Fire at All Submarines

Athens, Greece, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—The navy ministry was reported today to have ordered all Greek ships to fire on submarines in Greek waters without warning.

The order followed persistent reports, some confirmed officially, that submarines of "foreign powers" were transporting guerillas and helping exiled Communists escape from remote islands.

Newspapers said authorities had received word two submarines had been observed separately in Preveza port area and in the Kytheran Channel between Kythera Island and Crete.

The United States has an 18-ship task force in the Mediterranean but no submarines.

Officials announced that a force of 100 guerillas haid raided an area less than 18 miles north of Athens, but withdrew early today after 14 hours' stiff fighting with gendarmes and civilian defense corps.

The Greek army rushed reinforcements to the area.

Dwight Griswold, chief of the American Military Mission, announced that Maj. Gen. Arthur Harper, his deputy, had returned to the United States for discussion of the military situation here.

New Rent Bill Permits Rises

been upped 15 per cent under voluntary leases running until the end of this year would be decontrolled as of next December 31.

The bill provides court appeals both for tenant and landlord interests.

Tennants who dispute landlords' claims of higher operating costs can appeal to the Federal Housing Expediter, and to the courts.

Local rent advisory boards whose recommendations are rejected by the expediter can also make court appeals.

The provision for decontrol of all areas where 1 per cent of the dwelling units are vacant would apply, according to a housing official, to Denver, Seattle, San Antonio, Memphis, Tulsa, Portland, Oreg, and the three Virginia cities of Newport News, Portsmouth and Norfolk.

Critics of the bill pointed out, however, that if landlords simply withheld from the market units as they became vacant, or increased the asking price of houses for sale to exorbitant levels, it would take only a brief period to bring many more cities into the decontrol classification.

To Have 13 Days Left

Since present rent controls expire February 29, the Senate Banking Committee, resuming consideration of legislation on February 16, will have only 13 more days before the deadline.

If there is no agreement within that time, Tobey suggested, a bill would be sought extending the present law another 30 days.

Two Democratic members predicted the full committee would reject the bill in its present form and demand a redraft.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) said "this won't be the bill that will come out." Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said "the whole bill will have to be reworded."

Several other members were understood to be strongly opposed to several clauses, particularly the provision ending ceilings in areas where 1 per cent of housing is vacant.

Argentine Judge Bars Votes for Communists

La Plata, Argentina, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Jorge Bilbao today denied legal standing to the Communist Party in Buenos Aires Province, thereby barring it from the March 7 congressional election. Judge Bilbao ruled the party had an "international character and pursues illegal aims."

Britain to Nationalize Power Plants April 1

London, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Fuel Minister Hugh Gaitskell announced in the Commons today the government plans to take over all power plants April 1 under the nationalization act adopated last year.

"A very appropriate date," a Conservative member shouted.

London Stocks Drop Sharply On News of American Decline

London, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—London's stock market, nervous over Wall st. and Chicago declines, and over President Truman's warning of a possible crash, slumped badly today and closed unsettled after its heaviest day's selling since last July.

Oils, coppers and industrials led the skid. Prices fell off millions of pounds.

Other key exchanges took the situation more calmly, United Press dispatches reported:

Paris—Prices on the Bourse fell slightly in light trading. Foreign issues declined slightly. On the free money market the dollar remained at 307.5 francs. The black market price ranged between 305 and 308.

Amsterdam—The general trend improved somewhat in limited trade after a reaction yesterday in sympathy with Wall st.

Brussels—The exchange remained firm. The market has been cheerful this week, and the period has been one of the most active in 18 months.

Stockholm—Trading was dull. It was not affected by slumping trends.

The average of leading industrial shares at the close in London was 120.6 compared with 123 at yesterday's close. This was the lowest since December 9 and compares with a high of 129 December 31.

American stocks were marked down sharply in London. Other foreign issue were neglected. Even such "protected" British industries as breweries and chain stores went down in sympathy.

Apparently President Truman's statement broke London's usual resistance to Wall Street reactions. In addition there was anxiety regarding the budget after Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee's new call today for a ceiling on wage and profit rises.

Newsprint Supply Gains

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 6 (AP).—Newsprint supply will catch up with demand by 1950, Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) told the Ohio Newspaper Association today. Brown, chairman of the House Committee on Newsprint and Paper Supply, said that consumption of newsprint in the United States is more than twice what it was in 1913.

Waldman Has Plan to Learn Stand on Reds

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A proposal which would smoke out candidates like Henry Wallace on the question of Communist support was outlined to Congress yesterday by Louis Waldman, prominent labor attorney and civil rights expert.

Waldman was one of a number of witnesses before the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee which is studying proposed Communist controls.

Ferenc Nagy, exiled Hungarian Prime Minister, told the committee that communism and Soviet imperialism are "the greatest threat which has ever endangered the peace and existence of mankind." He said that the only hope of peace and freedom for countries like Hungary "under the yoke of communism" lies in the democracies continuing resistance to Communist infiltration.

Written Denial Urged

Waldman suggested that any candidate for Federal public office who is indorsed or nominated by an organization "found to be totalitarian" should be required to file a written declination and rejection of such indorsement or nomination, or a written statement under oath that he accepts the principles and policies of such organization.

He told reporters that in his opinion this would be one way of "smoking out" Henry Wallace on the suport he is receiving from the Communist Party.

Waldman, counsel for such international unions as the Ladies Garment Workers, outlined to the committee legislation which he believed would control communism and at the same time protect civil rights.

He proposed that the statute first declare the existence of all totalitarian organizations a danger to this country, and require the registration of all such organizations and their affiliates or fronts.

Courts Would Decide

Key to Waldman's proposal is the fact that the courts would then have to determine if any organization is totalitarian. He said he opposed the present loyalty program in which the Attorney General rules on which organizations are subversive. Under his plan either the Attorney General or any citizen could apply to the courts to order an organization to register. Penalty for failure to register would be contempt of court. Waldman also suggested that totalitarian groups should not be given tax exemptions as charitable or educational institutions.

Attorney Donald Richberg, formerly with NRA, warned that Communist-inspired strikes are "an increasing menace." Communism, he said, emphasizes "the satanic doctrine that the end justifies the means."

He proposed a registration bill making it illegal for "a secret political organization" to use the United States mails or any interstate agency of transportation.

AFL Still Seeks Political Director

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor still was without a director today to guide its political activities in the forthcoming elections.

The AFL's administrative committee ended its meeting here last night and indicated it would meet again in Washington March 9 to discuss candidates for the $20,000 a year job.

Though without a director, the committee authorized AFL President William Green and Secretary-Treasurer George Meany to proceed with establishment of a Nation-wide political organization. Chief purpose of the organization would be repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and defeat of the act's congressional supporters.

Until a director is selected, the political organization will be directed by Joseph Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor and former vice chairman of the War Production Board.

Former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, long-time friend of the AFL while in Congress, turned down the job because he said he could not give it full time.

Deportation in February Is Hinted for Hanns Eisler

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Federal government conducted a swift deportation hearing today for Hanns Eisler, Hollywood composer, accused of being a former Communist Party member, and a government official indicated he might be out of the country by the end of the month.

The 49-year-old song writer offered no evidence at the immigration service hearing. He is a brother of Gerhart Eisler, designated as America's "No. 1 Communist," by a congressional committee.

The Government's presentation was confined to documents. One of which stated that Hanns Eisler had admitted to the House Un-American Activities Committee he was a member of the Communist Party in 1926 in Germany, his native country.

Another of the documents sought to show the revolutionary nature of the Communist International, of which the German Communist Party was a member.

The presiding inspector at the hearing will make a recommendation as to whether Eisler should be deported. The final decision will rest with Attorney General Tom Clark.

John P. Boyd, executive assistant to the commissioner of immigration and naturalization, presented the case against the composer. Asked if the proceedings would interfere with a concert of Eisler's music set for February 28 here, Boyd answered:

"It is quite possible he may not be in the United States then."

The Government is holding Erhart Eisler at Ellis Island on a deportation warrant, and is resisting his efforts to obtain release on bail through a Federal Court order.

British Jet Pilot Sets New Mark for 100 Kilometers

London, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Squadron Leader W. A. Waterton, flying a standard Gloster Meteor jet-propelled fighter, broke an international speed record for a 100-kilometer (62.137-mile) closed course tonight at 542.945 M. P. H.

Waterton covered the course in 6 minutes 52 seconds.

The previous mark was 494.973 M. P. H. set April 19, 1946, by U. S. Air Force Capt. R. A. Baud in a standard P-80A jet plane.

The United States-held record of 650.6 M. P. H. over a three-kilometer (1.864-mile) open course was established at Muroc Field, Calif., by Marine Maj. Marion Carl, August 25, 1947.

States Entitled to Free Hand In Race Matters, Folsom Says

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 6 (AP).—Gov. James E. Folsom declared today the States themselves should handle racial problems without Federal interference, and charged both major parties have used them as a "political football."

In a State-wide broadcast the avowed presidential candidate said he is "sworn to uphold the Constitution of the United States, but I am also sworn to uphold the constitution of the State of Alabama."

"And under it," he continued, "there are certain States' rights which we are allowed. . . ."

Here for the Southern Governors' conference tomorrow Folsom reiterated his intention to oppose President Truman for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A move to "shush" anti-Truman talk will be led by Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, chairman of the Governors' Conference. This group includes Gov. M. E. Thompson of Georgia, Gov. James McCord of Tennessee, and Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida.

They are expected to counsel against a bolt of Southern Democrats as aiding the Republican Party and disastrous to Southern "white supremacy."

They contend the way to head off "anti-Southern" legislation is to put Southern Democrats in key places in Congress—for instance, Representative Eugene Cox (D., Ga.) as chairman of the Rules Committee through a Democratic victory next November.

Governor Lane said he would attempt to hold the conference to discussion of regional colleges for specialized but racially segregated training for whites and Negroes.

School Censorship

The House District Subcommittee that has set itself up as a censor of the textbooks used in Washington's public schools is treading on dangerous ground. We sympathize with the members' desire that our schools shall be "really American in viewpoint and influence." We share their belief that children too young to have developed the critical faculty should be protected from propagandistic or biased teaching, whether derived from textbooks or instructors, that might undermine their faith in the form of government and the social and economic institutions that the great majority of Americans regard as priceless possessions. But it is extraordinarily difficult to achieve these aims without transforming our educational system into a propaganda machine for turning out complacent young Americans convinced that they are living under a social and political regime admitting of no improvement.

Politicians are certainly not qualified either by training or temperament to decide what courses of study shall be pursued in the schools or what textbooks may properly be used by children. Such decisions are rightly regarded by the American people as the responsibility of professional educators who have the knowledge and experience required to formulate plans for the instruction of youth without suppressing the spirit of inquiry that is the hallmark of the enlightened, useful citizen. Often this task is ill-done. However, the people themselves are censors whose criticisms and suggestions can be relied upon to uncover mistakes of judgment and occasional deliberate efforts to preach subversive doctrines to young people under the guise of criticism of American institutions.

In Washington, the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools are the proper authorities to decide on the type of textbooks to be used. It is to them that the District Subcommittee should refer the complaints that have been called to its attention. And they should decide what changes, if any, are required in the light of such criticisms. The subcommittee itself has supplied the strongest possible argument against its own meddlesome procedure by admitting that "our educational system is the bulwark of our freedom and generally enjoys the confidence of our people. It can only enjoy this confidence if it is kept free from politics and propaganda." That essential freedom cannot possibly be maintained, if members of Congress set themselves up as censors, demanding the revision or banning of textbooks that, in their opinion, do not denounce the evils of communism or expatiate on the virtues of American institutions with the force and vigor they desire.

ERP's Purpose

Every now and then in congressional debates or before Congress there issues a statement of principle of such broad perception and clarity that it pierces the wall of narrow considerations that surrounds day-to-day discussion. Such a statement on the European Recovery Program was made before Congress Tuesday by Ronald Bridges, president of the Pacific School of Religion, on behalf of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational and Christian Churches. Among other compelling observations on the philosophy of ERP, he said:

> We are confronted with a fearful threat to democracy; and cherishing our democratic institutions, wishing others to enjoy them as we do, it is natural that we should want to promote democracy, defend it, propagate it. But democracy is not a virus with which people can be inoculated, a benign-appearing disease with which we can infect people. It is a state of health which must be cultivated—a state of mind that proceeds from the healthy, comfortable condition of man. Communism can be forced on people too weak to resist it—not democracy. Communism can be finagled, maneuvered and imposed by coupe. Democracy has to grow organically. People cannot be starved into democratic ways or frightened. They cannot be bargained or threatened into being democratic. If we try any of these tactics or give the appearance of trying them, we damage our own cause terribly . . .
> That the ERP will pay off in economic and democratic benefits, I truly believe. But if we set up the program and administer it with a cold eye on these benefits to ourselves, it will fail of its high purpose and the very benefits hoped for . . .
> We are not out for the purchase of global affection. Purchased love is notoriously short-lived. We want and need the support of our brother nations. But it can't be bought. And it doesn't come because we do something for them. Affection and respect develop when you do things together. That is the genius of the ERP.

In other words, ERP is most of all a venture in international cooperation. Its great historical significance lies not so much in the fact that we are providing unparalleled aid, important as this is, as in the larger consideration that our aid is the fulcrum for multiple participation, the means by which, as General Eisenhower said Thursday, the family of free nations can band together to help themselves.

Mufti In The Open

The spectacle of the notorious Mufti conferring in Damascus with representatives of the Syrian government on plans for the invasion of Palestine is an affront to the United Nations. Syria is a member of the Security Council, the U. N. body charged with the enforcement of peace, and yet Syria is party to a project for breaking the peace. To add to the injury, this Security Council member is deferring to the man who is seeking to overturn by force a General Assembly recommendation. Not a word of protest against this disloyalty, against this warmongering, however, has been forthcoming from either the American or the British delegate at Lake Success. The "war" conference in Damascus appears to be regarded as perfectly proper, though a similar conference in any other part of the world would excite protective measures automatically. U. N. watchfulness on the Greek frontier stands in strange contrast to the supineness over the scheming in the open in Syria.

It is incredible that there should be so much complacency about the trouble-making of Haj Amin el Husseini, the Mufti. This man used to be what Mr. Churchill called Britain's worst enemy. After taking part in anti-British riots in Palestine and Iraq before the war, he escaped to Berlin, where he managed Nazi propaganda in the Near East. He was caught by the French when they entered Germany, put under surveillance near Paris, and then escaped to Cairo. Why he was allowed to slip through French fingers has never been explained. In Cairo Haj Amin stayed in hiding for a while, plotting a comeback to leadership in the Arab League, and gathered around him a gang of Arab cutthroats, many of whom had served through the war in Nazi uniform, in order to fish in the troubled waters of Palestine. This is the man whose slate has suddenly been wiped clean—just because he has defied the United Nations! To make matters more confusing, he is the direct beneficiary of arms that the British are sending to the Near East for precisely the same purpose. It is a topsy turvy world where this cynical proceeding should go on without causing any wonder.

That Haj Amin is moved by any patriotic impulse is sheer fantasy. His interest is self-interest. His venom is directed not only against British and Jews, but mainly against those Arabs who stand in the way of his fanatical ambitions. These men are the moderates who want to live and let live by working out the plan of partition with economic union. The Guatemalan Ambassador to the United States, Dr. Granados, writes in the current United Nations World of the "innumerable friendship and non-aggression pacts concluded between individual Arab and Jewish communities" that he discovered while he was in Palestine as a member of the U. N.'s investigation commission. One of the leaders of the moderate group in Palestine was Ragheb Bey Nashashibi, and he has lately paid with his life for his plea for a peaceful settlement. The moderates, in consequence, are being cowed. They might show more courage but for the danger in which they are placed by what the U. N. Palestine Commission calls "the increasing deterioration in the civil administration" by Great Britain. Even Sir Alexander Cadogan, Britain's delegate to the U. N., admits this. In diplomatic language he says "There has been a severe diminution in the function and authority of civil government." In other words, no life or property is safe in Palestine.

Yet the British persistently refuse to carry out those provisions in the U. N.'s recommendation which would have kept trouble to a minimum. They refuse to let in the U. N.'s commission till two weeks before they withdraw. They will not let the Jews have a controlled port for immigration and supplies. They will not let the Haganah, or Jewish militia, help in keeping order. And the State Department is backing up the British by putting an embargo on arms for shipment to the Haganah. This appeasement of the worst elements in the Arab world, at the expense of the power and prestige of the United Nations, is bound to boomerang. Its fruit is bound to be evil. Not only is the voice of moderation in process of being silenced in Palestine, but the Anglo-American fear of the Mufti is sure to excite contempt elsewhere in the Arab world. The least the United States can do is to ameliorate the arms embargo to the extent of agreeing to ship arms upon certification of the U. N. Palestine Committee. The arms are needed for not only self-protection but also for the defense of U. N. policy.

Not Working Together

"The exigencies of the times," concludes the American Foreign Service Journal, published by the United States Diplomatic Corps, "demand a closer working relationship" between Congress and the State Department. The truth of this observation leaps to the mind of anyone who closely observes the present pulling and hauling over the Marshall Plan. It is painfully evident that Congress has little faith in the State Department. And the men who actively direct our foreign relations reciprocate with a deep-seated aloofness toward Congress. Yet nothing could be plainer than the fact that these two arms of Government must work in coordination if the United States is to make its foreign policies effective.

It is at least hopeful that the Foreign Service Journal recognizes the urgency of improving the relationship between the foreign policy makers in the executive and legislative branches. We hope that leaders in Congress and top personnel in the State Department will do likewise. For it is reasonable to suppose that Congress will have a larger share in the shaping of foreign policy in the years ahead than it has ever had before. Its consent will be necessary whenever funds are to be spent, and material aid looms larger than heretofore in our international dealings. Yet the problem is more than one of liaison. Skillful liaison work ought to be combined with frequent meetings between the Secretary of State and leaders of the Senate and House and their committees on foreign affairs. Secretary Hull proved the effectiveness of such consultation when the United Nations was in the gestation stage. Of course, such conferences take time and patience and statesmanship. But we know of no way in which a successful foreign policy can be carried out under our constitutional system without leadership embracing all three things.

Price Puzzles

If the current declines in prices of foodstuffs and meats serve as a major corrective of an unbalanced price structure and lead to a drop in the cost of living index, it will be all to the good. For if the inflationary rise of living costs had continued, prices would soon have reached levels at which consumer purchasing power would not have been large enough to absorb the products of farm and factory. When that stage was reached, goods would have become a drug on the market, and prices would have been brought down by the costly and painful adjustments that characterize periods of depression.

The present price recessions do not, in our opinion, justify gloomy predictions of an imminent depression. On the contrary, they reflect a more realistic appraisal of the market outlook—a form of insurance against the greatly feared price crash so often predicted. Improved crop prospects both at home and abroad account in part for the decline in grain prices. Uncertainty regarding the fate of the Marshall Plan and ignorance of the extent of future commitments under that plan have also been unsettling price factors in the stock as well as the commodity markets. However, if better crops relieve the strain on our food resources and bring about a reduction of grossly inflated grain prices that is an advantage to American consumers as well as to the rest of the world. In any case there is no reason to fear that the bottom will drop out of the grain markets because the world food situation has improved. For we shall still be called upon to supplement huge deficiencies in world food supplies for the indefinite future. Moreover, with industrial labor fully employed at high wages, home demand for food products will remain at high levels. Finally, the Administration's farm price support policy will operate as a check on precipitate declines in prices of specific agricultural products.

The possibility of a catastrophic price break in the near future seems slight in view of the promising business outlook. Our basic industries are extended to capacity trying to satisfy the demands of American consumers, provide equipment and facilities for expansion of output and products for rehabilitation of Europe. Under such conditions there is little reason to fear a collapse of farm prices due to lack of effective demand for foodstuffs.

British Wages

The British government's call for a voluntary freezing of wages and profits reflects a deep concern for the future of the pound. Since devaluation of the franc rumors of impending devaluation of the pound have gained credence, partly because of the manifest alarm of the British at the French decision to set up a free exchange market in which to test the value of the franc. The British are well aware that the pound is a highly vulnerable currency the official exchange value of which can only be maintained by an elaborate system of domestic price and exchange controls. The French action has doubtless impressed upon them the necessity of tightening controls over internal prices and production costs if they are to meet competition in export markets. The alternative method of pushing exports by resort to devaluation has apparently been deferred for the time being.

Britain is operating under a controlled economy that has enabled her to keep down basic living costs and consequently limit demands for wage increases. But the effort has been only partially successful, as indicated by the government's present warning that in a race between rising prices and rising incomes prices will always win out in the end. As a correspondent of the London Times recently pointed out, a combination of inflated purchasing power, subsidized prices for foodstuffs and low prices for imported raw materials, resulting from the high official dollar value put on the pound have combined to exaggerate "the amount of money chasing goods." Thus the government is faced by the necessity of giving another turn to the screw as a means of maintaining what might be called the controlled status quo.

REBEL

Each giant star requires a million strands
To bound its fixed routines, engage its suns,
And arm its guards of narrow nebulae.
Pity the rebel star who throws his ropes,
Who leaps in freedom, streaking paths of fire!
His skin will quickly scorch to char and dust.
His bones will thud to earth as wasted lead,
Or vainly sink into a cauldroned sun
Where dreams are muffled out and melted dead.

Architectural Lapse

It has often puzzled me to determine whether the citizens of Washington lack aggressive civic spirit because they do not have the vote, or whether they do not have the vote because they lack aggressive civic spirit. It is like arguing whether the chicken or the egg comes first.

Whatever the answer to the conundrum, Washington continues to take it on the chin. First, President Truman proposed to build a perfectly atrocious new west wing to the White House. This act of vandalism was stopped by public sentiment, which was vigorously led, in Washington at least, by The Washington Post. Now Mr. Truman is proceeding, despite even more general public protests, to build himself a "bubblegum" balcony on the south facade.

And to prove that he really does not care what happens to Washington, he has made no protest of the unfriendly arrogance of the Pan American Union in building what the late President Roosevelt significantly referred to as a "glorified outhouse" in the triangular space in front of the Interior Building. The effect of this will be to blot out almost completely from Constitution ave. a view of what I regard as the most graceful and dignified departmental building of them all, while at the same time making a disfiguring dent in the Constitution ave. building line.

While he held public office, President Roosevelt did not permit this architectural atrocity. But then he would not have thought of a "peanut gallery" balcony on the south of the White House, either. Very properly, Secretary Krug has protested this outrage, but his protest was withheld for practically two years after he took office and was not uttered until the Pan American Union had actually started to excavate for the building.

Washington has taken a lot of punishment in its Board of District Commissioners, that seems to be unable to give even second-rate government and which is totally lacking in any inspirational leadership. The Commission of Fine Arts has not yet developed its milk teeth, while the National Capital Park and Planning Commission sometimes has good ideas which it is willing to whisper about. The result is that this generation is taking lying down architectural grotesqueries that will cause future generations to marvel at our bad taste and lack of discernment. HAROLD L. ICKES.

'Poor Weather Man'

I have compared your January 28 editorial, "Poor Weather Man," with an article in the Augusta (Me.) Kennebec Journal of January 26. The Journal quotes the Weather Bureau as describing a storm there bringing 12 inches of snow as "the closest we've had to a blizzard this season."

I would like to have you compare your editorial with the Weather Bureau's definition of a "blizzard" and let the public know just when Washington has had a real blizzard this year. Whoever quotes it, the United States Weather Bureau remains the same agency, and its definition of a blizzard in this city cannot be any different from a blizzard in Maine, can it? MALCOLM DIAMOND.

Washington.

Editor's note—We plead guilty. According to the Weather Bureau, the term "blizzard" as used in warnings and forecasts indicates weather characterized by a low or rapidly falling temperature accompanied by snow driven by strong winds or gales. A blizzard may occur with no snow actually falling, but instead with fine snow particles whipped by the wind from snow on the ground. Blizzards are common in the Great Plains and in the upper Mississippi Valley, but occur infrequently elsewhere in the United States. Generally the term "blizzard" as used by the Weather Bureau denotes a storm with wind velocities of at least 32 miles an hour, temperature in the 20s or lower, and much snow in the air, reducing visibility to 500 feet or less.

However, in our own defense, we quote a definition of "blizzard" in Webster's New International Dictionary: "A severe and prolonged snowstorm." That is the sense in which we used the term.

Food For Wild Life

This bitter mid-winter weather brings us the opportunity to show some good American Christianity toward needy fellow men and beings of the humbler creation. All creatures struggle to preserve life. Since man so continuously destroys the natural habitats of wild creatures and crowds them into smaller natural areas, they often become extremely dependent upon him for sustenance when nature becomes stormy.

All need food, shelter and friends. Therefore instead of filling and sealing our garbage pails let us save our cereal and fatty vegetable substances, add a little grain and help keep our little bird friends alive and active. Place out for the timid alley cats, the outcast dogs, the squirrels that are not provided enough nuts in public parks, the waste odds and ends with a little real food prepared for them and costing very little.

Belasco Theater

Several months ago I read an editorial in The Washington Post pleading for the return of the Belasco Theater to the people of Washington, since the emergency was over, and remarking how sad it was that a city the size of Washington had only one legitimate theater. I was in full sympathy with the idea and I was certain that thousands of people here shared in the hopes that the theater be brought back to its former glory.

I belong to the musicians' union here and appealed to the president of that organization to make inquiry to the deputy commissioner for real estate management to cooperate in securing other office space for the Treasury Department so as to return the Belasco for theatrical purposes.

To my dismay I received a copy of the reply from the deputy commissioner that "other suitable space for the activities now carried on in the building cannot be located. There is little likelihood that the Government will be able to outlease the building for commercial purposes in the foreseeable future."

I take pride in my city and its activities. I wish to solicit the help of our Government officials, yes, even our President, who possibly could have attended this theater as a Senator and who might now be able to just take a stroll to attend a performance. Please give us back the Belasco Theater.

Lincoln Said It

The letter on the British girl's dilemma with respect to medical insurance, in The Washington Post of February 4, was quite moving—until the reader reached the garbled quotation with which you concluded. Not Mark Twain, but Abraham Lincoln said it: "The Lord prefers common-looking people. That is the reason he makes so many of them." POET.

Baltic Federation

In his February 2 article entitled "Watchman, What of the Night?" Walter Lippmann enumerates the states east of the Elbe River which should belong to the United States of Europe. He fails to mention the central Baltic states—Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia—and Finland and the Scandinavian countries. I hope that this omission does not indicate that Mr. Lippmann considers these states as not qualifying as prospective members of the United States of Europe.

Actually, as Mr. Lippmann well knows, the Baltic states and Finland, not to mention the Scandinavian states, geographically, historically and by their religion, technical civilization and culture belong to the western European world. Longitude 25 degrees east of Greenwich is the approximate west-east center of Europe, and it runs through Finland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

The Baltic peoples are Roman Catholic or Evangelical Lutheran, and they speak non-Slavic languages. Their philosophy and mode of life are western European. In brief, they are part and parcel of western Europe and always have been such. Although forcibly annexed by Russia at the end of the eighteenth century, the Baltic peoples didn't lose either their national integrity or autonomous self-government, and they never renounced their former freedom, as proved by numerous insurrections and revolutions.

After the First World War the Baltic states and Finland regained their independence in accordance with the principle of self-determination of nations, accepted also by the Bolshevik leaders Lenin and Stalin.

They lived happily until 1939, when the Nazis and the Bolsheviks made their treacherous deal of partition, condemned by the whole world, and first by the United States Government on July 23, 1940. We are quite happy to emphasize that the United States Government today still does not recognize the annexation of the Baltic states by Soviet Russia.

If Mr. Lippmann, in view of the above, still hesitates to consider the Baltic states as having the right to belong to the United States of Europe, then he admits that Soviet Russia was entitled to violate international law, treaties and morals with respect to the Baltic states. If certain principles are accepted as guiding lines in international law similar to the Ten Commandments in religion, one cannot deviate from them merely for the sake of expediency to meet Soviet Russia half way in a Churchillean "realistic" policy which would resemble the sordid Munich deal. Such policy has no moral basis and will not establish a sound base for a stable peace in Europe.

I hope that Mr. Lippmann has omitted the Baltic states unintentionally. In my opinion a Scandinavian-Baltic regional federation consisting of the Scandinavian states, Finland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, which Mr. Lippmann failed to mention, would be a very valuable addition to the United States of Europe and a sound solution to the Baltic Sea problem in general. Also Soviet Russia would profit from such a solution both politically and economically. She would gain security through the establishment of a regional good neighborly group which at the same time would not exclude her from access to the Baltic Sea. Russia would still retain the port of Leningrad and a considerable part of the Baltic Sea coast. Even in the best year of Soviet Russia's foreign trade Leningrad was not used to its full capacity, and the restitution of the 1939 status in the Baltic would be really to the benefit of all concerned.

Reshuffle In Jobs

By Malvina Lindsay

Success Formula

SHADES OF Alger and McGuffey are being raised as modern business advises workers how to hold their own in an increasingly competitive world. That character traits are more important than technical skills is the theme of this current advice. This is based, not on copybook maxims, but on surveys, studies, psychological tests.

This year is expected to bring the complete ending of the job honeymoons a war economy produced. Most firms are having to fight harder for business. They are stripping their decks for what may be a real combat after midsummer.

Many of them refer to this as a year of "adjustment" in personnel. In rebuilding their organizations they are tending to put more emphasis on intangible qualities in those they hire or advance, and less on experience and technical ability.

This attitude is being reflected among vocational advisers. Educators recognize that specific training isn't enough. They are getting more concerned over how to develop the whole personality and broaden the knowledge of the potential job-seeker. There is growing feeling that too many highly trained but lopsided personalities are being turned out by technical and professional schools.

HIRING THESE days is being done more slowly and carefully as firms seek to improve both their products and personnel. An applicant may be looked over by a batch of executives—not one—after going through the mill of examination in the personnel department. This may save him from getting stuck in the wrong job, save the company the cost of a mistake.

Recent scientific studies of employment problems have come up with some of the findings set forth by moral homily in the copybooks and the old McGuffey Readers. This is brought out in a booklet recently issued by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. Paul W. Boynton, the author, who is supervisor of employment, concludes that while there is no one formula for getting better jobs, yet the rule that "looks pretty good" is: Do everything you have to do better than you have to do it.

Next to willingness to work, he stresses readiness to accept responsibility—including all its headaches. He reports a study made by H. C. Hunt, Meriden, Conn., high school principal, among the office and clerical forces of 76 corporations. This showed that 90 per cent of discharges were due to character traits, 10 per cent to lack of specific skills. Seventy-six per cent of failures for promotion were the result of character traits, 24 per cent of lack of skill.

What caused the most firings was carelessness. It was closely trailed by noncooperation, then laziness. What most prevented promotion was lack of initiative. Second was lack of ambition; third, carelessness.

ALSO CITED is a study by Prof. G. H. Estabrooks of Colgate University, which rated intellect as a minor factor in business success. The study showed that given the minimum ability for a specific career, a man's success depended largely on such qualities as interest, readiness to work, additional study.

Some may cynically question whether the old homely virtues management is emphasizing would bring the average American an Alger boy success. For several decades it has been the popular custom to sneer at them as a device of slick bosses to keep underlings' of genius immersed in routine and mediocrity.

But the studies made show at least that the solid traits enter strongly into getting and holding jobs, obtaining promotions and achieving ordinary success. Greater emphasis will be placed on them if employment gets tighter.

How far an adult can go in making himself more industrious, responsible and adaptable is a question. Psychologists say character traits are formed early in life, chiefly before the age of 6. That checks the job-getting and job-holding problem back to parents. It also shows the importance of nursery school education, which deals chiefly in habit formation. It emphasizes the importance of character building in education generally, not only as a noble endeavor but as an aid to earning power.

Needs At Home

In its ostensible anixety to care for foreign needs since the war ended, the Administration seems to have forgotten entirely the need of actual conversation from war to peace to help its own citizens get back to a more normal way of life. There are millions of United States citizens displaced by war, directly or indirectly, who have not been able to return to previous occupations or way of life, including many veterans.

If it is true that a large segment of our people are ill-housed, ill-clothed or ill-fed, then the Government should do something about this first and foreign needs second. Consider the needs of the so-called "small people" on fixed income who can barely get by with present Government-inflated prices.

Now comes the report of the 53 economists of their national committee, who give us the real reason for this failure of our Nation to reconvert. They point directly at the Administration as the real reason for inflation. Why doesn't someone call a spade a spade, instead of apologizing for Washington's mistakes and failures of the past three of four years?

Impact Of ERP

A Communication

Editor's Note—When the Marshall Plan was proposed, President Truman directed that reports upon various phases be prepared by committees headed by Secretary Harriman and by Secretary Krug, and that the Council of Economic Advisers prepare a report upon the impact of a foreign aid program upon the domestic economy.

The Harriman and Krug reports have been discussed at length in congressional committee hearings, but the equally important economic report of the council has not been considered.

John D. Clark, who has prepared this statement of the character and conclusions of that report, is the member of the Council who directs its studies in the fields of monetary policy, fiscal policy, and international economic relations.

HOW FAR the times are out of joint is shown by the fact that the Council of Economic Advisers found that its work had just begun when it reached the conclusion that the United States could readily carry the financial burden of the Marshall Plan.

In less disturbed days the other aspects of the European Recovery Program would have caused no concern. Indeed, the prospect of large exports of American goods would have been welcomed. It would promise more employment, more business, more wages and more profits.

Today it is this very feature of a foreign program which creates the most serious problem for this country. It is goods, and not dollars, which other countries seek from us, and we do not have enough goods. Our prosperity is threatened by price inflation which is the result of a market demand for foreign and domestic consumption which is greater than the supply.

This is the situation upon which the Council centered its attention in its report upon the impact of the foreign program upon the domestic economy. Its economic analysis was accordingly related to business conditions at home rather than to affairs abroad. The salient question we had to consider is what will happen here if the goods required in Europe are exported by us, and not what will happen abroad.

WERE IT NOT for critical problems in connection with a few specific commodities, the Council would have been able to say that the contemplated aid program would add no new inflationary pressure upon domestic prices. The export surplus in the first half of 1947 was larger than it will be in 1948 under any foreign aid program under discussion, and our general price structure had already felt and presumably had reflected the effect of an export surplus of this size.

Unfortunately, such complacent judgment could not be offered. Foreign needs for American goods are concentrated upon grain, steel and steel equipment for industrial, agricultural and transportation uses. These are the very commodities in which our shortages are most acute and which, because they are basic in the cost of living and in the costs of industrial production, are most responsible for our spiral of price inflation.

But unless we are to say to our friends who have been our allies that we will not permit them to use their own resources to buy American goods which we acknowledge they desperately need, the foreign demand for these critical items will be little less without a foreign aid program than it will be under the Marshall Plan. Through their own exports to the United States, through liquidating their gold and the dollar balances held by the South American countries, and through loans from established institutions, foreign countries will be able to buy heavily in our markets in any event. It must be assumed that they will first purchase the grain they require for subsistence, and the steel and equipment which are essential to their industrial and agricultural rehabilitation and growth.

IN THE ABSENCE of export embargoes, the combined foreign and domestic demand will continue to drive upward the prices which are most important in determining the cost of living and the cost of industrial production. A new foreign aid program will not add substantially to the inflationary pressure at these critical points; it will, however, permit other nations to secure other necessary goods and thereby to round out their programs of rehabilitation and move more rapidly into that position where concern over their stability need no longer be added to our other problems.

The important result of this study of the Marshall Plan was that it led the Council into an analysis of the domestic economy which forced the conclusion that it was necessary, quite apart from the foreign aid program, to take vigorous action to halt inflation. Without such action, our prosperity is endangered, plan or no plan. But the Council said that if appropriate action is taken, the inflationary forces can be suppressed and the United States can safely undertake to furnish the essential goods required by friendly nations.

The Council concluded its report by outlining a series of anti-inflationary policies which it urgently recommended for immediate adoption. These became the program which the President presented to the Congress when it met in November, and which he repeated in his state of the Union message and in his economic report in January.

Member, Council of Economic Advisers.

Police Capture Youth After Chase

A youth captured Tuesday after a 2-mile chase by police during which 10 shots were fired yesterday was ordered held for the Prince Georges grand jury under $2500 bond.

Held on five counts of holdup and robbery was Carl Stewart, 18, of 6301 Southern ave., Fairmont Heights. Prince Georges police said Stewart was arrested by District police at 58th and J sts. ne., after he eluded two county policemen who attempted to stop him near Landover, Md.

Before the chase began, county police said, Stewart held up the driver of a taxicab, forcing him out at gun-point. Subsequently, he picked up a passenger in the cab, robbing him as well, police stated.

Oil And The Future

WE KNOW all about the evils of a planned society because we are told about those evils practically every day. But we sometimes forget that penalties go with a completely planless society such as ours.

Childs

Last summer the Department of the Interior issued a rather mild warning on the subject of installing oil-burning furnaces. That warning came as the rate of installation of oil burners was establishing a new record with each succeeding month. The Interior Department suggested that there might be an oil shortage in the winter of 1948-49.

Mild as the warning was, it drew an instant rebuke from the oil-burner industry. They were not, they said, paying their taxes to the Federal Government to have that Government try to checkmate their business. And their objection had a lot of logic in it.

The United States today consumes more than 60 per cent of all the petroleum produced in the world. In 1947 this country produced 60 per cent of the world's oil and consumed 63 per cent of it. This is more startling when it is put alongside the fact that the population of the continental United States is only a little more than 6 per cent of the population of the world.

In 1946, for the first time, the amount of energy this country derived from oil and natural gas exceeded the energy derived from coal. That is to say that oil and natural gas were more important than coal in running American industry and heating American homes. The statisticians who measure those things say that slightly more than 16 trillion heat units came from oil and gas, while the total volume of heat from coal was nearly a trillion less. In 1945, coal was ahead by nearly two trillions.

THIS IS a measure of the remarkable transformation that has taken place. It has occurred in every phase of industry as well as in home heating, so that today Americans are using nearly twice as much oil per capita as before the war. Although the railroads haul the coal and derive no small part of their revenue from this source, a recent survey showed that 92 per cent of all new locomotives on order were to be powered with oil.

John L. Lewis, the miners' boss, gets some of the credit for this. The prolonged coal strikes of recent years have stimulated many to switch to oil. And now Lewis has picked this critical moment to breathe a hint of a new strike.

The country has only begun to understand how serious are the effects of the new industrial revolution. Some time ago the armed services were complaining that they could not get enough crude oil and aviation gasoline to continue routine training operations. The demand from the civilian economy was such that the big oil companies simply were not interested in bidding on Army and Navy needs.

That situation has been corrected by a joint effort of the oil companies. The services are now guaranteed 90 per cent of their needs for the current fiscal year. But the mere fact that special action was necessary to keep the ships of the Navy in operation and the Air Force planes in the air indicates how scarce this vital commodity is.

BEHIND THE immediate scarcity is the big question mark of future supply. Here, of course, the innocent layman gets into deep water. One school of experts has long maintained that, at the present rate of discovery, America could supply its own oil need, even in a war emergency, out of its own resources. Another and more numerous school has held that from here on out we would have to nail down a source of supply outside our own borders in order to be secure.

Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, testifying before a congressional committee, presented a nine-billion-dollar program for producing oil from shale and coal. Out of this program would come a total of two million barrels of oil a day, which is less than half of our current consumption. What is more, the program would take 16 million tons of steel. Asking for 16 million tons of steel, in view of the present shortage, is like asking for the moon.

Therefore, most oil men are now convinced that access to the vast oil reserves in the Middle East is essential to United States security. And that essential, if it is an essential, puts the Government right in the middle of the most perilous, tricky spot in the whole international scene.

On one point no one should be deceived. This country cannot cut off at least minimum oil supplies to those nations that have long depended on that supply, without causing a major blowup. Such an explosion could have the effect of driving us back on our own limited resources, and then we might be compelled to accept the kind of total planning most Americans abhor.

The Gallup Poll

Slacks for Women Disapproved In Public but Favored at Home

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., February 6—Women who insist on wearing slacks while shopping or elsewhere in public should be aware that a considerable number of other women with opinions on the subject turn thumbs down on the fad.

What is probably more important to style-conscious women, however, is the fact that more men disapprove of slack-clad women in public than approve.

Both men and women, probably feeling that a woman's house is her castle, say that slacks are an appropriate garment around the home.

The whole subject of slacks for women was brought to public attention in recent weeks by the furor over the case of a schoolgirl in a New York town who insisted on wearing them to classes against the objections of school authorities.

While asking representative voters throughout the country questions on more weightier subjects, Institute interviewers took a moment out to ask this one:

Do you approve or disapprove of women of any age wearing slacks in public, that is, for example, while shopping?

Here is how men and women voted:

	Men	Women
Approve	34%	30%
Disapprove	39	49
Indifferent	22	15
No opinion	3	1
Qualified	2	5

People giving qualified answers generally placed the matter on an individual plane with such answers as:

"Alright, if they become the wearer"; "if they fit"; "only for younger women"; "if the wearer is not too fat"; and "it depends on both the occasion and the lady."

Age has a lot to do with one's attitude toward feminine slacks. The younger a person is the more inclined he or she is to be open-minded on the subject.

Younger women vote approval of slacks, but those over 50 years of age strongly oppose them. Likewise, many men under 50 think slacks are not such a bad idea, while most over that age cast a dignified vote of disapproval. Whether the opinions of men carry much weight with women is questionable. Fashion experts are generally agreed that women do not dress mainly to please men, but with an eye to what other women will think of their clothes.

As might well be expected sports fans are not as vigorously opposed to female trouser-wearing as other men and women.

Pressman Quits as CIO Counsel To Practice Law, Aid Wallace

The resignation of Lee Pressman as general counsel of the CIO and of its big United Steelworkers Union was announced yesterday.

In a letter to Philip Murray, CIO president, Pressman said he was going into private law practice in New York, where it will be possible for him "to take part in such activities as the Wallace-for-President political campaign."

The CIO executive board had recently committed the CIO against Wallace and the third party.

Murray replied that he understood Pressman's circumstances, and noted bluntly that Pressman could go his own way "without necessarily embroiling yourself or men in difficulties concerning matters of fundamental CIO policy."

The language of Murray's letter, though it praised Pressman's "outstanding service" and expressed regret at his departure, left no doubt that a big difference over policy lay at the root of the action.

It was generally interpreted as another, and the most important, step in Murray's increasing refusal to go along with left-wing groups in the CIO. Pressman was reputed to be those groups' strongest leader.

His departure "purges" CIO headquarters—though not all CIO unions—of the last important official sympathetic to the extreme left.

Pressman, who is 41, had been general counsel of the CIO since its inception in 1936.

To Our Patrons

Since January 24 an unprecedented series of weather changes has raised "heck" with your street car and bus lines and their schedules.

We regret the inconveniences which you have experienced. They have been particularly irritating because of the inclement weather. But we are grateful for your patience and understanding.

The recent storms in themselves were not too bad. We have had much worse and still been able to operate far better transit service. As usual, we prepared for trouble from the first snow flake. . .called out extra work forces. . .cooperated with the Sanitation Department. . .sent out every sander, plow and sweeper during and after the storms. Altogether the storms cost us more than $75,000.

It was the weather conditions which followed the storms which raised all the "heck".

The morning after the storms almost 15% more riders crowded into our peak hours, although the total for the days was less than normal. We had every vehicle and qualified employe on the street during peak hours. The extra loading and unloading slowed our vehicles. Then, too, automobilists took the roads which were cleanest - car tracks and bus routes kept open by our plows, sweepers and sanders. This added traffic - causing some of the worst jams in the city's history - further slowed our vehicles, and threw our schedules out of whack. It was impossible, because of the delays, to get some vehicles back on their routes in time to make scheduled second and third trips.

Many automobilists used chains. This is fine for the driver, but bad for the underground trolley system. Through February 5 we have had more than 21 delays - some longer than an hour - because tire chains caught in center rail "slots". This pulled "plows" and deprived street cars of power.

For days the temperature hovered at freezing. Ice expanded the paving between rails, pushed the "slot rails" together, and caused pulled plows. This resulted in 55 delays - some longer than an hour - through February 5th.

Minor delays caused by automobiles stalled on tracks ran into the hundreds.

Our emergency crews haven't had a minute's rest.

The bus lines had no picnic either. Successive thaws and freezes made streets slippery. This not only delayed our own vehicles, but slowed motorists, who in turn slowed us. On the worse days some buses, scheduled to make two and three trips during a peak period, were only able to make one. Unplowed street areas narrowed the traffic lanes and made matters worse. Multiply these troubles several hundred times in each rush period and you have an idea of some of our difficulties.

Transit "old-timers" say the weather of the past few weeks, and its effect on your transit lines, is the worst they have experienced in years.

Because of all this, you have been subject to a series of irritating delays over which we had no control. We ask your indulgence and understanding until the weather becomes more nearly normal. Our operating force has done a good job by past standards. They have worked long hours and have been loyal to the traditions of our business. They have had to bear a trying burden.

Although we have had many minor accidents, the bright spot in our mutual experience has been the fact that we have had but few serious accidents.

Most of all, our patrons have been considerate of our problems and patient with our efforts. We have had some complaints - and we apologize - and some commendations - and we are appreciative.

To our patrons and to our employes, thanks.

Security Bank Reports Sharp Upturn in Net

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net operating earnings of Security Savings & Commercial Bank advanced to $263,952 in 1947, as compared with $174,131 in the previous year, President Francis G. Addison, jr., reported to stockholders in his annual statement.

Addison

Nonoperating earnings, including recoveries on securities, totaled $47,080, against $19,400 in 1946. After deductions of losses on securities, net profits for the year aggregated $298,117 before income taxes as compared with $188,324 in 1946.

The favorable earnings showing, Addison said, was attributable mainly to a sharp increase in loans during the year. Loans totaled $11,725,000, as compared with $8,088,000. Aggregate loans and investments at the end of 1947 were $20,528,143, against $21,091,463, at the end of 1946. The drop in aggregate was due to decreased holdings of Government securities.

The 9th and G sts. institution has shown rapid growth in deposits. The total has risen to $25,667,182 at the end of 1947, compared with $9,867,727 at the end of 1940. During the past year, capital stock was increased to $750,000 from $500,000 and surplus was boosted a like amount.

PROFIT-SHARING: The May Hardware Co. of Washington will distribute the second payment today to employes under a profit-sharing plan instituted at the start of 1947. The plan provides for 25 per cent of earnings to be shared. The total yearly payment amounts to an average of $488.56 per employe, according to Secretary Charles W. Clayton. Participation in profits was determined by length of service and rate of compensation.

LIQUIDATION: North American Co. revealed yesterday plans to make another partial liquidating distribution of Potomac Electric Power Co. stock at the rate of three Pepco shares for 100 of North American. The distribution will be made April 1, subject to SEC approval. In late December, the utility holding company distributed most of its Pepco shares at the rate of 21 per 100. At one time North American held slightly more than two million of Pepco's outstanding 2,961,250 common shares. The giant holding firm also revealed that it will make another distribution of Wisconsin Electric stock on July 1.

REMODELING: National Savings & Trust Co., which already has made several improvements in its lobby, now plans a major $70,000 alteration. President Bruce Baird said tellers' cages on the lobby's south side will be dropped back eight feet to make more floor area available for customers. At the same time, the present superstructure will be eliminated and new equipment will be provided.

ODD LOTS: Orvis Bros. & Co. has prepared special analyses of General Electric Co., Chrysler Corp. and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. . . . Eastern Shore Public Service Co. of Maryland is preparing to issue two-million dollars of 3½ per cent notes and 20,000 shares of common stock . . . American Airlines has completed arrangements for standby credit of $7,500,000 with three banks . . . South Penn Oil Co. is purchasing 150,000 shares of Gulf Oil Corp. at $59 a share, a total investment of $8,850,000 . . . Syndicate headed by Smith, Barney & Co. yesterday offered 250,000 shares of Monsanto Chemical Co. stock at $101 a share . . . Majestic Radio and Television Corp. and Majestic Records, Inc., of Illinois have filed bankruptcy petitions and asked permission to reorganize . . . G. C. Murphy Co. sales last month totaled $7,993,384, a 14.2 per cent increase over same 1947 month . . . Warren Petroleum Corp. has filed a registration with SEC proposing issue of 150,000 shares of cumulative convertible preferred stock through the underwriting firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

SELF-PENALTY: Northwest Airlines plans to start giving passengers a 5 per cent rebate whenever one of its planes arrives more than 30 minutes late at destination. The same airline will inaugurate service into Washington with DC-4s and Martin 2-0-2s about March 15.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales, which had been lagging slightly behind last year's pace, came back strongly in the week ended January 31. Dollar volume for the week spurted 8 per cent ahead of the like 1947 period, bringing sales for the four weeks ended January 31 to 3 per cent above the similar 1947 period. Regionally, the Fifth Federal Reserve District showed a 2 per cent increase in sales for the week and was unchanged for the four-week period. The figures were reported last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

EARNINGS: Chesapeake Corp. of Virginia reported net income of $3,337,487 for 1947, equal to $7.21 a share, compared with $1,437,747 or $3.11 a share in previous year. Other income reports included:

Federal Aid Urged At Grass Root Level

Need to Close Gap Between Knowing And Doing Emphasized by Mrs. Meyer

Special to The Washington Post

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 6.—Need to close the split in civilization "between what we know and what we do" was emphasized by Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, in an address made here tonight at the University of Minnesota.

Mrs. Meyer, in delivering the William Hodson Memorial Lecture, declared she was convinced that "Our Federal agencies, whether old or new, can and must be so organized that their principles and methods of administration will aim only at helping people at the grass roots to help themselves."

"We are trying," she said, "to lead people back to a recognition that the happiness, the human development, the contentment to be derived from a normal, secure family life and a protected childhood are a greater blessing than any other gift that life has to bestow.

No Other Objective

"The whole array of Federal, State and local agencies, whether public or private, has no other objective than this—to further human well-being in the local community—where people live. If they contribute to that objective, they are sound. If they don't, they are monstrosities."

Commenting on the "latent hostility" in the community between "the public-spirited men and women who want to serve their neighbors and the professional social worker who has to do the job," Mrs. Meyer deplored the fact that in some cases, "the social worker uses techniques mechanically" and as a result "not only repels his clients but he inhibits his own emotional growth."

"The fundamental difficulty which we face is that our Government system has become so complex, so specialized and so varied that it slowly but surely is being taken over by the trained specialist and the professional civil servant, who are just as apt to obstruct progress as to further it."

Striving Conscientiously

However, she went on, "The many attempts people are making throughout the Nation to create order, stability and citizen participation in their home towns, prove how conscientiously they are striving to achieve greater political competence. . . . If we are honest with ourselves, we must admit that none of these efforts, important as they may be, has as yet galvanized the local communities into independent action or significance to the Nation as a whole."

At the root of the trouble, Mrs. Meyer said, is the fact that "the local community now suffers from an inferiority complex concerning its ability to deal with its own problems. It also (has) acquired doubt as to the State's ability to deal with these problems together with an exaggerated confidence in the ability of the Federal Government not only to solve every problem but to pay for the solution."

Aware of Danger

"The wisest of our Federal officials are aware of the danger to democratic government which this inevitable trend toward central administration brings with it. They recognize that the only solution lies in citizen participation and in the decentralizing of their administrative processes."

"I maintain," said Mrs. Meyer, "that the average American citizen and the voluntary organizations must learn to control the professional Government agency, or the professional Government agencies will control them. And personally I would prefer to be pushed around by a dictator whom I can recognize, hate and oppose, than be pushed around by the impersonal but no less crushing dictatorship of Government bureaucracy."

Citing as an example the development of citizens' interest in Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. Meyer predicted "We need never worry about our Federal-State-local relationships as long as local conditions permit the emergence of strong local leadership . . . My experience convinces me that no matter how much financial assistance a community may need from State and Federal agencies to carry out the modern concepts of government responsibility, government will always be obliged to bow to the will of the people as long as that will exists and is clearly expressed."

Due To Frustration

"The nonfraternization between Federal, State and local agencies now so commonplace," Mrs. Meyer said, "is due to . . . frustration of our civil servants which develops false departmental pride, acute interagency rivalries and competition for power. Since these multiple agencies are with us to stay, they must learn to work together. Otherwise this mandarin mentality is one of the greatest obstacles to social progress, especially in an era of rapid change to which an inelastic, overcentralized Government service cannot possibly adjust itself with sufficient speed."

"Let us remember that if democracy now must defend its freedom against many forces, including the huge bureaucracies of government, of industrial corporations, of labor unions, of social work, of education and so forth, this threat is infinitely multiplied in the socialist state. If we are going to slide into socialism, let's do it with our eyes open. For it is chiefly through an all powerful, professional bureaucracy that socialism stifles the freedom of individual self-development and self-expression.

Bridges' Ex-Wife Calls Him 'Red'

AGNES BRIDGES, former wife of Harry Bridges, told the Washington State Legislature's Unamerican Activities Committee in Seattle that the West Coast CIO longshoremen's chief was a member of the Communist Party and that he had held meetings at their San Francisco home. She also said he had threatened to kill her if she "exposed" him as a Red. Bridges was absolved several years ago of the accusation that he was a Communist

Sex Life of U. S. Women Seen Disturbing World Relations

London, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—The sex life of the American female is raising cain with international relations, British anthropologist E. J. Dingwall said today.

An acute American interest in a well-filled sweater and shiny bathroom fixtures has helped build up a matriarchy in the United States that threatens to upset the balance of power in the world, as well as the home, he said.

"I don't see how the United States can ever really have universally happy foreign relations as long as it—a country dominated by women—has to deal with countries dominated by men like South America for instance," he said.

Not a Dog House

Dingwall is setting out to prove European women have happier sex lives than American women because they believe a man's home is his castle, not a dog house.

"I don't consider the approach of the American woman to sex particularly healthy," he explained. "It's something like the British approach to food—a compound of Puritanism and necessity. There's a national feeling of guilt. Ask any European psychiatrist."

Like Bustles for Example

Their dissatisfaction is evidenced in many revealing ways, like clothes which emphasize bosoms and bustles, he said.

"The American bosom mania is all part of matriarchy," he added. "It's a material symbol and it has intensity in the United States which does not duplicate itself anywhere.

"I think," Dingwall concluded, "I shall be able to prove the American emphasis on plumbing and bathroom amenities is allied to that guilt complex I mentioned. It's an act of wanting to wash it away, you see."

Arabs Warn They'll Fight Partition Force

Lake Success, Feb. 6 (AP).—Palestine Arabs told the United Nations today they would battle any international military units sent to enforce partition.

The Arabs charged that "the pressure put by the United States delegation and government on certain nations is nothing short of political blackmail," at the U. N. Assembly's November 29 partition decision.

The Arabs further declared U. N. efforts to divide Palestine would be considered as an act of aggression and urged partition be abandoned.

1. The Soviet Ukraine accused Britain of obstructing partition.

2. Replying, a British spokesman said U. N. members are waking belatedly to the dangers as warned earlier by Britian.

3. The Security Council put the Palestine situation on its provisional agenda for Monday.

4. The five-nation U.N. Palestine Commission received the first draft of a report pointing up its convictio nthat only an international army can enforce partition. It will debate the report tomorrow.

5. Britain has handed a bluntly worded note to Bulgaria protesting use of Bulgarian ports by 18,905 illegal Jewish immigrants for Palestine since last August.

6. Seven Jews and two Arabs were killed today in fighting in Palestine.

Bizonia Rule Is Proclaimed; Begins Feb. 23

By Edwin Hartrich

Frankfurt, Feb. 6 (NYHT).—The ersatz government of Bizonia was officially launched by joint proclamation of the American and British military governors today.

Designated the "Bizonal Economic Administration," it will begin functioning February 23 as a quasi-government with complete over-riding powers on all economic matters affecting the American and British zones.

It is designed to develop and integrate the economy of Bizonia and to make it as self-sufficient as possible, according to General Lucius D. Clay and Sir Brian H. Robertson, the American and British military governors.

This administration will have: A lower house of 104 members; an upper house of two men from each state in Bizonia; an executive committee of cabinet; a high court with jurisdiction over economic and financial legislation, and appropriate governmental agencies to carry out administration.

All officials, measures and legislation must be approved by the Anglo-American cochairman.

Communist resisted by saying "the division of Germany has been proclaimed."

(The Russians today demanded establishment of a central German finance office and a central German as the conditions for a country-wide currency reform in Germany. British and American financial experts agree in principle and await further action by the Russians.)

Washington's Church to Celebrate

George Washington's home church—Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria—on February 22 will observe the 175th anniversary of its completion.

The "Squire of Mount Vernon" was a vestryman of Christ Parish from 1767 to 1773, when the present church was built; purchased the most expensive pew in the church when pews were first auctioned off, and publicly withdrew his allegiance from King George of England in the shadows of the churchyard's oak trees.

Washington's old pew—No. 60—is preserved in Christ Church, as is Gen. Robert E. Lee's pew—No. 46. Washington attended Christ Church the first Sunday after his return to Mount Vernon at the Revolution's end. At the personal request of Martha Washington the Rev. Thomas Davis, rector of Christ Church, conducted Washington's funeral at Mount Vernon December 16, 1799.

The Rev. Braxton Bragg Comer Lile, B.A., B.D., is now rector of Christ Church, and the Rev. Oren Van Tuyl Chamberlain, B.A., B.D., assistant rector.

Officers of the vestry are Dr. H. Augustine Latane, senior warden; Armistead L. Booth, junior warden; Robert E. Ford, register; Gilbert J. Cox, jr., treasurer, and the following vestrymen:

R. H. C. Beverely, Gardner L. Boothe, C. C. Brown, Albert V. Bryan, J. Chisman Hanes, Clyde C. Lamond, jr., Robert C. Moncure, Robert T. McKinlay, Clarence J. Robinson, Talbot Sinclair, Howard W. Smith, jr., Thomas Summers, jr., Erdman T. Stulz, and C. Luckett Watkins.

Ash Wednesday Rites to Open Traditional Lenten Season

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Ash Wednesday services next week will initiate the traditional Lenten season in Greater Washington churches.

Worshipers at Ash Wednesday masses in Catholic churches will have a cross of ashes marked on their foreheads by priests. Community and other services have been arranged for Protestant churches.

Easter will be celebrated March 28—40 days after Ash Wednesday, Sundays not calculated. Good Friday falls March 26.

The Central YMCA, 1736 G st. nw., will sponsor Lenten luncheons Wednesdays at 12:30 p. m., beginning Ash Wednesday, when the speaker will be Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church. Luncheon reservations are available through Dr. Page McK. Etchison, religious work secretary of the YMCA.

A fellowship dinner will be served on Ash Wednesday at 6 p. m. at the Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw. At 7:30 p. m. there will be two services—one for men, and another for women.

The Woman's Auxiliary of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 15th and Church sts. nw., will serve its traditional Shrove Tuesday pancake dinner Tuesday from 3 p. m. to 8 p. m. in the parish hall. The Rev. Dillard H. Brown is rector.

Among the Ash Wednesday services scheduled are the following:

THE RIGHT REV. NOBLE C. POWELL, Episcopal Bishop of Maryland, and formerly dean of the Washington Cathedral, will speak Ash Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw. Services Wednesday at St. Agnes' Episcopal Church, 46 Q st. nw., will include low masses at 6:45 a. m. and 9:30 a. m., with distribution of ashes at all services. Stations of the Cross will be said at St. Agnes' on Lenten Fridays at 8 p. m.

OUTSTANDING AMERICAN CLERGYMEN will address daily noonday Lenten services at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw. They wil linclude Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, New York City, and radio preacher; Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, one-time pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and three Episcopal bishops—Drs. Arthur B. Kinsolving, of Arizona; Clinton S. Quin, of Texas, and Donald B. Aldrich, dean of the Princeton University Chapel. Ash Wednesday services at Epiphany Church will include Communion at 7:30 a. m., 10 a. m. and 12:30 p. m., and preaching at 12 p. m., 5:30 p. m. and 8 p. m.

THE FEDERATION OF CHURCHES will sponsor daily Lenten services from 12:05 p. m. to 12:25 p. m. at the National Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw. Dr. Carl Heath Kopf, new pastor of First Congregational Church, will speak Ash Wednesday and Thursday, and Dr. Carl R. Simon, pastor of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, February 13 and 16.

Protestant churches of the Capitol Hill area will sponsor services daily from 12:10 p. m. to 12:30 p. m., Mondays through Fridays, at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, host pastor, will conduct the Ash Wednesday noonday service. The Rev. Robert F. Plumb, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, will speak Thursday and Friday. Dr. Edward C. Area Clergymen Go In for Varied Hobbies

Washington area clergymen have a variety of hobbies in which they find relaxation from their busy whirl of church activities.

Many of them enjoy outdoor sports. Some go in for writing books and plays. Others like chess, checkers, games and other indoor activities.

Long-time cycling enthusiasts are the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, and Mrs. Dun, and Canon Theodore O. Wedel, warden of the Washington Cathedral's College of Preachers, and Mrs. Wedel. In seasonal weather, they may be seen cycling through the Cathedral grounds or in Rock Creek Park. The bishop also enjoys reading Anthony Trollope's novels. Dr. John Wallace Suter, dean of the Cathedral, likes mountain-climbing and word games.

Champion Ping-Pong Player

One clergyman is the champion ping-pong player of his congregation. He is the Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw.

"I like ping-pong," says Pastor Lowell, "because it keeps me in trim for tennis, a game I've played for 20 years."

Mr. Lowell, who plays ping-pong with his young folks after Sunday night services, defeated all comers in a ping-pong tournament when he was studying at the Naval Chaplains Training School at Williamsburg, Va., during the war years. Runner-up to him in a recent ping-pong tournament at Wesley Church was George Wilt, a Washington Post employe. The pastor hopes that his two children —Marilyn, 6, and Dean Stanley, 5, and Sylvia, 18 days old, will someday learn to share his love of tennis and ping-pong.

Football, Baseball Devotee

Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, is an ardent devotee of baseball and football.

"When I was a student at Lynchburg (Va.) College, I was tempted to become a professional ballplayer," said Dr. Hastings, who frequently uses sport vernacular in his conversation and sermons. . . .

On the more serious side, Dr. Hastings likes to read about types of church government. "If we can't have democracy in church, there is no use of talking about having it in world politics," he says. He has three tons of books, which creates quite a moving problem when he changes pastorates.

Tinkers With Electrical Gadgets

Tinkering with electrical gadgets has always fascinated Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw. Another of his hobbies is writing religious pageants.

Playing chess with his wife and sons—David, 15, and John, 13—is a relaxing avocation for Dr. Carl Heath Kopf, new pastor of First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. He also likes to browse in Emerson and has had two of his own books published by MacMillan & Co.—"Windows of Life" and "Personal Crisis."

Priest Likes Football

The Rev. Maurice Sheehy, former Navy chaplain and now head of Catholic University's religious education department, is a football fan who "likes to be in the game."

As a matter of record, The Washington Post's Shirley Povich once spotted Father Sheehy acting as assistant head linesman at an Army-Notre Dame classic in Manhattan. "I had been doing that for years before the press caught up with me," said the priest.

Father Sheehy once was athletic director at Loras College, Dubuque, Iowa. Msgr. John J. Reilly, director of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, and Father Sheehy are both golf fans. Father Reilly plays in what he calls "a congenial foursome" once weekly at the Columbia Country Club. The Shrine director, by the way, once played shortstop on the Hillhouse High School (New Haven, Conn.) baseball team with Joe Dugan, who later became the great Yankee third baseman.

Bowling Devotee

Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave., goes in for bowling and golf. His own church has 40 teams in a league that takes over the entire Columbia Alleys at 14th st. and Park Road nw., Saturday nights. Most of the Washington denominations have their own bowling teams and some larger churches have their own leagues. We have it from Pastor Rustin's secretary, Miss Rubye Risher, that his average is 105.

Rabbi's Hobby

Collecting rare religious books, and writing books, is the avocation of Rabbi Harry Silverstone, spiritual leader of Tifereth Israel Congregation, 14th and Shepherd sts. nw. Among his books are "Guide to the Talmud" and "Everyman's Problems." He is currently writing "A Guide to the Psalms."

Pastor Prefers 'Putting'

Dr. John Compton Ball, 78-year-old pastor emeritus of Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., says he is too old for golf, but "goes in for putting on the green."

"Every summer I go to a resort at Lake Mohawk, in New York, where there is an excellent putting green," he said. He is also fond of modern novels because he "likes to know what the public is reading."

Dr. Ball retired as Metropolitan pastor in 1944 after a 41-year ministry. One of his prized mementos is a letter which President Roosevelt sent him upon his retirement.

Day of Prayer Set Feb. 13

Protestant churchwomen of the Greater Washington area will sponsor their twenty-eighth annual "World Day of Prayer" services February 13, the first Friday in Lent. Ministers of Washington churches have been requested to ring their church bells on that day.

The Washington Council of Church Women and the Arlington Council of Church Women are among the sponsoring organizations for the "World Day of Prayer." Services will be held in about 100 churches of the Greater Washington area. There will also be programs in Arlington schools at Arlington Farms and Fort Myer. The "World Day of Prayer" theme will be used by the Senate and House chaplains, Drs. Peter Marshall and James Shera Montgomery, respectively, for their prayers on Capitol Hill that day.

To Teach Fellowship

W. Harold Snape, director of the Washington Goodwill Industries, will teach the Fellowship Class of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Shepherd sts. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Third of Children Reported In Doctor-Shortage Areas

A progress report on a concerted effort to do something about the Nation's child health problem was made yesterday at the American Medical Association's National Conference on Rural Health, held in Chicago.

Dr. John P. Hubbard, director of the study of child health services that has been conducted for the past two years, told the conference one in every three children lives in a rural or semirural area, but only 24 per cent of the total number of beds in general hospitals are in such rural areas.

The study was assisted by the American Pediatrics Society, the Children's Bureau and the United States Public Health Service.

Dr. Hubbard said children in rural areas, lack specialist, clinical and highly skilled diagnostic and treatment services.

In Maryland, 18.7 per cent of the children live in isolated counties, while in Virginia, 60.3 per cent live in such areas, the report shows.

A questionnaire showed private physicians in 1946 numbered about 116,000 and averaged about 1 per 1200 persons.

Doctor Says Rural Men Did Better in Draft Test

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP).—White registrants from rural areas made a better showing in Selective Service physical examinations than did white men from urban areas, a Washington physician said today.

Dr. Maurice H. Friedman of Washington, D. C., told the National Conference on Rural Health sponsored by the American Medical Association that rejections were higher among farm registrants (including both Negroes and whites) than among other occupational groups composed of both races.

More southern men and more Negroes were represented in the farm group, he said.

Rev. H. J. Smith's Topic

"Snapshot or Time Exposure" will be the Rev. Henry J. Smith's sermon theme tomorrow at 11 a. m. at North Washington Baptist Church, Stansbury Hall, 5832 Georgia ave. nw., Brightwood.

Holy Name Society Plans Communion Mass

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Augustine's Catholic Parish, 15th and T sts. nw., will sponsor a Communion mass and breakfast tomorrow. The mass will be at 7 a. m. Dr. John O'Connor, history professor at Georgetown University and president of the Interracial Council of Washington, will address the breakfast in Charles Hall after the mass.

Rev. W. C. Scott to Talk

The Rev. Walter C. Scott, pastor of Kendall Baptist Church, will address a Men's Brotherhood meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at West Washington Baptist Church, 31st and N sts. nw.

Dr. Richardson Listed

Dr. Donald Richardson, dean of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va., will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Central Presbyterian Church, 15th and Irving sts. nw.

Johnson's Overtime Goal Wins for Central, 41-40

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE OTHER DAY WHEN the Chicago Cubs announced the signing of George Zoeterman, outbidding eight other big league ball clubs for the schoolboy no-hit sensation, there was appended the statement he would be a "bonus" player. That last was important, to the Cubs and to young Zoeterman.

POVICH

The "bonus" player is a comparatively new category in baseball, and not to be confused with the usual meaning of the phrase with its connotation of extra money for excellent performance or a salary based on the club's attendance figures. It's a whole lot different.

Because the Cubs paid the young man more than $6000 to sign a contract, he must be designated as a bonus player. He must be treated differently, too, in the years to come. In fact, he's marked for the life of his baseball career.

The Cubs actually signed him to a contract with their Decatur, Ill., club in the Class B Three-Eye League. But they'll have to bring him up to the Cubs at the end of the year, whether he's ready or not, or he'll be subject to draft by another club and the Cubs' $6000 will go down the drain. Not only that, but if the lad gets with the Cubs, they are never permitted to ask waivers on him more than once, and must sell him the first time he is claimed.

IT'S A SITUATION that could be either advantageous or disadvantageous to the young player. If the Cubs bring him up at the year's end to keep title to him, Zoeterman will have his chance to make good in the majors more quickly than the non-bonus players who can stay in the minors under option for as many as a half dozen years.

On the inevitable other hand, he may find himself with the Cubs not yet ready for a place in the lineup, and forced to languish on the bench unlike others of his age and experience who would be perfecting their baseball ability in the minor leagues. However, the fact that nine clubs were bidding for young Zoeterman displays their willingness to take a chance on that latter possibility.

One of the bidders, incidentally, was the Boston Red Sox, who are back in the schoolboy market despite their sad experience with a young pitcher named Callahan from New Orleans. The Red Sox a couple of years ago set something of a record bonus price for schoolboys when they paid Callahan $15,000 to sign a contract. He couldn't make good for their minor league club.

The less wealthy clubs in the majors, unable to match the pocketbooks of the richer teams in bidding for schoolboy talent, jammed through the rule designating a special class of "bonus" players. They were intent on stopping the crazy bidding for young talent, which the wiser baseball economists acknowledged was out of control and on the absurd side.

Right now, the football people have arrived at no such intelligent approach to the business. With the two major football leagues still at war, the wild bidding for talent continues, with all clubs acknowledging they are overpaying. But the baseball people are trying to solve it smartly by their special bonus class.

The fact that nine clubs were bidding for Zoeterman after Commissioner Chandler declared him a free agent and fined the White Sox $500 for signing him before he graduated, may still seem to be no evidence that the wild bidding had been curbed. But Zoeterman stacks up as a lad of exceptional ability. The restrictions to which bonus players are subject have had their effect. The wild bidding has tamed considerably, by and large.

A FEW YEARS AGO the baseball people took another big step toward curbing the bonus evil. They put an end to the practice of promising bonuses to players who hit a certain figure, or batted in a certain amount of runs, or pitched a certain number of victories. In these days, the only permissible bonus is one based on home attendance.

Ill-feeling cropped out continually when bonuses were given for excellence of performances. Certain players squawked that they were being held out of the lineup by club owners when they approached their bonus figure for the number of games played, runs batted in or pitching victories delivered. The managers, working for the front office, were always on the spot. Performance bonuses were emphatically ruled out and player-owner relations have been more tranquil as a result.

It didn't add up, to start with, that a ball player had any claim on a club owner because as a man with a lifetime average of .310 he happened to hit .340. When he signed his contract at the start of the year he agreed to do his best, didn't he?

Anacostia Eliminated From Tie for 1st Place

Eastern Beats Wilson, 46 to 43

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

With 40 seconds left in an overtime period yesterday, Bobby Johnson sank a short field goal to give Central a 41-40 win over Anacostia in the second game of an afternoon double header at the Armory.

In the first game, before 1484 fans, Eastern defeated Woodrow Wilson, 46-43.

Central's triumph clinched at least a tie for a playoff berth as Anacostia was eliminated from the three-way tie with the Vikings and Roosevelt for first place in the league.

Central now has a 4-1 record and Anacostia 3-2.

Lead See-Saws

Perry Lear started Anacostia off to a 6-0 lead with three set shots in the first two minutes, and the Indians were on top at 12-10 at the first-quarter gun. A field goal by Jack Stringer tied it in the second for Central and from then on the score was tied 11 times.

At halftime, Central was ahead, 23-18, but at the three-quarter mark, the score was 31 all.

With 2:20 left in regulation play, it was 37 all.

Johnson Scores On Rebound

Max Pheasant opened the three-minute overtime period with a foul goal to put the Indians on top.

With 50 seconds to go, Central's Johnson let go with a set shot from 30 feet out and missed. The ball rebounded to Johnson just to the left of the four circle, and Bobby made good with his one hander.

Aside from Johnson's winning basket, Jimmy Pantos, who scored 14, and Ross Keith, who held Wally Warner to one field goal in the first half, were outstanding for Central.

Eastern Snaps Back

Warner, league's leading scorer, came to life in the second half and wound up with 15 points to give him 87 in 5 games.

In the first game, Eastern led up until the third quarter, when Wilson scored 17 points to pull ahead, 31-28. However, Sonny Wesley and John Brown scored 3 points each in the last quarter to pace Eastern's 18-point rally, and the Ramblers got the edge. Wesley led Eastern with 14 points, and Jack Whitcomb, with 16, was high for Wilson.

Tech Defeats Western, 38-21

BULLETIN
Roosevelt routed Coolidge, 41 to 29, in the nightcap.

McKinley Tech's trainers kept their slim playoff chances alive last night as they defeated Western's Red Raiders, 38-21 in the first game of an Inter-high doubleheader before about 2300 fans at the Armory.

The Trainers had no trouble, taking an 11-9 lead in the first quarter and staying ahead at 20-12 and 28-17 at half-time, and the third quarter.

Buddy Wickers and Henry Houck were high scorers for Tech with 11 and 10 points. The win was the second against three losses for Tech, which now has the same League Record as Western.

4 Tie With 65s For Lead in Texas Open

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 6 (AP).—Four professionals tied for the lead today in the first round of the $10,000 Texas Open, shooting six-under-par 65's.

Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill.; Jim Ferrier of San Francisco; Eric Monti of Santa Monica, Calif., and Norman Von Nida of Sydney, Australia, took the 6,400-yard Brackenridge Park course apart to pace the way.

Favorites like Jimmy Demaret and Bobby Locke were close up, the former with a 67 and the South Africa star with a 68, but another of the big names—Little Ben Hogan—faltered to a 71.

Worsham Fires 67

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 6.—National Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., shot a 35, 32—67 in the Phoenix Open here today and wound up in an eight-man tie for eighth place. There was a four-way tie for the lead at 65.

But he apparently has withdrawn from the field. He put a seven on his card for hole 13, thinking he had one penalty stroke for a water hazard instead of two for a unplayable lie. Rules of the tournament say posting the wronk score means disqualification.

Hogan said he didn't want to be criticized so he was disqualifying himself. He argued heatedly with the tournament committee which said he could not disqualify himself—that it was merely a matter of judgment and did not involve disqualification.

The score was changed from a 70 to a 71 and Hogan was told that if he did not continue playing he would be considered as having withdrawn but not disqualified. Hogan cleaned out his locker and left the course.

In second place were three professionals with 66s—Horton Smith of Detroit, Skip Alexander of Mid-Pines, N. C., and Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va.

Lions Yield To Philly Easily, 6-2

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

The Philadelphia Rockets drubbed the Washington Lions in an American Hockey League contest, 6-2, before 1232 fans last night at Uline Arena. Goals by Walter Babey and Jack Portland in the final period saved the Lions from a shutout, but the Washington team was never really in contention.

Running wild in the first period, the Rockets drilled five goals past Washington's substitute goalie, Dick Bittner, who was making his first starting appearance of the season.

That opening period was a nightmare to the Lions. Mike Narduzzi started it off by driving in a rebound at close range and Jim Jamieson notched the second goal on a pass from Charlie Kraiger. Then Phil Hergesheimer scored on a beautiful shot from the right side as he skated full blast into Lion ice with a defenseman on his back all the way.

Wally Stefaniw and Narduzzi pumped in another pair of goals just before the period ended as the Philadelphians skated rings around the sagging Lion defense.

Ol' Bobo Is Jobless Again

Yankees Give Him His Release; Newsom Now Available for $1

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—Boisterous Louis Norman (Bobo) Newsom, after 20 rollicking years in organized baseball during which he toiled for 22 different bosses, joined the unemployed today.

The veteran righthanded pitcher, who in the course of his many travels once caused a club to pay $50,000 for his services, has been offered by the New York Yankees to any team which wants him for the price of one dollar.

Actually the Yankees, who obtained Newsom from Washington last summer for the $10,000 waiver price, have given the 38-year-old Gulliver of baseball his unconditional release. Newsom, however, is a 10-year man in the majors, and according to baseball law, waivers must first be asked on all such players.

Should a club desire his services, it is obliged to hand over one dollar to make the transaction legal. Newsom, as a 10-year-man, has the right to refuse to join the claiming club. He then becomes a free agent.

Old Story For Harris

Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees, in breaking ties with Newsom for the third time (Harris handled him on two occasions in Washington), paid Bobo a fine tribute.

"Newsom did a great job for me when I needed him most," Harris said. "He served his purpose nobly, bolstering an injury-riddled pitching staff last summer when both Frank Shea and Spud Chandler were sidelined after the all-star game.

"However, I have decided to give several promising youngsters a shot at starting roles next season, and Newsom, at his age, simply does not fit into my plans."

Newsom came to the Yankees in mid-June and registered seven victories while losing five. On July 17 he racked up his 200th major league victory which also was the eighteenth in a row for the Yankees, who went on to win another and tie the Chicago White Sox's 41-year-old American League record of 19 consecutive victories.

Broke Even for Year

Newsom's season record with Washington and New York was 11-11, giving him an over-all big league total of 205 victories and 213 defeats in 14 complete seasons and parts of three others.

No other man in modern times saw service with as many major

Bethesda Wins County Crown

Bethesda High won the Montgomery County Class A championship last night by defeating Montgomery-Blair, 35-31, at Ritchie Coliseum.

The winners led most of the way, holding a 19-15 halftime advantage and stretching their lead to 30-17 as play in the last period began.

Blair rallied in the final quarter, but Dave Parkinson and Dick Latimer came through with baskets to sew up the triumph for Bethesda.

It was the second straight win for Bethesda over Blair and gives the winners a season's record of 11 wins against three defeats.

Ford Frick Silent On League's Views Of Mexican 'Peace'

New York, Feb 6 (AP).—Ford Frick, president of the National League, said today he and club owners in the circuit had discussed possibilities of a peace settlement between organized baseball and the Mexican League, but declined to say what conclusion they had reached.

Denying published suggestions that the National League was responsible for a breakdown in the reported peace negotiations, Frick said the discussion with the club owners was strictly informal and that no vote was taken.

If the Mexican circuit should be welcomed into organized baseball, it might mean the return of several major league players who have been suspended for five years as a result of jumps across the border.

Post Reporter

GEORGE SAUER, Navy's new football coach, reported in yesterday—to several Washington members of the National Rifle Association.

He and Jerry Flynn, Navy publicity man who piped him aboard at Union Station and took him in tow, walked in on the pistol experts' conclave at the Statler and both went over with a bang.

Saure, who looks more like 27 than the 37 he acutally is, had a ready answer for every question the reporters and others shot at him. He also showed a good sense of humor which may escape him before Navy completes its murderous football schedule this fall.

One of the first men introduced to Sauer was T/Sergt. Joe Benner, world's champion pistol shot.

"I'll need you in November," Sauer joshed. "With you on our side I feel we can whip Army."

Sauer, who was released from a four-year contract at Kansas to become Navy's first civilian coach in 16 years, said he was "very happy" over the change.

"Think you'll be able to say that in December?" someone piped.

"Please, boys, take it easy on me. . . . Don't bear down the first day," replied Sauer.

One reporter, humorously offering Sauer solace, told him:

"You'll meet the best center and the best tackler in the East t Annapolis Saturday, Dick Scott and Dick Shimshak. Both graduate in June."

Navy's new mentor frowned heavily when the discussion got around to the 1948 schedule—Micshigan, Pennsylvania, Army, Notre Dame, California, Missouri, Columbia and Duke.

"Well, we may surprise a couple of them," Sauer broke in, "but we entertain no hopes of an unbeaten record. And you can quote me on that."

Sauer revealed that he was a cousin of Pete Sauer, the top-notch wrestler of Jim Londos' salad days, who also went under the name of Ray Steele.

"When Pete wasn't doing so well under the name of Sauer," George explained, "he simply switched to Steele and started to win a few matches. I may even try that mystelf if things get rough."

Today, Sauer formally takes over at Annapolis. He's due for a morning meeting with Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Academy superintendent, and other braid.

He wants to map out plans for spring practice, line up a few more assistants and complete any business he and Navy people left unfinished at their conference last week when Sauer was hired.

His first two objectives, he said here yesterday, were in the order named:

1. Getting over to Annapolis and getting on the payroll.

2. Finding a place to live.

"I've arranged for the first one and will be glad to introduce you to all the real estate people in Annapolis," Flynn volunteered as he and Sauer headed for the Severn.

Underfed Trout In Prospect for 1948 Fishermen

Hackettstown, N. J., Feb. 6 (AP).—While you're home huddled up by the fire thinking fond thoughts of the good ol' summertime in the streams across the Nation, Mr. Trout Fisherman, what do you think the trout are doing on these frosty days?

There was a great deal of apprehension today at the New Jersey State trout hatchery, which is about typical of all State hatcheries in the country, that you will find your prey considerably smaller this year than in the past, and it all will trace back to the weather.

This brings up the obvious problem of how to feed the trout. Hayford gets around that by having attendants chop holes in the ice at feeding time. The trouble is that with the thermometer hovering around zero almost every day, the holes freeze up in a matter of hours.

Rangers Send Warwick To Bruins for Taylor

Toronto, Feb. 6 (AP).—The New York Rangers of the National Hockey League announced today they had traded Forward Grant Warwick to the Boston Bruins for Center Billy Taylor and an unnamed player who will join the Rangers at the start of next season.

Handball Scheduled

The Washington YMCA Handball Team will play host to Wilmington today at 2 p. m. at the Central Branch of the YMCA. Singles and doubles matches will be held and the public is invited to attend.

Gonzaga Jayvees Win

Gonzaga jayvees downed the Coolidge jayvees, 42-27, at the Coolidge gym yesterday. Jimmy Pope with 14 points led the winners to their eighth victory in 10 starts.

Swedes' Ski Successes Regain Lead

By Bill Macklin

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 6 (AP).—Blonde, blue-eyed Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's superb ballerina of the ice, won Sonja Henie's Olympic figure skating crown today with a dazzling exhibition of grace and beauty that left her rivals nowhere.

Wearing No. 13 on the sleeve of her white fur-trimmed costume, the pretty Ottawa girl defied the "hoodoo" number to be hailed tonight as a worthy successor to the fabulous Norse star who won three Olympic titles before the war.

Babs' victory, coming on top of Dick Button's triumph for America in the men's figure skating final yesterday, gives the Western Hemisphere a sweep of the specialty which always has been dominated by Europe's ice artists.

The Canadian beauty, already the world's champion, declared after realizing her life's ambition today that she would not turn professional.

Four European girls, headed by Eva Pavlick of Austria, supplied Barbara Ann with what little opposition she encountered. Yvonne Sherman of New York City was judged sixth best, and Gretchen Merrill of Boston, the American champion, gained eighth place after taking two spills.

While the United States contingent was being halted temporarily after its banner two-victory splurge of the previous day, the hardy Swedes swept back into first place in the team standings by finishing first, second and fifth in the 50-kilometer (31-mile) cross-country ski race, most grueling of Olympic events.

Accident Halts Bobs

Nils Karlsson sped over the long course in the excellent time of 3 hours 47 minutes 48 seconds. No American even attempted the grind.

The 17 points picked up in the snow marathon jumped Sweden to the top among the 28 competing nations with a total of 79 points, with two days to go in the games. Switzerland dropped to second place with 70 points and the United States clung to third with 53¼.

Other totals under the Associated Press unofficial scoring system were: Austria, 51; Norway, 48½; Finland, 45; France, 39; Italy, 24; Great Britain, 11; Canada, 10¼; Holland, 6; Hungary, 5; Czechoslovakia, 5; Belgium, 3.

A broken water pipe flooded the bobsled run and halted competition among the four-man bobs after the first of four scheduled heats had been completed and a good start made on the second heat.

AHA Team Wins

The American No. 2 sled, piloted by Francis Tyler of Lake Placid, N. Y., had the second best time in the opening heat and was leading the second go-round when the accident occurred.

The contest will be resumed tomorrow, starting with the second heat.

A bob piloted by the Swiss ace, Fritz Feierabend, made the best time of the first heat—one minute 16.9 seconds—followed by Tyler's time of 1:17.1. A Norwegian and a Belgian sled tied for third and fourth at 1:17.3, after which came the American No. 1 bob, driven by James Bickford of Saranac Lake, N. Y., at 1:17.4.

The Amateur Hockey Association team representing the United States in the unofficial Olympic scored a 13-2 victory over Austria, but, having suffered two defeats, was out of the running for the title.

Bobs Biggest Draw

The Swiss forged into the lead by scoring their sixth straight win over Poland, 14-0. Their chief rivals, Canada and Czechoslovakia, battled to a scoreless tie today, giving each a record of five wins and one tie. The Swiss have yet to play both Canada and the Czechs.

The biggest crowd since the Olympics opening ceremony packed the bleachers and perched on the terraced cliffs to see Miss Scott add the last great title to her skating honors.

Two hundred photographers rushed for Barbara Ann, and Sheldon Galbriath, her trainer, caught her arm and ran interference to the dressing room.

Babs Is Toast Of All Canada

Ottawa, Ontario, Feb. 6 (U.P.). Barbara Ann Scott became the sports idol of all Canada tonight.

Her Olympic triumph was celebrated throughout the Dominion with Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King leading the parade of officials and others who cabled congratulations to the new Olympic figure-skating queen. The Ottawa city council began preparations for a gigantic official reception upon her return to the city.

Across the Nation

Huskies Hide From 'Spy' Manicuring

Seattle, Feb. 6 (AP).—An assistant student manager, always alert for such goings on, spotted a man high in the stands at a University of Washington basketball practice and edged over to Coach Art McLarney.

The stranger, he said, seemed to be taking notes. Coach Art, working on a defense against the Oregon State team his outfit meets tonight, yanked the varsity from the main floor.

He took the men to the intramural gym, hung towels over the windows and placed a guard at the door. The "spy" was thwarted.

With everything safe, the student manager climbed into the stands to investigate.

Skiers Get Lift

Middlebury, Vt., Feb. 6 (AP).—Middlebury College skiers have discovered a new winter sports thrill—aero-skijoring.

Only the most proficient are attempting the new pastime in which the skier travels 55 to 63 miles an hour while holding a rope hanging from a low flying plane.

Reynolds Tops in Okla.

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 6 (AP).—Oklahoma sports editors today chose Pitcher Allie Reynolds, 19-game winner for the New York Yankees last season, as the State's outstanding baseball man in 1947.

Porterfield VPI Coach

Richmond, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Richmond News Leader said today that Bill Porterfield, part-time assistant at University of Richmond, "has only to say the word" to become VPI's new football coach.

Porterfield, former Gobbler center and all-time football great at VPI, was reported by the paper as having had a telephone conversation with Tech President Dr. Walter S. Newman, who has the final word Dr. Newman and Porterfield are to meet next week, it was stated.

Marion, N. C., Feb. 6 (AP).—Wes Ferrell, long-time pitcher with Cleveland and Washington, has been signed to manage the Marion entry of the western Carolina Class "D" League.

Mrs. Pray, Partner Lose in Golf

Hollywood, Fla., Feb. 6 (AP).—Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., and Jean Hopkins of Cleveland, Ohio, continued their heads up play in the third annual women's international four-day golf tournament today.

The pair, favorites in the event, defeated Grace Lenczyk of Deland, Fla., and Mary McMillen, former Wisconsin women's champion of Green Bay, 6 and 5.

Pat Devany of Grosse Ile, Mich., attending the University of Miami, and Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., beat Mrs. Lloyd Pray of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Frank Fuller, Elgin, Ill., 2 and 1.

Two five-round bouts have been added to the 10-round feature between Lee Q. Murray and Johnny Haynes at Turner's Arena Monday night.

Sonny Boy Bunn will face Jimmy Briscoe and Bobby Garcia will oppose Bobby Suma. Two more bouts will be added.

Dodds Aims at Record In 1500-Meter Run

Boston, Feb. 6 (AP).—The next item on Gil Dodds' record-smashing docket is Glenn Cunningham's 10-year-old indoor mark of 3:48.4 for 1500 meters.

The famed Flying Parson will attempt to erase it during the Hunter Mile here tomorrow night in the Boston A. A. games.

Meet officials will have a tape and four certified timers on the spot when Dodds hits the 1500-meters mark to safeguard what is expected to be another epic jaunt by Doods.

Five others will compete for the historic trophy, which Gil can retire, John Twomey of Illinois, Frank Effinger of Phillips Andover, Browning Ross of Villanova, Les MacMitchell and Bill Hulse.

Jack Ryder, Dodds' veteran coach, feels certain his protege bettered the Cunningham mark while lowering his own indoor mile record to 4:05.3 in last week's Millrose meet.

"Gil not only is in shape to set a new 1500-meter record but he could improve every mark from 1000 yards to 5000 meters if suitable tests could be arranged," Ryder boasts.

Dodds, who seldom makes any advance promises, said:

"I have a feeling I'd be better at 1500 meters than the mile," he confessed. "But the only thing I have to go by is my 3:50 flat back in 1943. That year my best mile was 4:08.5."

Forest Efaw, the Stillwater, Okla., veteran, will be on hand to defend his Billings 2-mile honors, against such stars as Tom Quinn of the New York A. C., Curtis Stone of Philadelphia, Ted Vogel of Tufts, Jack Milne of North Carolina and the over-age but still durable Joe McCluskey.

Bill Wanish, High Scorer, Quits Terps

Bill Wanish, leading scorer on the Maryland basketball team, has quit the university because of homesickness, Coach Flucie Stewart announced yesterday.

Stewart said the freshman star reported he planned to enroll in a college near his home in Allentown, Pa.

Wanish had scored 169 points in Maryland's 15 games this season and a couple of weeks ago was leading individual scorer in the Southern Conference.

Coach Stewart fortunately had another Pennsylvanian ready to step into Wanish's position for tomorrow night's game against Washington and Lee. Spencer Wright, a freshman transfer from Bloomsburg, Pa., Teachers became eligible this week.

Wanish came to Maryland after a starring career at Allentown High where he played on three State championship teams and scored more than 1000 points in four years.

Six Critics Named to Aid In Drawing Rotation Plan

Chief Murphy's Move Held Irking Rather Than Pacifying Some Opponents

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday named six of his most outspoken critics to draws up a personnel rotation plan for the strife-ridden Fire Department.

Murphy's own program for transferring firemen—which his opponents declared was not a "plan" at all—formed the basis for the broadest of nine "demoralization" charges in the fire chief's recent trial before a civilian board.

In acquitting Murphy of all charges last Friday, the trial board recommended that supporters and opponents of Murphy's program meet to work out a "well considered and thoroughly understood (rotation) plan."

Antagonism Shown

But if Murphy's order yesterday was intended as a laurel wreath of "peace" in the department, it seemed to antagonize, instead of pacify, some of his opponents.

"This isn't what the board recommended," declared one Murphy critic. "He's trying to put these people on the spot by naming just those who opposed him."

In his order yesterday, Murphy said the committee named would draw a plan "for the purpose of affording members (of the department) opportunity to gain the widest variety of experiences by assignment to the different types of units and services."

This is what Murphy said he was trying to do right along, and which the trial board held was not inefficient and could be "highly efficient."

Committee Named

To the committee, Murphy named Battalion Chiefs H. F. Harding (chairman), J. L. Werhelm, M. H. Sutton, J. E. Suit and F. Litteral, and Capt. E. F. Stein. All six testified against Murphy at his trial, but some approved a rotation plan "if properly administered."

Murphy set a deadline of April 17 for the committee's report.

The Murphy case, both the trial and the affidavits which led to it, is scheduled to be reviewed Wednesday at an executive meeting of the House District Subcommittee on Public Service.

U. S. Court Permits Naming Harriman 'Coconspirator'

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 5 (U.P.).—A Federal judge tonight granted a Department of Justice request that the Southeast Presidents Conference and Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman be considered "coconspirators" in the Government's antitrust suit against Western railroads.

The request was granted by Federal Judge John W. Delehant, who directed Government attorneys to draw up the necessary papers.

Delehant granted the request after Joseph McDowell, chief of the Justice Department attorneys handling the Government's case, described Harriman as a "leading figure" in an alleged "conspiracy" to stifle competition and keep railroad rates at a high level.

Selling Some Jewels, Mrs. Olds Says in Court Support Plea

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Nina Gore Vidal Auchincloss Olds, of 2875 Woodland dr. nw., Washington, D. C., has told the Superior Court here that she had to sell some of her jewels to help support herself and her two children.

Mrs. Olds testified yesterday in support of her petition that the income from trust funds established by the children's paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Emma Brewster Auchincloss, be released for their support.

The children, Nina, 10, and Thomas, 8, receive $6000 a year from their father, Hugh D. Auchincloss, New York broker, from whom Mrs. Olds was divorced in 1941.

Need $12,000, She Says

She asserted that double that amount, or $6000 for each child, was necessary for their support, and asked that the accumulated income from their trust funds be released.

A trust fund of approximately $212,000 was established by their grandmother to reach child, the court was told, and the accumulated income for Thomas now is $23,676 and for Nina, $23,380.

Mrs. Olds, daughter of the late Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma and widow of the late Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, testified she had sold a ring and a bracelet for $18,000, and also disposed of real estate and securities to meet general family expenses.

She estimated her annnual income, including the $6000 received from Auchinclosss for the children's support, at $15,000. Her household staff, she said, includes a butler, cook, governess, maid and gardener; the children's clothing costs about $1200 each a year, and they each receive an allowance of $175 a month. She said the family's food bills were about $325 monthly.

MRS. NINA OLDS
Sues former husband

First Married Vidal

Mrs. Olds, first married Eugene L. Vidal, former director of aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, in 1922. A son, Eugene jr., was born three years later. She divorced Vidal in 1935 and the same year married Hugh D. Auchincloss, socially prominent investment banker of the firm of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath.

They made their home near Chain Bridge rd. in Fairfax County, Va., until their separation in 1941 which ended in a Reno divorce.

Mrs. Auchincloss married then Brig. Gen. Robert Olds, USA, on June 6, 1942, at her home in Georgetown. General Olds, who was well known as an air tactician and served as head of the Air Corps Ferry Command, was on duty in Spokane, Wash., and they made their home there in 1942. The following year, her husband, then a major general, died and Mrs. Olds has since lived here.

Russell B. Adams Reported Slated For Place on CAB

Russell B. Adams, a Government career man, is slated for a place on the Civil Aeronautics Board, it was reliably reported last night.

President Truman, according to the report, has Adams in mind for the vacancy created by the resignation of Harllee Branch, who decided to quit the CAB because of "the high cost of living in Washington" and because he was "quite tired."

Adams is now director of the Economics Bureau of the CAB. He lives at 10710 O'd Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, Md.

It was thought possible that Mr. Truman might make Adams chairman. So far as is known, however, the President still is looking for a man to fill that post, vacant since the departure of James M. Landis.

Driver Held For Injuries To Boy, 10

Victi mSuffered Possible Fracture Of Skull in Accident Involving His Sled

A truck driver was held in $500 bond yesterday as a result of a sledding accident which seriously injured a 10-year-old boy.

The victim, who suffered a possible skull fracture and an amputated thumb, is Joseph Bentley of 28 Pierce st. nw. He was injured and his sled demolished when struck by a backing truck at Logan ct. nw., at 11:50 p. m. Thursday.

Driver of the truck was listed as Gus R. White, 27, of 34 Fenton pl. ne., who is charged with leaving after colliding, backing without caution and having no driver permit. Police said he took the boy to the hospital, but left without giving his name.

Wedding Party in Crash

Near tragedy followed close on the heels of joy last night when the automobile of a newly married couple was struck b y another while en route to the wedding supper.

John W. Blanchard, 36, Greenbelt, Md., the bridegroom, was attempting to turn his car around to park near Mrs. K's Tea House, Colesville rd. and Dale dr., Silver Spring, when it was hit by one operated by Ernest W. Brand, 39, 748 Scully dr., Silver Spring, police said.

Blanchard and his bride, Margaret, were uninjured, but another member of the party, James L. Fowler, 22, a Marine stationed at White Oak, Md., suffered a slight concussion, police said. He was treated at Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, where he was taken by the Silver Spring Rescue Squad.

Blanchard's car had stopped on Colesville rd. with its wheels spinning on the ice without traction, police said, and Brand, who was entering the intersection on Dale dr., was unable to stop on the slippery downgrade. Neither driver was charged.

Other Accidents Yesterday

Others injured in traffic mishaps yesterday:

Frederick Davis, 74, of 644 S. 25th st., Arlington, Va., struck by a car driven by Melvin Y. Bower, 22, of 3301 Russell rd., Alexandria, Va., at 12th and E sts., nw. His left shoulder was fractured. Bower was charged with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Anne Goshdigian, 32, of 3638 38th st., nw., who suffered minor cuts and bruises when struck by a car operated by Mrs. Ellen G. Gallicott, 57, of 3831 Legation st. nw.

Mrs. Dolores Gibbs, 43, of 6 Neptune Green sw., who suffered a possible fractured wrist and ribs when the car in which she was riding was in collision with another car at 9th and E sts. se. Mrs. Gibbs was riding with Joseph A. Schafer, 21, of 1009 E st. se. The other driver was Richard T. Wilson, 24, of 1452 Rock Creek Ford rd.

Traffic Safety School Gains 2 Students

The District Traffic Safety School gained two new students yesterday.

Raymond J. Shoemaker, 47, of 1549 35th st. nw., and Stanley D. Nicholas, 41 of 7 Keel Greens, D. C., were released on personal bond by Municipal Court Judge Nadine Gallagher after they promised to attend the school. Sentence on charges of failing to give full attention to driving was deferred until completion of the schooling."

Cars operated by the defendants collided last November 22, at 7th st., and Market Space., nw. Nicholas, his wife, Marian, and Shoemaker were injured in the crash.

Ellicot City Boy Dies As Sled, Auto Collide

Louis Gray, 11, of Howard County, Md., was killed last night when his sled, a 1946 Christmas gift, collided with an automobile near the boy's home on Waterloo rd., Ellicott City.

The driver of the auto, George Ridgely, 27, of Catonsville, Md., took the lad to a nearby physician's office where he was pronounced dead at 7:30 p. m. He was the son of Rudolph Gray, shipping clerk in a box factory, and Mrs. Lenore Gray.

Simeon Strunsky, N. Y. Times Editor, Novelist, Dies

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 5 (AP).—Simeon Strunsky, 68, novelist and editor and columnist on the New York Times died in Princeton Hospital tonight.

He was an editor and writer on the Times since 1924 and wrote the editorial column, "Topics of the Times," for many years.

At his bedside were his only son and his daughter in law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strunsky of Princeton. Another daughter, Mrs. Denver Lindley of New York also survives.

He entered the Princeton Hospital last November.

A native of Vitebsk, Russia, Strunsky came to this country as a boy. He began his editorial career on the New International Encyclopedia, where he served six years before becoming an editorial writer on the New York Evening Post.

He served with the Post from 1906 to 1920, and his essays as "The Patient Observer" and in the column, "Post-Impressions," were collected in two volumes.

Officer Cut, Helps Slay Attacker; Texas Girl Wounds Soldier in Leg

Two Montgomery Patrolmen Kill Man in Street Fight

A Montgomery County policeman was in the hospital yesterday with a deep cut in his upper arm after he and a fellow officer shot and killed a man who attacked them with a knife.

Reported in "good" condition at Suburban Hospital was Pvt. Leslie B. Thompson who, with Corpl. Paul Alexander fired eight shots, fatally wounding their 40-year-old assailant, Theodore Roosevelt Wallace.

Also in Suburban Hospital in "good" condition was the man's wife, Bertha L. Wallace, 37, who police said, was stabbed numerous times by her husband before Thompson and Alexander could respond to a call of a prowler in the house.

The shooting took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, jr., 5100 Moorland la., Edgemoor, where Bertha Wallace was employed as a maid.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County Coroner, who performed an autopsy, said four bullets found their mark, three in the man's abdomen and one in his thigh.

Police said Wallace had been staying at the Marshall home but had been ordered to leave last Monday due to frequent fights with his wife.

GI Pay Bar Hits Staff at Gallinger

BA Order Expected To Cause 'Number' to Leave, Officials Say

Gallinger Hospital may lose "a number" of interns and resident doctors because the Veterans' Administration has cut off their GI subsistence payments, hospital officials said last night.

Dr. P. S. Rossiter, Gallinger chief of staff, said 30 members of the staff would be affected by a VA order, effective January 31, that eliminates GI payments for subsistence, books and instruments to interns and residents in hospitals receiving Federal aid.

T. Otis Black, associate VA director of public relations, said the order was necessary to comply with a law passed by Congress last August.

The order will be a "catastrophe" both to Gallinger and the men involved, many of whom may leave the hospital because they can't support families without the GI benefits, Dr. Rossiter said.

Gallinger Superintendent Alvin Sweeney will lodge a strong protest with the Veterans Administration ,he added.

It will be "particularly hard on the men" because they will find that most other hospitals already have filled interne and resident quotas for the year beginning July 1, he said.

Dr. E. P. Parker, assistant resident in medicine at Gallinger, said regular pay for internes and residents ranges from $35 to $95 per month. Those under GI bill of rights training supplemented this with VA payments of $65 to $90 a month, he said.

"A number" of men will cancel plans to begin training as internes and residents at Gallinger next July, striking further into Gallinger's limited staff, Dr. Rossiter predicted.

He said he believed the order also would apply to approximately 13 men at Freedmen's Hospital.

Child Deaths Here Exceed U. S. Average

Washington has comparatively good health facilities available to children—but its infant mortality rate is 10 per cent higher than the national average.

These are highlights of a preliminary report on the study of child health services which has been in preparation for the past two years by the American Academy of Fediatrics, in cooperation with the United States Children's Bureau and the United States Public Health Service.

Eight representative States were selected for the preliminary report, including a "composite State" comprised of Maryland, the District of Columbia, and two counties of Virginia, Arlington and Fairfax; Montana, New Hampshire, Illinois, Oregon, North Carolina, New Mexico and Alabama.

In these areas live 15 per cent of the Nation's child population, 5½ million children. In Washington, medical care dispensed by hospitals, clinics and by doctors in private practice showed a rate of 17.2 visits per 1000 children on an average day, as against a rate of 13.9 for all eight States.

In Washington's "composite State" there are 132 pediatricians, a proportion to child population which is higher than in 43 States of the union. Wyoming has only one pediatrician in the entire State.

The District of Columbia's infant mortality rate of 48.3 for every 1000 live births is lower only than six States in the entire country, according to 1945 figures, latest available. States which have a higher rate of death for infants are Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico South Carolina, Texas and West Virginia.

All to Wife

Municipal Court Judge Nathan R. Margold, who died December 16, left an estate valued at $41,056, it was shown in a probate petition filed yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Gertrude W. Margold, 2964 Newark st. nw., was named sole heir and executrix. They have a 5-year-old son, William Frederick Margold.

The will was dated June 8, 1927. The probate petition showed $871 in cash, $384 in unpaid salary, $36,801 in notes receivable and about $2000 in securities. Also shown were leases on oil and gas lands at Wagoner, Okla., which he noted are "believed to be worthless at this time," and an $800 automobile.

Judge Margold, who had been on the Municipal Court bench five years, died of a heart attack.

'Sun Seeker' Shipped for Experiment

A new scientific gadget, well dubbed the "Sun Seeker," left Silver Spring, Md., yesterday for New Mexico, where it will be shot into the stratosphere to help snoop on solar secrets.

The Sun Seeker is just one of the gadgets jammed into a V-2 rocket warhead by scientists of the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory in Silver Spring, who want to look around at the sun's radiation some 75 miles above the earth's surface without being up there themselves. They stayed up all night to pack the warhead.

As its name implies, the Sun Seeker is a sort of scientific sunflower which will keep its face turned toward the sun, no matter how much the rocket carrying it spins, pitches, yaws, rolls, or even tumbles. How? It's done by mirrors, among other things.

The rocket carrying this and other instruments will be fired from the White Sands Proving Ground, N. Mex., February 19. It is not expected to reach the 100-mile altitude attained by a V-2 last July 29, because its 1½-ton warhead and lead-lined, armored instruments will be half a ton overweight.

Mirrors on the Sun Seeker, scanning the sky, will fix themselves on the sun, Johns Hopkins Physicist Lorie Frazer explained yesterday. The image of the sun is projected on photoelectirc cells. If the sun moves, or, in this case, if the rocket moves, there will be more current in one cell than in the other, driving the mirror mechanism around so it will keep facing the sun. This action is instantaneous.

Chestnut Delays Ruling On Taft Hartley Act

Baltimore, Feb. 6 (AP).—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut delayed ruling on constitutionality of certain parts of the Taft-Hartley labor act today in connection with a $90,000 damage suit filed by a Hagerstown concern.

The judge said he wanted time to read briefs and complaints in the case, brought by the Colonial Hardwood Flooring Co. against the United Furniture Workers of America (CIO) and its Hagerstown local.

The firm charged the unions with violation of the Taft-Hartley Law by causing a strike at the plant two weeks before expiration of a contract that pledged there would be no walkout.

Lane Names Anderson To Fifth Circuit Court

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 6 (AP).—Governor Lane today appointed Marvin I. Anderson, State's Attorney of Anne Arundel County, to succeed Judge William J. McWilliams on the Fifth Circuit bench March 1.

Anderson was recommended unanimously by the Anne Arundel County and the Maryland Bar Associations.

Shooting Gallery Patron Thought Shells Were Blanks

A Texan whose shootin' iron banged in the wrong direction in a 9th st. shooting gallery was held on $1000 bond yesterday on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Pert, blue-eyed Jo Anne Rogers, 23, of Austin, was whiling away train-waiting time with a companion and two Marines at the shooting gallery, 416 9th st. nw., Thursday night.

Picking up a .22-caliber gallery revolver, which she later said she thought was loaded with blanks, she whirled and fired five times in the general direction of five young soldiers from Fort Myer.

One of the troops became a casualty. He was 17-year-old Pvt. John J. Melone, who was taken to Walter Reed Hospital with a flesh wound in his leg. Those who escaped the fussilade were Pvts. Richard Chagnon, Fred Weber, Richard Donoghue and Joseph T. Hoza.

Miss Rogers' attorney, Thomas David, told the Municipal Court the incident was "purely accidental. She thought she was shooting blanks."

Her hearing was continued until Friday pending outcome of the soldier's injury.

Nomination Of Myers Gets Wide Approval

Congressmen can't remember when there's been so much agreement about a prospective municipal judge.

Only nice things were said yesterday about Frank H. Myers when the Senate District subcommittee heard his qualifications for municipal judge to succeed the late Nathan R. Margold.

Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said the committee would approve the appointment Monday when enough members could be found to make a legal quorum.

Five past presidents of the District Bar Association spoke as one in praising Myers' qualifications. They were Francis W. Hill, jr., Hugh H. O'Bear, John J. Carmody Godfrey Hunter and Col. Julius I. Peyser.

The present president, George E. McNeill, clinched it with his assurance that he knew of no other appointment which has met with such unanimous approval by laymen and lawyers. Three Senators agreed.

O'Bear declared the "Municipal Court needs strengthening and I'm sure this will go a long way toward doing it."

Wilson College Graduates First Mid-Year Class

Seventeen graduating seniors of Wilson Teachers College last night were warned that "education does not come through inoculation."

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District schools, told the first mid-year graduates in the college's history that acquiring learning is more than a process of absorption, but a "lot of work."

Other "firsts" established last night: The first time the boys (nine—eight of whom are veterans) outnumbered the girls, and the first time exercises have been held at the college's auditorium at 11th and Harvard sts. nw., rather than a larger hall in a District high school. Normal June classes number betwen 75 and 80 graduates, only 10 per cent of whom are men.

The graduates were: Alex Cothran Adrain, 57 U st. nw.; Miss Mary Patricia Drury, 1430 Longfellow st. nw.; Donald S. Goddard, 126 34th st. se.; Calvin Gordon Brooks, 4021 5th st. nw.; Fred Frank Cicala, 808 Upshur st. nw.; Arthur W. Day, jr., 330 9th st. ne.; Mrs. Guemile Vinson Dunn, 3 Rock Creek Church rd. nw.; Mrs. Mary Catherine Mack Kindley, 1306 Corbin pl. ne.; Miss Margaret Jeanne Ragozzino, 1602 Gales st. ne.; John Warren Reed, 907 Jefferson st. nw.; Joe A. Pike, 1206 Mount Vernon Blvd., Alexandria, Va.; George William Saunders, 4520 MacArthur Blvd. nw., and Forna Richard Weinrich, 2427 Monroe st. ne.

Also Mrs. Emma Jo Burns, 1633 16th st. nw.; Miss Zana L. Clendening, 9900 Rogart st., Silver Spring, Md.; Miss Elizabeth S. Emmons, 4500 Suitland rd., Suitland, Md., and Miss Mary Virginia Fourier, 1222 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Veterans Warned To Apply at Once For Infant Care

Servicemen and veterans who want emergency maternity and infant care benefits should apply immediately to the Health Department's Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare, Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, bureau director, announced yesterday.

EMIC, a wartime program providing maternal and infant care without cost to aviation cadets and servicemen in the lower four pay grades, began liquidating last July. But maternity care will continue until "spring" and medical aid for babies until the spring of 1949, Dr. Oppenheimer said. Information may be obtained from Miss Mary S. Gold, EMIC deputy administrator, at National 6000, Extension 2150.

Washington Given New Promise of Navy Fuel

Is Being Loaned 240,000 Gallons Of Diesel Oil, Due On Monday Night

WaWshington received a second Navy fuel oil promise yesterday, along with a disappointment in another expected delivery which may bring some cold homes this weekend.

The Navy loaned the District an additional 420,000 gallons of diesel oil, scheduled to reach here Monday night from Navy stocks near Norfolk, Va.

J. Thomas Kennedy, District fuel oil coordinator, said this area's fuel oil situation remains critical at least until next week, when the Navy oil and other deliveries are expected.

"We may have some cold homes this weekend," said Kennedy, "although we are doing everything in our power to avoid it."

A promised shipment of 500,000 gallons of oil for the Petrol Corp., the first of 9,500,000 gallons committed to the Washington-Baltimore area through arrangements with the Senate Small Business Committee, did not arrive yesterday.

Albert Wolken, investigator for the committee, said the shipment was unavoidably delayed, but should reach here tonight from the Baltimore plant of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

The remaining nine million gallons of the commitments, from Sinclair Refining Co. and Cities Service Corp., will start arriving next week, Wolken said.

The oil is for the Petrol Corp., which serves an estimated 20 per cent of Washington's needs and also operates in Baltimore and Philadelphia. About half of the nine million gallons will go to Baltimore and half to this area, Wolken said.

Arrangements for the second Navy oil loan were completed yesterday in Assistant Navy Secretary Mark E. Andrew's office, with Kennedy, Wolken and William H. Press, a member of the District Fuel Oil Committee.

The Senate Small Business Committee sair that L. P. Steuart & Bro., which obtains most of its oil supplies from the Petrol Corp. here, dispatched a barge from Baltimore to pick up the Navy oil.

Previously, the Navy loaned the District 735,000 gallons, and indicated no additional loans could be made.

In Baltimore last night, the State Fuel Coordinator's office reported that 630,000 gallons of oil loaned by the Navy, which arrived Thursday, will not last long.

Baltimore's emergency fuel oil pool has been extended to cover hardship cases throughout the State.

Ruhland Gives Sweeney Pat For Good Job

Superintendent Alvin R. Sweeney is doing "all he can" to improve conditions at Gallinger Hospital, Health Officer George C. Ruhland declared following a two-hour conference with Sweeney yesterday.

Ruhland said Sweeney doesn't want to resign and he (Ruhland) will not ask for his resignation. Rumors of a move to oust Sweeney began circulating Wednesday after Ruhland conferred with an official of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Commissioner Guy Mason indicated he would back Ruhland if he "makes a good case" for defending Sweeney. Mason last week ordered Ruhland to make personnel changes at Gallinger, if necessary, to improve administration.

Finders Withdraw Claim to $92,800 Cache in Home

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lieberman today withdrew their claims to $92,800 found in a cardboard box in the cellar of their home last March 10.

The Liebermans acted after the State assured them they would be paid the usual 25 per cent informers' fee if the Commonwealth gets the $92,800 under escheat proceedings. Lieberman told police he did not know how the money got in his home.

The widow of a slain former convict, Mrs. Anna Frances King Killop, whose husband was tortured to death nearly 16 years ago, told the court the $92,800 belonged to her husband.

Her attorney said the money was found by Lieberman in the ceiling of a second-floor bedroom where it had been hidden by Killop in conspiracy with Lieberman.

Almond Seen as Next Va. Attorney General

Richmond, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—Judge J. Lindsay Almond, member of Congress from Roanoke, will be the next Attorney General of Virginia, leaders of the dominant Democratic General Assembly predicted today.

The Sixth District Representative has agreed to accept the nomination, it was disclosed, and a joint Democratic caucus to act on the matter probably will be held early next week.

Conferees Agree on Pensions For Government Workers

2 to 25 per cent by either of these two formulas:

One and one-half per cent of average salary multiplied by years of service, or 1 per cent of average salary, plus $25, multiplied by years of service.

3. Retired employes will have their pensions increased by either a flat $300, or 25 per cent, whichever is smaller. However, an annuitant may elect to forego the increase and have his annuity continued after his death to his widow at a rate of 50 per cent, or $600 a year, whichever is smaller, until she remarries or dies.

4. Widows' benefits are provided for the first time in the history of the retirement system. The report provides that a married male employe who retires may elect to take a pension equal to 90 per cent of life annuity, but reduced by ¾ per cent for each year his wife is under 60 at the time of his retirement. His widow could draw a pension beginning at age 50 after his death, but the annuity would end on her remarriage.

An unmarried employe who is in good health when he retires could elect to take a reduced annuity and name a beneficiary who would get 50 per cent of his pension after his death.

If an employe with at least five years of service dies, his widow will be entitled to an annuity equal to 50 per cent of the pension he has earned. The pension would begin immediately if there is a child who is entitled to benefits, the annuity to end on her remarriage or death. Otherwise, the annuity would begin at 50.

5. If an annuitant or an employe with at least five years of service dies, unmarried children under 18 who are incapable of self-support are entitled to immediate benefits which end at death, marriage, or age 18. The maximum benefit is $90 a year for several children.

6. The so-called "tontine" charge is abolished. The charge of $1 a month was made against the retirement accounts of employes who resigned voluntarily.

7. Full credit toward retirement without deposit is allowed for military service, but only for those employes who have served at least five years.

8. Interest rate is cut from 4 to 3 per cent on all accounts.

9. If an employe resigns and withdraws his retirement fund, this service can't be counted toward a pension if he returns to the service, unless he redeposits the entire fund with interest.

10. If an employe has years of service that wasn't covered by the retirement act and if he doesn't make a deposit to cover this period, the service will count toward an annuity, but his pension will be reduced by 10 per cent of the amount unpaid plus interest.

11. The employe contribution to the retirement system will be increased from 5 to 6 per cent, this provision to become effective the first pay day after June 30, 1948.

Other provisions of the bill would become effective on different dates. For example, the involuntary separation feature after 25 years of service is retroactive to July 1, 1947; the reduced interest rate as of January 1, 1948, and children's and widow's benefits on the date of final approval.

Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee was enthusiastic over the report. He said it proposed the basic changes he had sponsored more than a year ago.

Area News in Brief

Pawnshop Errs, Buys Own Radio

Mrs. Jennie Margolis thought she had made a pretty fair deal in her husband Morris' pawnshop at 1231 Delaware ave. sw.

The radio on which Alfred A. Coleman 22, of 1231 Delaware ave. sw. protectively rested his hand seemed in good shape, so, according to police, she did not hesitate to give him $7 on the set.

Later, however, when she told Morris of the transaction he took one look at the radio and snorted: "That's our own set."

Yesterday in Municipal Court, Coleman pleaded not guilty to larceny charges and was granted a jury trial February 16.

Drunken Driving Cost

Clarence A. Andrews, 31, of 2737 S. Meade st., Arlington, yesterday drew a 30-day jail sentence and a $100 fine in Arlington County Court for drunken driving.

County Policeman E. A. Summers testified in court that he saw Andrews' car weaving down the road at 28th and S. Land sts. When he pursued it, Summers said, the car ran off the road several times, nearly hit a pedestrian, forced a bus off the highway, and finally skidded to a stop one block from Andrews' home.

Andrews admitted he had been drinking.

Acquitted in Assault

A Municipal Court jury yesterday acquitted Gilbert J. Tapia, 22, of 1112 Abbey pl. ne., of an assault charge resulting from a drinking-fountain dispute in a Rhode Island ave. moviehouse last August 3.

Stephen H. Holland, 30, of 1234 Meigs pl. ne., testified that while he was drinking at the lobby fountain, Tapia seized him by the shoulders, punched him and knocked him down.

Tapia testified that Holland had forced his way to the fountain ahead of two small boys. Then someone started swinging, Holland said, but he was not sure who swung the first blow.

Sports Writer Robbed

Roger Wolbarst, 2011 Wyoming ave. nw., a sports writer for The Washington Post, yesterday reported theft of a $200 wrist watch, a lady's pin and $4 in change from a bureau drawer in his apartment.

Election Plan Loses

A motion favoring nonpartisan elections for local school and county board posts has been defeated by the Democratic Club of Arlington.

The move was taken during the club's monthly meeting Thursday night in the Lyon Park Community House. Tabled for further study was another resolution asking Virginia's representatives in Congres sto urge amendment of the Hatch Act so that Government workers may enter partisan races for local offices.

Man Accused of Rape

Harry R. Chase, 23, of 3514 13th st. nw., yesterday was arrested on a charge of raping a 13-year-old girl at whose home he was visiting February 2.

Pearson Libel Suit Settled Out of Court

Charles Town, W. Va., Feb. 6 (AP). The trial of a $100,000 libel suit brought by Columnist Drew Pearson against the weekly Jefferson Republican ended today after the judge announced a settlement which involved a letter to Pearson from the editor.

The letter, read in court, was from Raymond J. Funkhouser, Charles Town industrialist and editor of the paper, which stated the article upon which the suit was based was published without Funkhouser's knowledge.

The letter added that "I have no reason to believe you are a Communist, but feel assured you are neither a Communist nor sympathizer with so-called principles of communism, or ever have been."

Judge Decatur H. Rodgers earlier in the trial had ruled that to call a person a "Commie" was libel in itself. After that ruling he held that further testimony would be limited to mitigation of damages, if any.

He repeated the statement today, saying the remark in the column was actionable and that some damage was done.

Alumni to Hear Rev. E. B. Bunn

The Rev. Edward B. Bunn, S. J., former president of Loyola College, Baltimore, and now assistant director of industrial relations, University of Scranton, will speak tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at a breakfast for the Georgetown University alumni engaged in the forthcoming campaign to raise $800,000 to build the McDonough Memorial Gymnasium.

The breakfast will follow a mass in St. William's Chapel on the campus.

Mrs. Stumm Gets 1 to 5 Years Sentence

Charles Town, W. Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Della Johnson Stumm, 40, of Martinsburg, W. Va., pleaded guilty to a voluntary manslaughter charge in Jefferson County Circuit Court today and was sentenced to from one to five years in West Virginia Penitentiary for the shooting January 10 of Bruce Orem, 41.

Prosecutor John C. Skinner, told Judge Decatur H. Rodgers that Orem was shot on a tenant farm near Cableton, W. Va., after a three-day drinking party at the home of Freddie Johnson, Mrs. Stumm's brother.

Orem died two days later in a hospital.

New Palmer Work Given Its Premiere

By Paul Hume

An important work by a young American composer received its first performance last night at the Library of Congress.

Robert Palmer's new piano quartet, dedicated to Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, was played by John Kirkpatrick, pianist, and members of the Walden String Quartet. We were privileged to hear a rehearsal of two out of the three movements of the work, with the score before us.

The music is extremely expressive, achieving its effect through strong rhythmic figures and a brilliant sense of sonority coupled to a pronounced lyrical line. The opening of the slow movement is divided between the three strings and piano solo. A long rising line is developed through clear polyphony, reaching impressive heights were the horizontal writing gives way to block chords. The dialogue between strings and piano results in finely balanced tone color, with the syncopation in the piano a masterful handling of that instrument.

Palmer's Toccata Ostinato, which has been played here by Evelyn Swarthout and Claudio Arrau, showed us what the composer could do with that solo vehicle. In the final movement of his quartet, we hear the product of his technical virtuosity in handling the added voices of the chamber ensemble. Rapidly changing time signatures, and the introduction of a triple-metered figure over an already complex rhythmic pattern account for some real excitement.

The field of American chamber music can stand plenty of expansion. It will receive few works any finer than this quartet. The Walden String Quartet, now in residence at the University of Illinois, played the string parts with finesse and authority, while John Kirkpatrick's handling of the piano part was the finest imaginable. May we hear this work repeated at an early date, please.

The remainder of the program was occupied with an early Haydn quartet and Beethoven's Opus 127 in E Flat.

Decision Due Monday in Suit Over Funeral

A disagreement over which of two undertakers should get the body of a 79-year-old murder victim will come up for a legal decision here Monday.

District Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday granted a temporary injunction restraining Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald from releasing the body to any other undertaker than the McGuire Funeral Home, 1820 9th st. nw.

Object of the controversy is Thomas Atkins, 1536 5th st. nw., who died Tuesday of stab wounds suffered January 29. His body is being held at the District morgue. A suspect in the scissor-slaying, Charles F. Ashton, 33, of no fixed address, is being held in the case.

Justice Letts granted the restrainer at the request of Daisy Mann, 1511 Caroline st. nw., a niece of the murdered man, who filed the action for other heirs.

Opposing her stand is the undertaking firm of Cornish & Cornish, 2121 10th st., which demanded release of the body on the basis of a will the firm claims the aged man left. The will has been filed but has not been admitted for probate.

Under its terms, the Cornish firm contends, they were allowed $500 for burial expense and were given ownership of the property they occupy.

St. Olaf Choir To Sing Monday

The famous St. Olaf Choir from Northfield, Minn., now on its thirty-seventh annual national concert tour, will sing at 8:30 p. m. Monday at Constitution Hall. Olaf F. Christiansen is the director.

Choirs of Unit B of the Cooperating Concert Choir Association will present a concert at 8 p. m. tomorrow at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. There will be singers from the host church, Hamline Methodist and Second Baptist Churches.

New Treatment Of Undulant Fever

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP).—Hospital studies extending over 10 years indicate the combined use of sulfadiazine and streptomycin is the best treatment for undulant fever, four Minneapolis physicians reported today.

Undulant fever is the nation's fourth most important communicable disease. It is transmitted to humans by contact with diseased hogs, goats, or cows or through cow's milk. It is marked by recurring chills and fever and there has been no specific treatment.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, reported recovery apparently followed use of the combined treatment in eight of nine cases.

Wife Slayer Given Term of 4 to 12 Years

A man who shot his wife to death during an argument was sentenced in District Court yesterday to serve from 4 to 12 years for manslaughter.

He is John L. Deal, 33, of 936 N st. nw., who was convicted of slaying his wife Cleo, last November.

Bernard Bottomley, 52, of 646 I st. ne., also was sentenced to from 4 to 12 years on charges of incest involving his 30-year-old daughter.

Robert J. Sowell, 19, of 1440 Rhode Island ave. nw., received a 5 to 15-year sentence for theft of $1539 in an armed robbery at the Masters Liquors Inc., Store, 714 K st. nw., last September.

Raymond Horton jr., 20, 473 I st. nw., was given from two to seven years on two charges of attempting carnal knowledge. The offenses involved two sisters, 12 and 15 years old.

In a similar case, Floyd L. Barnes, 23, District Training School, was sentenced to from two to six years for assault with intent to commit carnal knowledge.

Charged with promoting a lottery in connection with the numbers game, Ralph Higgs, 36, of 3318 Sherman av. nw. was sentenced to from nine months to two years.

W. J. Brooker Funeral to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Walter J. Brooker, 50, lifelong resident of Washington and retired Naval Gun Factory employe, will be held today at the Zion Baptist Church, 337 F st. sw., at 12:30 p. m. Interment will be in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

Mr. Brooker, who lived at 411 T st. nw., died Tuesday at Freedman's Hospital after an extended illness.

The Rev. A. J. Edwards, pastor, wil officiate at the church services with delegations of a dozen organizations to which Mr. Brooker belonged attending.

After graduating from Armstrong High School, Mr. Brooker became a messenger in the War Department. He later worked as a presser in tailor shop from 1926 to 1933 when he entered the Naval Gun Factory as a helper in the tool shop. He retired last October.

He was a member of many organizations, holding office in the following:

Charles Datcher Lodge No. 15, Masons, past master; District Grand Lodge No. 20, Odd Fellows, district grand auditor; Prince Hall Chapter No. 5, Royal Arch Masons, past grand high priest, and Eureka Elks Lodge, secretary.

He was also a member of the Grand Chapter and Past Grand Matrons' and Patrons' Council of the Grand Chapter, Eastern Star; John W. Freeman and Simon Commandaries of the Knights Templar, Datcher Chapter of the Eastern Star, the Oldest Inhabitants, Inc., and M. W. Prince Hall Grand Masonic Lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Frances P. Brooker, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Booth, of Washington.

Howe, Often in Toils of Law Over Friendship for Birds, Dies

His thousands of feathered friends are mourning the passing of bearded, 64-year-old Earl Washington Howe.

Mr. Howe, noted for many years for his daily rite of feeding bread to pigeons in downtown Washington parks, died Thursday in his sleep at his home, 1422 N st. nw. He was found by his wife, Julia, in the morning.

His ornithological pursuits often brought Mr. Howe into the toils of the law. In 1944 he was ordered by Judge Ellen K. Raedy to cease scattering his crusts in Franklin Park after his arrest for creating a public nuisance.

Two years later, Judge George D. Neilson took a more lenient view after Mr. Howe read a poem of his own composition, "Dedicated to the World," in which he described his love for the birds. Judge Neilson said:

"In this war-torn world, you can't consider bread, even stale bread, as rubbish."

It was at this hearing that Mr.

EARL W. HOWE
The pigeons will miss him

Howe described himself as poet, movie script writer, world traveler, mechanic, inventor and amateur cleaner of drinking fountains.

Mr. Howe, will be buried Monday in Washington National Cemetery following services at W. W. Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin st. nw., at 11:30 a. m.

Union Informs Krug It Can't Call Off Annex

The Pan American Union in a polite, 2000-word letter to Secretary of the Interior Krug yesterday declined to halt construction of its annex because it would be "disastrous."

Alberto Lleras, director general of the Union, said he had no authority to stop construction, traced the 20-year-effort to build the annex, and said the delay in construction that has already occurred has been "very costly."

"The architects' first estimate for the cost of the building amounted to about $600,000," Lleras said, "whereas the last estimate comes to $2,400,000, an increase that reflects the rise in the cost of materials and labor in the interval.

Cost Up $900,000 Since July

"Just to show how building construction in Washington has gone up, the governing board of the union approved an estimate of $1,500,000 for the building in July of 1947, and before a year had pased it was necessary to revise this figure up to $2,400,000, the increase being due almost entirely to the delay.

"In consequence, the governing board is determined to have the building constructed at once, not only because of our pressing need for more office space, but also in order to avoid the danger that increasing building costs . . . might in the end make it impossible to erect the structure at all."

Lleras said the 21 American governments, including the United States, would not give their consent to any step he might take to postpone any further delay or change after having told them that all requirements had been met.

Declines Conference Bid

Lleras said he did not feel competent to discuss "aesthetic appreciation of intangible and subjective values" when the Fine Arts Commission had already approved plans for the annex.

Declining Krug's suggestion for a conference to work out a compromise, Lleras said if the Secretary thought it desirable, he could raise the question at a meeting of the Governing Board of the Union through the State Department.

Krug's office last night had no comment to make on Lleras's letter and gave no indication of any future moves to halt construction of the annex in the block bounded by Constitution and Virginia aves., 18th and 19th sts. nw.

Bus Fare Boost Protested by 9 Riders of A.B.W.

By The Associated Press

A protest against proposed ABW bus fare increases of 50 and 25 per cent was filed yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission by nine bus riders.

Under a tariff schedule on file with the ICC the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Trinsit Co. proposes to lift fares 50 per cent in one zone and 25 per cent in another, the complaint said.

The increases unless canceled by the commission will take effect February 14.

Asserting that the bus company's financial position is "anything but precarious," the protest said the fare increases are unjust, unreasonable and discriminatory.

The complaint was signed by Thomas F. Kilroy of 15 East Masonic View ave., Alexandria, on behalf of himself and eight other riders who travel between Washington and Virginia.

YWCA to Entertain Indian Representative

Mrs. Hamid Ali, representative from India to the Women's Commission of the United Nations, will be the special guest of the World Fellowship Committee of tthe YWCA tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Phyllis Wheatley YWCA, 901 Rhode Island ave. nw.

All-Star Group to Hold Winter Dance Tonight

The Washington All-Slav group will hold a mid-winter dance tonight at 8:30 at Stansbury Hall, 4832 Georgia ave. nw.

Chief purpose of the organization, according to G. E. Ross, a spokesman, is to promote better relations between Americans of Slavic extraction. It is composed of five local Slavic organizations.

18 Urge Long Work Be Test Of Electrician

Eighteen witnesses told the Commissioners yesterday they favored granting masters' licenses without examination to electricians who've worked here 10 years or more.

Three opposed the plan, contained in a proposed amendment to the District electrical code. Approximately 60 persons attended the three-hour hearing at District building.

Proponents, most of whom failed the examination despite experience up to 44 years, called the examination "peculiar" . . . "strange" . . . "confusing." Approval of work for years by District inspectors is proof enough of an electrician's ability even though he can't provide technical written answers in examinations, the witnesses maintained.

Without licenses, workers would lose their livelihood because they can't afford to hire master electricians at current rates, argued Attorney James H. Biscoe, representing 14 witnesses.

Opposition came from J. I. Creager, assistant business representative for Local B-26, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, who called for even stricter examinations. Persons who can't pass the "simple" examination aren't qualified, he declared.

His stand was backed by Bernard Bellmore, Electrical Contractors' Association, and A. Herrman Wilson, representing the Institute of Electrical Contractors and Washington Building Congress.

Wilson said 10 per cent of 5586 fires here last fiscal year were attributed directly or indirectly to electrical defects, some of which could have been prevented by higher quality work.

Jack Remson, an electrical contractor, said he formerly worked as electrical inspector for the District, helped draft the present code, but still didn't pass the examination. He sometimes has to send unlicensed men to correct work done by licensed electricians, he claimed.

M. A. Lightfoot of Central Northwest Citizens Association, suggested a law to keep tenants from making their own minor repairs.

J. S. Zebley, secretary of the examining board, said up to December 24, 195 of the 642 who took master electrician's test failed.

Joint Services for Five

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—Funeral rites for the five members of a family who burned to death last Sunday morning when fire destroyed the Carolina Country Club at Raleigh, N. C., will be conducted at the Holloman-Brown home here tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Those who died in the fire, all former residents of Norfolk, were James E. Baker, sr., manager and steward for the club; Mrs. Thelma Lyndall Baker, his wife; Jean Elizabeth Baker, 16; James Edward Baker, jr., 14, and Mrs. Carrie T. Lyndall, mother of Mrs. Baker.

Mrs. Ann Mason Achelis

Mrs. Ann Mason Read Achelis, who left Washington about 1915 for a stage career in New York, died in that city yesterday. She had been severely burned in a fire there a week ago.

Born in Ashland, Va., she came to Washington about 1900, attended Jackson School and Western High School here, then studied the drama in New York where she appeared in a number of Broadway productions.

She is survived by a brother, John Mason Read of New York City. Funeral services and interment will be in Richmond, Va.

Harry Burnett

Staunton, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).— Funeral services for Harry Burnett, clerk of Augusta County Court for 49 years who died here yesterday, will be conducted tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in Trinity Church.

Burnett, 72, succeeded his father, William Burnett, as court clerk. Together the two had held the clerkship for almost a century.

The Staunton native is survived by the widow, three sons, a daughter and three sisters.

William T. Harding

Emporia, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—Funeral services for William Thomas Harding, 73, retired Emporia banker, will be held at his home here tomorrow afternoon.

Harding died of a heart attack here yesterday.

Rev. Coie to Preach

The Rev. Glenn R. Coie, pastor of Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "True Wisdom."

George W. Rue Dies; Active in Mason Affairs

George W. Rue, 69, a life-long resident of Washington, died Thursday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lennert Ekberg, of 531 Peabody st. nw., following a heart attack.

Mr. Rue

Mr. Rue was born October 21, 1878, in Southeast Southwest Washington, then known as "The Island." For many years he was engaged in the retail fuel business here, but retired in the middle 1930s, owing to ill health.

With the outbreak of World War II, however, he came out of retirement to join the firm of Mehring & Hanson Co., plumbing, heating and ventilating engineers. He was assigne dto a job at Maryland University at the time of his death.

Mr. Rue was active in local fraternal organizations, having held membership in the Odd Fellows, Owls, Knights of Pythias and Elks. More recently he had concentrated his activities in Masonic circles, with memberships in Stansbury Lodge No. 24, F.A.A.m., Eureka-Naval Chapter No. 4, Royal Arch Masons; Washington Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar and the Masonic Veterans Association.

He held the appointive office of inner guard in Almas Shrine Temple, for which he had just been selected to serve his twentieth successive term.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marion M. Rue; five children, O. Ellsworth, Mrs. G. Stewart Phillips, George W., Mrs. Ekberg and Mrs. J. Winston Blalock, all of Washington; a sister, Minnie M. Rue, also of Washington, and 10 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Lee funeral home, with the Rev. Earl Franklin Fowler, minister of Sixth Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery following Masonic rites.

William L. Browning

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 6.—Funeral services for William Lindsey Browning, 64, farm agent of Stafford and King George Counties, will be held at the Methodist Church here tomorrow at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Browning died in the hospital here yesterday of a heart attack following an operation.

A native of Steubenville, Ohio, he came to Virginia 30 years ago and had served as farm agent for Prince William and Madison Counties before coming to Stafford and King George in 1935. He was a member of the Fredericksburg Methodist Church, Stafford County Ruritan Club and had been active in community affairs.

Mr. Browning is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lizzie O. Browning; two daughters, Mrs. S. M. Newman of Falmouth and Mrs. Clayton L. Bryant of Fredericksburg; a son, W. L. Browning, jr., and a brother, L. H. Browning of Miami.

Rev. E. E. Blough

Manassas, Va., Feb. 6.—Funeral services for the Rev. E. E. Blough, 77, minister of the Manassas Church of the Brethren, were held at Cannon Branch Church today.

The Rev. Mr. Blough died at his home here Tuesday. Born in Somerset County, Pa., he came to Prince William County in 1894. He was a charter member of the Manassas Church which he helped to build and served as minister until last year. He was a member of the board of trustees of Bridgewater College.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Connor Blough, two daughters, Mrs. Mariam Simpson of New Windsor, Md., and Mrs. Anna Williams of Arlington, and a son, Prof. Leslie Blough of Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio.

J. L. Sprague, Ex-Policeman, Is Found Dead

The body of John L. Sprague, 39, Indian Head, Md., tavern keeper and a former Metropolitan police detective sergeant, was found in his automobile parked in the 1200 block of Good Hope rd. se., early yesterday.

Death was believed due to natural causes, but an autopsy is being performed.

Mr. Sprague

Mr. Sprague, a candidate for Charles County sheriff when he was 25 and later a deputy sheriff, was named a private on the police force here in 1937. He resigned as a detective sergeant seven years later and began operation of the Club Maryland at Indian Head.

He left there Thursday morning on a business trip to Washington, friends said.

He is survived by his wife, Matilda, and two sons, John jr., 8, and Michael, 7.

Mrs. E. B. Weadon

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Weadon, 45, wife of Dr. Mason Weadon, died yesterday at her home, 9311 Montgomery ave., North Chevy Chase, Md., after an illness of six months.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda.

A native of Philadelphia, Mrs. Weadon came to Washington as a young girl and was educated in District schools. For a number of years she was secretary to J. Bond Smith, Washington attorney. She was married to Dr. Weadon, District veterinarian, in 1928. Mrs. Weadon was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Case Circle.

In addition to her husband she is survived by three children, Marilyn Elizabeth, Mason Wells and Timothy Blair, all at home; her mother, Mrs. Ella V. Baily, of 2621 17th st. ne., and a brother, Ivan W. Baily of Leonardtown, Md.

McWilliams Mass Will Be Sung Monday

Solemn requiem mass will be sung Monday at 9 a. m. in St. Francis de Sales Church, Rhode Island ave. and 20th st. ne., for Mrs. Maude Catharine Burch McWilliams, 91, who died Thursday, after a long illness, at her home, 1300 Clifton st. nw.

Mrs. McWilliams was a descendant of one of the earliest families to settle in St. Marys County, Md., where she was born and educated. The widow of Joseph Clinton McWilliams, farmer, she had been a Washington resident more than 50 years.

Five of her 13 children survive. They are Walter McWilliams, Mrs. Louise McWilliams Hannah, Mrs. Florance McWilliams Butler, Miss Alma McWilliams, all of Washington, and Mrs. Mae Spelehouse, of Fort Meade, Fla. Also surviving are three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Miss E. D. McCauley

Funeral services for Miss Emma D. McCauley, 74, retired Government employe, will be held Monday at 10 a. m. at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Miss McCauley died at her home, 751 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, Thursday after a long illness. Born in Frankfort, Ky., she had lived in this area since 1890. In 1892 she joined the Government Printing Office as a clerk and retired 43 years later as a supervisor.

Since 1919 Miss McCauley had lived in Silver Spring. She was a lifetime member of the International Bookbinders Association and a charter member of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, to which she donated the church bells.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Wahlstrom of 712 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring, and a brother, George McCauley of 1006 Taylor st. ne.

On the Party Front

Egyptian Envoy, Wife Say Farewell at Party

By Marie McNair

"MY HEART IS CRYING" said Mme. Hassan, wife of the retiring Egyptian Ambassador, as friends clustered about her yesterday to say goodby at a farewell party at the embassy.

The resignation of Mahmoud Hassan came with a suddenness that few, but his closest friends could understand. But it's a known fact that the Ambassador and Mme. Hassan here for 10 years, have for the last year or more wanted to take their young daughter home to finish her education, to learn more about their own country. Amr Hassan, their son, now a student at Staunton Military Academy, will, however, remain here and expects to enter Princeton when his studies at Staunton are through.

It would be difficult to find a more genuinely loved couple than the Ambassador and Mme. Hassan. And if they're sad about leaving, the friends they leave behind are sadder.

Yesterday Mme. Hassan looked like a little girl in a fine black and white pin stripe taffeta gown, made with pockets in the long skirt, and cuffs and collar trimmed in cyclamen silk. A cluster of violets was tucked at her waist.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Carlos Martins, dean of the corps, and Mme. Martins, are usually on their way to dinner when they go to afternoon parties these days, for they too are leaving in April. Mme. Martins' gown was of heavy black faille, the swirling skirt apliqued in velvet motifs and embroidered in jet.

Almost all of the European diplomats were there to wish the Hassans God-speed before they sail the middle of the week for Europe.

The Belgian Ambassador, Baron Robert Silvercruys, was a caller, so too were the Norwegian Ambassador, and Mme. de Morgenstierne who wore a becoming bonnet type hat of black satin ribbon loops and a platinum fox scarf over her shoulder.

The Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani lingered for awhile, and others there were the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt, whose brimless hat was circled with green and ivory ostrich tips; the Turkish Ambassador, Huseyin Ragip Baydur, soon on his way; the Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic.

Geiux Carver

I saw Mme. Winiewicz, wife of the Polish Ambassador, sampling the buffet where a whole roasted lamb stuffed with rice, was being carved by Geiux, without whom no party could be a success. Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, in slim black, a green kerchief held to her head by a chain of carved gold and jade was sitting on the sidelines with Mme. Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister, and her daughter, Margret, the one in black and cerise striped silk, the other in purple with matching hand band.

The Romanian Minister and Mme. Ralea were there and I saw the Greek Ambassador, Vassili Dendramis, and not far away, Mme. Dendramis, chic in shiny black satin and a whirl of smoke gray aigrettes for a hat.

Mme. Bilmanis, wife of the Latvian Minister, had deserted an ill husband for a few minutes to come in and say goodbye. The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann seemed to be having a pleasant time and then—to go on—there were the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. Le Gallais, the Minister of South Africa, Harry Andrews, and Mrs. Andrews in her favorite black; the Syrian Minister and Mme. El-Khouri.

The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Norman Armour were in a congenial group over drinks, and Mrs. Wade Haislip chatted with Mr. and Mrs. William Culbertson and Mrs. Fred Britten.

Said "how-de-do" to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross on their way out; met handsome Mrs. John Ringling with Mrs. Claude Pepper, the pair just back from New York; had a chat with Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Ray Muir of the State Department, and Mrs. Muir; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, and Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris.

More? Well—Mrs. Harry Wardman, Miss Beatrice Moore, pretty in brown satin and a purple toque; Marriner Eccles, Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson dressed for a dinner party; Mme. Chautemps, wearin a beautiful white hat covered with filmy black lace; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Arthur Vennell topping her burgundy frock with winter white maribou hat; Edward Van Devanter, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Jomes Souby, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Draper, Bill Jenkins, Richard Sanger and Carlton Savage, all of the State Department.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a number of books for which I have no room. I would like to store them away. Please tell me the best way to store them. R. R.

Place the books in boxes which can be tightly closed. Cardboard boxes obtainable at the grocery stores are very good if you get one which has the cover intact. Now, place the books in the box and dust with pyrethium powder to kill any silver fish which might feed on the starch in the covers. Choice books should be wrapped individually in tissue paper. Tuck newspapers around the books at the top of the box, close lid and tie. Place boxes in attic or above-ground room which is dry and well ventilated to prevent mildew.

Is there any organization in the District that could make use of used dress patterns? I have several basic dress and blouse patterns in size 12 that I no longer need. J. M.

A check with Red Cross, Young Women's Christian Association and Salvation Army fails to discover an organization who would have use for used patterns. Perhaps some of our readers know of someone who can put these patterns to use?

Will you give me the recipe for banana pudding? M. F. P.

A recipe for banana pudding follows:

⅛ teaspoon salt
4 or 5 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sweet crackers or cookies
Bananas

Heat the milk, sugar and salt in a double boiler. Beat the egg yolks slightly. Slowly add some of the heated milk. Pour back into the double boiler and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once from the fire, place the pan in a bowl of cold water and stir the custard occasionally as it cools. Add the vanilla. Grease a large baking dish, put in the bottom a layer of sweet crackers and slice over them a layer of banana. Pour over this some of the custard and fill the dish about three quarters full with these layers. Make a meringue of the whites of eggs and 1 tablespoon sugar to each egg. Spread over pudding and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven (325 degrees) until brown. Chill thoroughly before serving.

On a recent trip to New York City we had cheese cake. Unlike the usual solid white mass, it was yellow, fluffy and very, very delicious. Do you have a recipe similar to this? It is topped with fresh glazed strawberries also. M. S.

Here is a recipe which should turn out such a cheese cake as you describe. This differs from the cheese cake recipe recently printed in this column in these respects: The eggs are separated before beating. This will enable you to incorporate more air into the eggs, thus resuting in a fluffier product. Using whipped cream will also add fluffiness. Also, cream cheese and powdered sugar are used, which should make the cake smoother in texture.

CHEESE CAKE CRUST

¼ cup melted butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cloves

Roll zwieback into fine crumbs; blend with butter or margarine. Mix together sugar and spices. Combine with zwieback mixture. Reserve one-half cup crumb mixture for topping; press remainder firmly on bottom and sides of 9-inch spring form pan.

FILLING

1 pound cream cheese
½ cup milk
¾ cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
½ cup whipping cream
4 eggs whites

Mash cheese, gradually add milk and beat until light and fluffy. Sift together sugar, flour and salt, mix with cheese. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; add with lemon juice and rind. Fold in whipped cream and mix thoroughly by using folding motion. Beat egg whites stiff, but not dry, and fold in. Pour into crumb-lined pan, sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees F., for 1½ hours. Turn off oven and cool in oven.

If you wish to use this topped with strawberries, I would suggest you leave the spices out of the crust.

I've called rug cleaners, upholsterers and others for someone to come to the house and repair a hole in a large rug. Could you tell me where to call? Most of those I've tried either don't fix rugs or won't come out. We are renting a furnished house and it is imperative we have this fixed expertly. A READER.

The sort of repair job you wish cannot be done as satisfactorily in the home as it can be done in the workrooms of the shop doing the repair work. Special equipment which is needed for such work is too large to move. Look under "Rug Cleaning-Repairing" in the yellow pages of the telephone directory for a firm which will call for your rug, repair it and return it. One such establishment can be reached by calling Randolph 8000, Extension 61.

Tour to Homes And Embassies To Be April 10

With a view toward making the seventh annual House and Embassy Tour spring's number one attraction in Washington this year, committee heads are making an early start on plans for the event. The tour, sponsored by the board of managers of the Washington Home for Incurables of which Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling is president, will be held April 10.

The Home for Incurables, located on Upton st. off Wisconsin ave., is an endowed institution, but it is necessary to give this one benefit a year to supplement the endowment for the maintenance of the Home. Through the medium of the House and Embassy tour, the general public is annually given an opportunity to become acquainted with this worthy cause and contribute to its support as well as to avail themselves of the chance to see some of the Capital's finest showplaces along Embassy Row.

Mrs. Paul Magnuson, wife of the newly appointed medical director of the Veterans' Administration, was unanimously chosen general chairman of the House and Embassy Tour committee. Mrs. Magnuson has been actively interested in the work of the Home for Incurables ever since she has been in Washington.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Patricia Montee of Bethesda, Md., and Wilbur Sartwell of Taller Downs Farm, Md., were married yesterday at St. John's Church in Forest Glen, Md., the Rev. Timothy Larkin officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lotta Agnes Montee and of Herbert Montee of California who gave her in marriage. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Jean Menefee Sartwell.

Mrs. Sartwell's wedding dress was a period gown of white velvet with which she wore a veil of illusion and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Russell Ladd Lowe, in turquoise velvet, was matron of honor and Miss Patricia White Blizzard, similarly costumed, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Mrs. John Coleman Ridgeway and Mrs. Joseph Scopin, wore pale pink velvet. All carried roses.

Edward Richards Sartwell was best man and the ushers were Joseph Patrick Sartwell, Herbert Mansfield Montee and Herbert Nourse Vincon.

A reception was held at Hotel 2400. The couple will reside in Kensington, Md.

McLeod—Brophy

At St. Matthew's Cathedral at 6:30 last evening Miss Loretta Margaret Brophy and John Peck McLeod, both of Washington, were married. Mrs. McLeod is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Brophy of Duluth, Minn., and her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McLeod of Knoxville, Tenn.

The Rev. John S. Spence officiated and Mr. Brophy gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white satin wedding dress, a finger-tip veil and carried a lace handkerchief made from her mother's wedding dress. Her flowers were calla lilies and white orchids.

Miss Mary Lou Frise was maid of honor wearing blue taffeta with pale blue net hat and gloves. She carried tea roses. Miss Julie Guinane, cousin of the bride, of Falls Church, Va., was flower girl. She wore pink taffeta and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

Richard Dove was best man and Bob Ritchie and Jack Lowe were ushers.

A reception was held at Hotel 2400 after which the newlyweds left for Williamsburg, Va.

The bride attended George Washington University. Mr. McLeod, who served four years as a Naval Reserve officer, attended University of Tennessee and Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

Wedding Announcements

Beginning Sunday, February 8, 1948, wedding announcements for publication in these columns must be received at The Washington Post not later than one week after the date of the ceremony.

One on the Aisle—

'Captain's' Sure Fire

Supercolossal—And Off the Cob

By Richard L. Coe

"CAPTAIN FROM CASTILE," at the Palace, is one of those pictures Hollywood does so well—hordes of people, magnificent, colorful scenery, thousands of muted violins sobbing behind the loudest trumpets this side of Judgment Day, all covering a fatuous body of cliches.

It is the sort of picture which, while it costs great sums to make, is a sound investment for the producers, for people always have paid to see this sort of thing and always will. It is not the sort of film that will divert the choosy, but it is, by its immensity and potential appeal, a perfect example of Hollywood's power.

It stems from a best-seller by Samuel Shellabarger and tells of a young Spaniard who joins Cortez in his conquest of Montezuma's Mexico. I have not read the book, but it seems to follow the pattern of the spate of historical stories with which our people have been comforting themselves in a world which they sense, but dare not admit, is imperfect.

For "Captain from Castile" tells history in terms of our present morality. It suggests, most pointedly, parallels between today's intolerance (Nazi intolerance, not American intolerance—that would be too much) and the Spanish Inquisition. Its heroic characters are heroes in the sense of the individual, its villains are made complete villains in our eyes because they attack the individual. Our notions of morality are carefully observed through the presence of a priest who might easily have a contemporary parish.

Further, it follows the pattern which has, I'm convinced, made such books and films so incredibly popular. It gives one the comforting idea that, great as our present imperfections may be, we are far more civilized and more to be admired than the generations which came before us. This ability to make its audiences feel superior to what they are watching is the kernel of the historical films' success.

"CAPTAIN FROM CASTILE," a 20th Century Fox release produced by Lamar Trotti, directed by Henry King, screenplay by Lamar Trotti from the novel by Samuel Shellabarger. At the Palace.

Tyrone Power Stars

By the very nature of its story—O, brave, new world—it allows for an interesting remark by one of the players, the gist of which is that Europe must stew in its own juice, that here we have found a new home which shall be a citadel. That, at least, is the idea, perfectly logical for the character to have said, but how about its applicability in present-day terms? Unimportant, but somehow revealing.

Yes, "Captain from Castile" is Hollywood at its most typical. Millions throughout the world will be fascinated by its technical mastery and its ability to translate the past in terms of what would seem to be the present. Its period detail is probably the result of endless research. Its music and lines are boastful and vainglorious in the loudest sense. To millions around the world it will reflect either consciously or unconsciously, a culture that both fascinates and confuses them.

Tyrone Power, looking, as always, like a bright new penny, has the title role, which he plays with boyish charm and sturdy conviction. Jean Peters, as a lowly Spaniard who follows him to the New World, is pretty and not called on for heavy acting demands. These are left in the capable hands of Cesar Romero, as Cortez; Lee J. Cobb, as Power's best friend; Thomas Gomez, as the understanding priest; John Sutton, as the inquisitorial villain, and Alan Mowbray, as what passes for comic relief.

The fine Technicolor photography is by Charles Clarke and Arthur Arling, who deserve credit, with Director Henry King and Producer-Writer Lamar Trotti, for having done exactly what they set out to do.

BERT LAHR'S "Burlesque" winds up a bang-up week tonight at the National, and before it gets away we'd like to say a word about pert Irene Allarie . . . U. S. Condemns Gicheu's Trial By Bulgaria

By The Associated Press

The State Department denounced yesterday the way Bulgaria is trying Dimiter Gichev, former Agrarian Party leader, for his life.

Press Officer Michael McDermott said events leading up to the trial resemble those in the case of Agrarian Nikola Petkov, who was put to death last fall.

These events suggest strongly, McDermott said, that the Communist-controlled regime at Sofia intends "again to disregard its treaty obligations with respect to securing to its citizens the most basic human rights."

In the case of Petkov, the United States protested officially and sought by every possible means to save him from execution.

It was indicated McDermott's statement was a preliminary denunciation and that more formal action will follow.

Gichev, as was Petkov, has been accused of plotting against the Bulgarian government.

Nazi General Hangs Self In Paris Cell

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP).—Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, 69, the iron-handed German administrator of occupied France, hanged himself today in a Paris prison cell to avoid trial on war crimes charges.

Guards of Cherche-Midi prison found Stuelpnagel swinging in his cell before dawn. He had fashioned a noose from strips of bedding and fastened it to a bar of the window. He was still alive when taken down, but died less than an hour later.

From the same prison scores of hostages were sent to their deaths during his administration as Nazi governor general of France.

Stuelpnagel's death came a day after another German general, Johannes Blaskowitz, killed himself in a jump from a prison catwalk in Nuernberg, Germany.

Other German suicides included Hermann Goering, Henrich Himmler, Robert Ley, Karl Westphal and Dr. Leonard Conti. Adolf Hitler and Paul Joseph Goebbels also reported to have taken their own lives.

Stuelpnagel was arrested on August 5, 1945.

He took over in France in November, 1940. Soon after there commenced the series of retaliation shootings of hostages, usually 50 for every German soldier killed by the Frence resistance.

Medical Report

Oleo Wins Laurels in Diet Study

Chicago, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Butter and margarine fortified with vitamin A have equal nutritional value, a survey in the journal of the American Medical association indicated today.

The two-year survey was made by Dr. Anton J. Carlson, dean of American physiologists and two associates.

A group of 160 children, from 3 to 16 years, who were orphans or children from broken homes, was given margarine.

Another group of 107 children of about the same age in another institution 10 miles away was given butter.

"The diet was carefully supervised so 25 to 30 per cent of the total calories were supplied by fat," the experimenters said.

"Growth of the group fed margarine was comparable to that of the children fed butter in relation to standard height and weight values," the doctors reported.

"The margarine group experienced a high degree of good health during the study, and in comparing their health to that of the butter group it appears to have been much higher," the investigators said.

The doctors emphasized they were not making claims the margarine group was healthier because their diet contanned margarine and noted that "other variables are more likely to account for their better health."

British Loan Balance Drops to $100,000,000

Britain has taken out all but $100,000,000 of the $3,750,000,000 loan granted it by the United States in July, 1946.

The Treasury yesterday announced another 100-million-dollar withdrawal by the British, making total withdrawals $3,650,000,000.

At the present rate of use, Britain will have wiped out the rest of the loan within another month.

Final Settlement Near In Insull Utilities Crash

Chicago, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—Sixteen years of legal wrangling over one of the major casualties of the economic crash of the early 30's neared an end in Federal Court yesterday.

Judges approved settlements which gave creditors of the utilities empire headed by the late Samuel Insull $1 for every $42 demanded.

Weatherman Errs on Snow But Will Try Again Tonight

The Weatherman struck out again yesterday when he aimed for an all-day snow and was dished up fair weather right down the middle.

With his February batting average at .500—three hits, three misses—he predicted increasing cloudiness and not too cold for today, followed by rain or snow tonight or tomorrow. This morning's temperature low, he said, would be about 20 degrees.

A half-inch of snow did sift down before daybreak yesterday, but clearing skies robbed the Weatherman of his forecast that the city was in for a heavy, all-day snowfall. The thermometer rose to 38 degrees at 4:14 p. m. after a low of 25 at 3:40 a. m.

Yesterday's snow that didn't pile up here, said the Weatherman, covered too wide an area (from Charlottesville, Va., to Oklahoma City, about 1200 miles), moved too fast, and swept on out to sea. Tonight or tomorrow morning's rain or snow, he said, is coming from the southwest.

Yesterday's snow, on already icy pavements, was blamed for injury to a 39-year-old blind man who fell down a ramp at a building at 1008 24th st. nw. The victim, Douglas S. Richardson, of 1215 Gallatin st. nw., suffered possible fracture of the left elbow in the 4-foot fall.

Taken to Emergency Hospital, he told physicians he wandered off the sidewalk when the snow cushioned taps of his cane. Richardson said he lost his ability to distinguish other than shadow and light when he was struck by a tomato can when he was 10 years old.

Traffic accidents were reported numerous but generally minor yesterday, with 32 such mishaps reported to the Accident Investigation Unit between midnight and 6 p. m. The Washington Channel to Maine ave. wharves was still open yesterday, but Georgetown Channel above Railroad Bridge was ice clogged.

Cold weather, with temperatures ranging from freezing to subzero levels, enveloped the northern half of the country. In some parts of the South—Florida, Louisiana and Texas—the mercury reached a balmy 80 degrees. Parts of California which had been sorepressed for moisture received a second day of rain or snow, or both.

Argentina To Rush Fleet To Antarctica

Buenos Aires, Feb. 6 (U.P.).—The navy announced today an important task force will sail next week for Antarctica, in a race for certain South Pole areas with Britain.

The force of cruisers, destroyers, auxiliary ships and airplanes will sail February 12 for Decemtion Island. It will be the first time that Argentina has sent a fleet to the Antarctic areas over which she claims sovereignty.

The London Times reported that HMS Snipe, carrying Sir Miles Clifford, governor of the Falkland Islands, arrived Wednesday at Deception.

This island, about 500 miles southeast of Cape Horn, is claimed by both Britain and Argentina.

In Santiago, Chile, authoritative sources reported President Gabriel Gonzales Videla would go to Graham Land, to take possession personally of territories claimed by both Chile and Britain.

Dr. Neff to Speak Here

Dr. J. Luther Neff, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, Annapolis, Md., and onetime pastor of Wesley Church here, will speak tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Petworth Methodist Church, Grant Circle and New Hampshire ave. nw.

Truman Ladies Use Auto After Derailment

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Harry S. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman headed for New Orleans tonight after a stopover here.

Saturday they will christen the towboat "Harry S. Truman."

The Trumans were among other passengers inconvenienced last night by derailment of the locomotive of a passenger train ahead of their train.

Mrs. Truman and her daughter were taken to Biloxi by automobile.

The locomotive ahead of theirs almost ran into an open draw bridge in the dense fog.

New Orleans is in the second day of its Mardi Gras.

Talk on Child Problems

Behavior problems of the normal child will be explained by Dr. Mabel Ross, head of the Prince Georges County mental hygiene clinic, Monday at 8:30 p. m. at Kaywood Gardens Nursery School, 29th and Webster sts., Mount Rainier, Md.

Fire Officers Elected

Sam Randall has been named president and E. E. Worth, sr., chief of the Forestville, Md., Volunteer Fire Department. Other new officers are James A. Randall, John W. Randall, Henry De Vaughn, E. E. Worth, jr., H. P. Griffith, jr., Ralph Gray, Albert Windsor and David E. Randall, jr.

DeValera Fails Of Majority in Irish Election

Dublin (Saturday) Feb. 7 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's majority in the Eire parliament was wiped out today.

Complete returns from the general election showed De Valera's fianna fail party elected only 66 deputies. Opposition groups elected 76 in Wednesday's voting.

However, government party leaders were confident De Valera would draw enough independent deputies' votes to continue the regime he has headed for 16 years.

Elections of five remaining members of the 147-seat dail in Carlow Kilkenney was put off until Tuesday by death of a nominee.

Complete returns for Wednesday were:

Fianna Fail, 66; Fine Gael, 29; Labor, 14; Clann na Poblagnta, 10; Clann No Talmman, 7; National Labor, 4; Independent, 12.

The new Dail convenes February 18 to elect the Prime Minister.

Gen. Richard Mulcahy, leader of the chief opposition party, Fine Gael, was elected in Tipperary South. De Valera was reelected from County Clare.

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S TEN BEST!"

Va. Assembly Introduces Bills to Hike Members' Pay

Richmond, Va., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Virginia General Assembly, principally stymied on Governor Tuck's tax program, took time today to propose cost of living raises for its future membership.

Identical bills were introduced in House and Senate to give the members $6 a day raises, from $12 to $18, and boost pay of the presiding officers from $15 to $21 a day. Under constitutional requirements, the raises cannot be made effective before the session of 1952.

The first of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council's school bills was introduced today, a measure to set up a State-supported sick leave program for teachers. Major bill of the VALC school recommendations, one revamping the State Education Department, is expected to be put in early next week, said Delegate E. O. McCue, jr., of Charlottesville.

Sick Leave Favored

The sick leave bill would provide for five days' leave the first school year of operation and permit a cumulative maximum of 20 days on which a teacher could be absent without pay loss for illness, quarantine or pregnancy after the fourth month.

Other new legislation offered the Assemblymen before they headed for the once-a-session meeting at Williamsburg tomorrow included a bill by Senators Charles T. Moses, of Appomattox, and others, to change the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind, at Staunton, into a school for the deaf only after July 1. It provides that the Virginia Commission for the Blind select another site for a school for the blind.

The Senate finance committee reported out with amendments the Battle bill raising unemployment compensation benefits from a maximum of $14 a week to $20.

The Governor's 14-million-dollar year taxation program ran into vigorous opposition in the House of Delegates today and administration leaders decided to delay voting till Monday. Chief opposition was to proposed increases in income and merchants license taxes.

Floor Leader E. Blackburn Moore moved, after a lunch recess, that the tax bills which had been made a special and continuing order for today be postponed till Monday at 12:30 p. m. The continuation was termed a victory for the Norfolk delegation which headed the opposition.

Moore told the delegates that the $13,833,255 revenue contemplated from the tax program was "vitally needed" to finance State services demanded by the people. The Governor's program, he added, makes no change in the State's policy of taxation by merely raising rates on existing sources.

The bill offered would increase individual income taxes from 1½ to 2 per cent on the first $3000 of income, from 2½ to 3 per cent on the next $2000, and from 3 to 5 per cent on income above $5000; increase corporate income taxes from 3 to 5 per cent; increase merchants' license taxes from 13 to 20 cents per $100; increase recordation taxes from 12 to 15 cents per $100, and increase beer taxes from 1½ to 2 cents per bottle over seven ounces and from $2.75 to $3.10 per barrel.

Sweitzer in Baltimore On Embezzling Charge

Baltimore, Feb. 6 (AP).—Everett W. Sweitzer, 38, former branch manager for a truck manufacturing concern, was returned here from Philadelphia today to face a charge he embezzled $27,574 from the firm.

Sweitzer was arrested in Philadelphia after an indictment was returned here charging that he took the funds over a 19-month period.

Keneipp Flooded With Pleas For Low-Number Auto Plates

George E. Keneipp, District Traffic Director, is back in the numbers business.

But unlike other numbers outfits, his pays off only in headaches.

Already more than 20,00 persons have poured into his office, requesting low or lucky-numbered auto license plates for the license year beginning April 1.

Sad to say, that makes many more requests than the Traffic Director and his harried staff can accommodate.

Priority will go to the Commissioners. Keneipp will confer with them early next week to decide who gets numbers 1 to 1000. The next 9000 numbers are reserved for high officials and others serving the Government, Keneipp said last night.

Definite Limitations

Just plain John Q. Citizen can expect his request to be honored only so far as limits of staff, time and regulations permit, warned Keneipp.

The Commissioners have forbidden issuance of numbers out of sequence, except for the first 10,000.

New tags, which may be used March 1 and must be used April 1, will be 6-by-13 inches, smaller than the current tag and so a saving on hard-to-get steel.

A new numbering system will use number and letter prefixes.

After the first 10,000 numbers have been assigned, a series of 1000 to 9999, with a number prefix, 1 to 9, will be issued, for passenger cars. The next passenger series will start at 1 with a letter prefix A, then E, and if demand still continues, F, J., etc.

"C" for Commercial

Vehicles other than passenger cars will start at 1 and continue through 9999, with a special letter prefix—C for commercial, D for dealers, B for buses G, for District government, H for hack, L for livery (including sightseeing vehicles), R for rental, DPL for diplomatic, M for motorcycle.

When the letter-number sequence runs out, a number-letter-number sequence will be started, i. e., 1H1.

All of which gives the number-picking license applicants more low numbers to pick from. But it doesn't give Keneipp more employes to take time out to satisfy requests, he reports with a sight.

Anyway, the new system is designed to facilitate identification by the public and police. The traffic director's office will start mailing applications next week, and the public is urged by Keneipp to respond promptly. Keneipp's office will mail the license tags back.

New D. C. auto tags

With the filled-out application, car owners also must send payment of the personal property tax at the rate of $2 per $100 of valuation, the $1 inspection fee, and price of the plates which is $5 for vehicles weighing up to 3500 pounds, $8 for 3501-4500, and $12 for vehicles over 4500 pounds. The application also must be accompanied by the vehicle registration card.

Theft of Coal Stove Brings 10-Day Sentence

For stealing a coal-burning stove valued at $24 from a construction job Tuesday night at Hampton and Wilson lanes, Bethesda, John E. Driver, 48, of Brookmont, Md., yesterday was sentenced to serve 10 days in the Rockville jail.

When he pleaded guilty to the theft, the defendant said he stole it because of inability to get oil for his oil heater.

Widow to Get Pension After 30-Year Wait

Huntington, W. Va., Feb 6 (AP). Mrs. Laura Alice Moore Sears, 86-year-old widow of a Union Army drummer boy, today started drawing the pension she has been wating for more than 30 years.

The first check was $194.67, retroactive tothe filing of a formal claim last August after new evidence cleared her first husband of being a deserter. She'll get $48 monthly.

The former drummer boy of the Twenty-fourth Ohio Infantry, William T. Moore, died in 1918 at 76. He had become a full-fledged soldier when he walked off his guard post and joined the Navy.

Children Found Helpful In Forest Fire Control

Laurel, Md., Feb. 6 (AP).—School children in southern Maryland are good missionaries in spreading forest fire control advice.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham said today the work of children in Charles, St. Mary's and Colvert counties, helped greatly in preventing forest fires last year.

The results of the efforts of the children and forest workers were discussed today at the final session of a two-day meeting of foresters here.

Plans were laid for the spring fire fighting season, Buckingham said.

Will Carries Warning On Attempt to Break It

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 6.—An estate valued at $80,000 was left by M. H. Dickinson, 80, former member of the House of Delegates who died January 12. The will provides that if any of the beneficiaries "are not satisfied and make an attempt to overthrow" the will they shall receive only $10 and the rest of their share shall be returned to the estate.

Postlude

Ballet's Offering Pleases

By Paul Hume

A Stravinsky score with brilliant Balanchine choreography, new to Washington, Danilova in "Swan Lake," and a sexy "Scheherezade" for dessert, wound up our three-day picnic with Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

In "Danses Concertantes" George Balanchine has contrived some of the wittiest satire in ballet history. To see young Mary Ellen Moylan do a perfect Swan Queen dive, and then sort of lurch was hilariously funny, though the audience seemed to think the work was an occasion for long faces.

Rhythmically Complex

The dancing is rhythmically complex as is the music, but it is a complexity similar in spirit to the Italian commedia dell'arte, with a subtlety found only in greatness. Miss Moylan was joined by Frederic Franklin in the finest part we have yet seen him dance. His naturally vigorous style is here channeled so that it emerges in exciting ways.

Costumes by Eugene Berman aid the total design immensely, but it is the music and the design of the dance which make "Danses Concertantes" a wonderful contribution to modern ballet.

The evening opened with a too placid "Swan Lake." Memories of the perfect work of Ballet Theater in this old favorite would not permit our enjoyment to extend beyond appreciation for Alexandra Danilova and Leon Danielian, whose variation was masterful.

Danielian Excels

It was Danielian also who created much of the excitement of Scheherezade. With Nathalie Krassovska, who withheld no tiny ounce of passion from her unbridled burning for the favorite slave, Danielian showed himself master of still another style. His open lust was provocation enough to outrage any husband, even one with hundreds of wives. And his final leap, as death stabbed his lithe frame, was a marvel. (It was at this point that the audience, having declined to honor Balanchine's wit with laughter, burst into a misplaced snicker.)

The orchestra played the Tschaikowsky score with poetic beauty under Paul Strauss, and managed the intricacies of Stravinsky's work with competence. Now that the season is over, wouldn't it be wonderful if we got some kind of fund under way for an appropriate auditorium before the next ballet company arrives?

Trailer Camp Hearing

A hearing, scheduled for yesterday, on charges that 14 persons are living at the Hillside Trailer Camp, 6200 Marlboro pike, in violation of the Prince Georges County Health ordinance, was postponed until next Friday in Marlboro Police Court.

How to turn your spare time into PROFIT

This program offers expert training . . . with pay . . . in many subjects useful toward getting ahead in civil life

The New Civilian Naval Reserve offers FUN, TOO, as you will learn

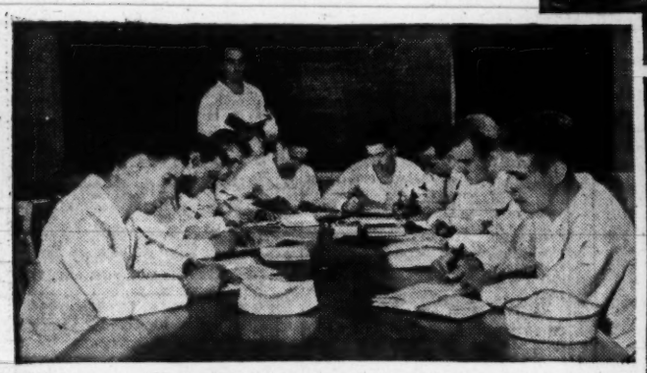
Here, in a nutshell, is what this new program offers to young men who want to get ahead in civilian life. You get free expert training and you are paid while learning. What's more, you can give as much or as little time as you wish, and have fun, too, and you'll be shipmates with a great bunch of men. You gain—and in return, you help keep our Navy on top.

For both Veterans and Non-Veterans

Veterans are eligible for their former ratings and can draw the basic pay for every hour of training. Non-Veterans are welcome, too, and have every chance for advancement.

Aviation and Cruises, too

Tours of duty at Naval Air Stations . . . and practice cruises on modern Naval vessels—battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers, even submarines—for members of the Organized Reserve who qualify.



Group Instruction is provided in many subjects and is taught by experts. You can get skilled training that will be helpful toward advancement in civilian occupations.

Photography, Electronics, Welding. These are only a few of the subjects in which you can get training

The new Naval Reserve plan offers valuable training—with pay—in literally dozens of subjects that will help a young man better his earning power in civilian life. The plan is flexible, too, in that you can give as much or as little time as your circumstances permit. You'll find it fun, too, and full of variety and interest, as well as profitable in terms of the pay offered. Even a beginner in the Organized Naval Reserve can get $2.50 for a two-hour training period . . . higher ratings, of course, get more. Veterans and Non-Veterans are invited to join. Men who have served before get their former grades. All have opportunity to advance.

Check the advantages of the new kind of program

- ✓ Give the amount of time you wish.
- ✓ Free, expert training for many trades, professions.
- ✓ You decide how long you serve. Resign any time!
- ✓ Get paid for meeting or duty hours in Organized Reserve.
- ✓ Chance for promotions...may qualify as officers.
- ✓ Cruises in home or foreign waters for those qualifying.

Here's how you can get the full story—There's a useful new booklet called "Come Aboard" that is full of facts about this program. Ask for it at any Navy Recruiting Station or Naval Reserve activity.

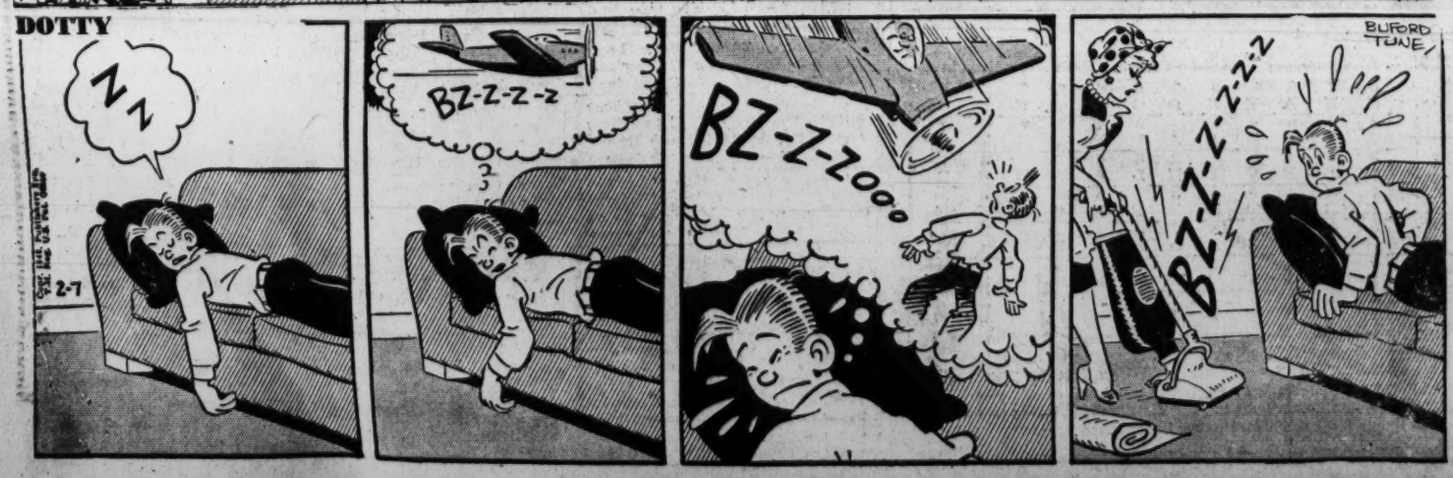
DOTTY



THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Can You Lend a Guy 30 Billion Until Payday?

First under the wire with an explanation covering those billion seconds is Rear Admiral Ormond L. Cox of 107 Grafton st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Admiral Cox explains that in many countries (England, for example) a billion is written with a dozen ciphers instead of nine, and corresponds, therefore, to what we know as a trillion.

This changes the problem from 1,000,000,000 seconds to 000,000,000,000 seconds, and counts for all but a couple of thousands years of the discrepancy.

As Lieut. Frank L. Shutt, jr., of 73 Galveston st. sw. points out, this would change our answer of 31.6 years to 31,687 years if a Britisher were doing the figuring.

And Ralph Y. DeWolfe of 216 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, Md., verifies these figures—and also fails to understand where that reference book got 34,687 years, even taking into account that thousandsfold difference in terminology.

But probably the most graphic response comes from Ignax Lichtig of 4613 15th st. nw., who recently left the Government after serving as an economist for several years.

District Liner Lichtig's figures correspond to all the others, but he comes by his knowledge of billions and trillions through bitter experience.

He was a law student in Hamburg when Germany went through her terrible inflation in 1923.

Even the poor carried millions in cash in their pockets because such a nominal expenditure as the payment of a streetcar fare entailed the handling of 30 billion marks.

Eventually, the German government stabilized its currency by exchanging the old marks for newly created reichsmarks.

The exchange ratio was one reichsmark for one trillion of the old marks.

We may have some inflation troubles, but thank goodness they come in a smaller size.

DISCORS CONCORDIA

The other day we ran a picture of two sets of twins who had been graduated with honors from George Washington High School, in Alexandria, Va.

The caption over the picture read: Twins, Cum Laude.

G. David Bollinger of 4102 S. 32d rd., Fairlington, Va., takes a wee bit of license with the Latin pronunciation to pun:

"The fellow who wrote that caption sure knew what he was talking about. We have twin girls, 8 weeks old, and have found that twins certainly do "come loud."

LIFE-IS-LIKE-THAT DEPT.

One of Washington's better-known political sages did some reminiscing and philosophizing the other day. He said:

"During the many years Nicholas Murray Butler headed Columbia University, he ran for President about as hard as any man ever did.

"He almost made it in 1920, when he was New York's favorite son. But Harding got the nomination and went on to victory, and Dr. Butler never did realize his biggest ambition.

"Wouldn't it be strange if Dr. Butler's successor at Columbia, Dwight Eisenhower, were to win the Presidency by using the opposite technique—NOT running for it?"

MISCELLANY

Local Montanans are trying to develop the Montana State Society. Arnold A. Rivin of 3307 R st. nw. tells me that former residents of Montana are being asked to call the society's secretary, James D. Graham, at Republic 7137, or their congressional representatives (on the National 3120 switchboard). Sounds like a good chance for Montanans to meet their Congressmen . . . L. W. Daniels of Alexandria, Va., is the first to complain that we misquoted "Bulgy Benjy." He'll no doubt have company when the next mail arrives . . . Jean C. Wysong of 506 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, Md., is looking for Helen O'Connell's recording of "Star Eyes," and muses: "How did I ever get through my morning coffee before the birth of your column?" I dunno, Jean, but the lady in our house used to start with the advertisements and then turn to Mary Haworth, Herblock, the comics and the obituaries, in that order. Since this column has been running, it has nosed out the obits for fifth place.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw., wonders about the recent real estate ad which offered:

"Six-room brick house, only $13,950. Pay $2,500,000 down, balance in easy monthly payments."

THE LESSER EVIL

Ladies, like hosses,
Can cause you great losses.
But ladies are better
Because of divosses.

Jerry Boin

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—M. Werner, the biographer, has been assigned to complete the memoirs of Fiorello LaGuardia . . . The "Give to the Damon Runyon Fund" stamps now being distributed throughout the country were printed and donated by the Longines-Wittnauer Watch Co. . . . At 1 o'clock last night one of the top night clubs in New York didn't have a single customer in it.

CHANGE: Last week John Garfield attended a golden wedding anniversary of his aunt and uncle, who live in the New Lots section of Brooklyn. Because of the snow no taxi would take him there. Garfield and his wife therefore used the 7th ave. subway, in a ride they last had made many years ago. Many of the passengers recognized the movie star and kept staring at him. One elderly couple, in particular, stared at him and finally the lady approached him and asked: "Say, aren't you Julius Garfinkle o. Livonia avenue?" . . . "Yes," Garfield told this former neighbor of his . . . "Hm, I thought so," she said. "So what's new with you?"

LAMENT: Bert Wheeler, who has been a vaudeville and night-club star for 30 years, returned to Broadway last week. He went to see Hank Ladd in "Angel in the Wings," Paul Douglas in "Born Yesterday" and Frank Fay in "Harvey" . . . "Only a few years back," sighed Wheeler last night, "I had all three working for me as straightmen. Now I've got to work in the wilderness."

ACTING: Cyril Connoly, the English editor, in reporting on his recent trip to this country, referred to "The American Way" and his description was replete with the words "drudgery," "office-existence," "the getting of money," etc. Clifford Odets, as a drama student during the depression years, once had to act out "New Yorker," in the improvisation class at the New School for Social Research. He fulfilled the assignment by yawning, rising, hurriedly pulling a "shower-chain," rushed into his "clothes," gulped "food," rushed down the steps, rushed into the "subway," held onto a "strap," rushed up the steps and into an "office," placed his feet on a desk, and settled back slowly to nap.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Memo to Senator Ferguson

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes/the form of a memo to Senator Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the subcommittee investigating Senator Thomas and other grain speculators. Pearson was the first to expose Thomas's commodity speculation, two years ago, at which time he was called a liar by the Oklahoma Senator.)

Homer Ferguson

Memo to Senator Ferguson of Michigan:

Believing in your sincere desire to get to the bottom of Senator Thomas and his use of the Senate for private speculation, I am sending you the results of my own investigation. These may furnish you with additional leads for your own probe.

I think you will find that during most of Senator Thomas's career in the United States Senate, he has been active in the stock market and has not hesitated to use his position of trust to influence the market. I suggest that first you look into 128 shares of Cities Service stock held by the Senator around 1928.

Following this, I suggest that you examine the Senator's dealings in silver and cotton in 1933. At around this time his son Wilfred was employed by the old stock-brokerage firm of Fenner & Beane at its Oklahoma City office, while the Senator traded through the firm's Washington office.

During the summer of 1933 you will find that Thomas was active in the silver market, in fact had bought a considerable quantity of silver on margin, and when the silver bubble burst in July, Thomas was caught short. John Mothershed, then manager of Fenner & Beane's Washington office, called on him for more collateral, which the Senator did not put up. Accordingly, he was sold out, at a heavy loss.

I think you will find that the next day, July 19, 1933, Senator Thomas then sent two blistering telegrams to the presidents of the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade demanding stricter regulation. The two telegrams read in part: "Today's activity in your exchange demonstrates absolute necessity for immediate adoption of a rule limiting the amount of loss on any stock during any one session."

It is interesting that the Senator did not reveal that he himself was caught short. He put his protest on the high moral plane of protecting the investing public. It is also interesting that some years later, in the spring of 1946, when OPA urged stricter control of the cotton market, Thomas took an exactly opposite view and opposed those controls. At that time he and his wife were long on cotton and gambling on a continued rise in prices. The Senator didn't want OPA controls to interfere with such a rise.

Father Coughlin's Adviser

Going back to 1933, 1934 and 1935, I believe you will find that at about the time Senator Thomas was speculating in silver, he was also making speeches calculated to increase the price of silver. He was, for instance, an active member of Senator Key Pitman's silver bloc, and also described himself as "silver adviser to Father Coughlin," in attacking the Federal Reserve Act. Coughlin later turned out to be the biggest individual buyer (through his secretary) of silver in the United States.

In speech after speech Thomas urged passage of his silver-buying bill, the remonetization of silver and the payment of soldier bonuses from silver. But he said nothing to the public about the fact that he himself had been buying up silver.

On February 18, 1935, Thomas offered an amendment to the WPA-relief appropriation bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to buy silver at the rate of 50 million ounces a month until one fourth of our total metallic reserve was silver instead of gold.

To check on the Senator's early commodity market transactions, look in an old warehouse at 818 Gravier st., New Orleans, La., where the records of Fenner & Beane are stored. To check on some of his other silver transactions, look up the records of Harriss & Vose, 60 Beaver st., New York, though these may have been destroyed.

In other words the Senator from Oklahoma seems to have been in the stock and commodity markets during practically all of his long career.

Regarding more recent operations, it might be interesting to check the account listed under "Farm Products Co." with Bache & Co. and also for a short time with Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Beane. This account was handled by Dyke Cullum, about whom Senator Thomas recently said: "From time to time I have turned money over to Dyke Cullum and asked him to invest in cotton for me."

Brokers Suspicious

If your investigators check carefully, I think you will find that in February, 1946, Dyke Cullum proposed opening an account under "Farm Products Co." with Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Beane. The brokers, however, were suspicious that it was a blind for Senator Thomas and queried Cullum closely. He replied that he wanted to use the account for himself, Ralph Moore and one other.

The brokers told him they would ask their New York office whether the account was acceptable. They also examined him closely as to why he wanted a separate account under "Farm Products Co." when he was already trading heavily under his own name, while Ralph Moore was trading heavily under his own name.

Suspicious, Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Beane finally turned down the "Farm Products Co." account, though later on October 22, 1946, by accident they accepted it. On October 26, however, they asked Cullum to take the account elsewhere.

Ralph Moore, who has used the offices of both Senator Thomas and Senator Pappy O'Daniel of Texas, is now under investigation by the Justice Department.

Not so cozy

When wintry winds surround the house . . . And ice is on the street . . . Somehow we never seem to get . . . The right amount of heat . . . No matter how we regulate . . . The temperature inside . . . We never thoroughly enjoy . . . The place where we abide . . . Because when we turn on the heat . . . It gets too warm and then . . . As soon as we have cut it off . . .We feel the cold again . . . Of course my wife accuses me . . . And maybe she is right . . . When she declares I do not try . . . To change the Fahrenheit . . . She says I am so lazy I . . . Woul rather burn or freeze . . . Than lift my little finger to . . . Arrange the right degrees.

EXTRA GOOD NEWS FOR TEENS

at a low news-worthy price 25.00 each

Look at the good news that attracts the glamour girls of Teendom to our Teen Circle! Typical are these three young models just graduated from the Phyllis Bell Ideal School. Like other style-conscious teens . . . they applaud the magazine fashions arriving in spring-splendor in our Teen Circle. Swirl-skirt suits, of course . . . with tiny waisted jackets for a long, lithe look. Toppers fling with easy grace over suits or dresses. Styles that make the headlines . . . prices that are equally news-worthy!

Tops it with our bell-sleeved topper of all wool covert in bright shades, sizes 10 to 16, 25.00

Peggy Parker likes our all wool suit in pastel checks, sizes 10 to 16. . . . . 25.00
